What's Wrong With Britain?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HOW QUIETLY and easily the world entered the big war in 1914. How acutely it feels its pains and aches now, while it is passing through the depression caused by the war.

Just as quietly and easily Japan, China and Russia may be sliding into another war, its importance to be guessed or its results foreseen.

LET US PRAY, hope and believe that nobody will drag us into that tempest, if it starts. But you can never be sure.

When you read "Tokio is sending heavy reserves to China because 15 Japanese have been killed in a Manchurian battle," and read of Japanese and Chinese fighting "in the Russian zone," you may prepare for big news.

JAPAN HAS BEEN sending heavy gold shipments through San Francisco for deposit to her credit here. This puzzles France, but should not.

For buying in America, Japan must have gold, and therefore Japanese gold is coming here. Japan will want many things if war starts on a big scale, and must use gold in this market.

For paying soldiers and buying products in Asia, Japan and Russia would need silver. That is the real money there.

Paper in an Asiatic war would have no value. The few hundred million ounces of silver available in India and in Shanghai would not last long, and what came down would go up with a vengeance. American companies that have silver on hand will hold the metal if they are wise.

AMERICANS "SHORT" of silver on New York's metal exchange were recently warned here to change that "position" if they took the advice they are glad, and foolish if they did not!

In Asia, silver is the thing. China's currency, based entirely on silver, stands high on the world's exchange market.

The rise in the price of silver metal, only starting, is not surprising.

The world needs more money, of a kind more plentiful than gold, now cornered. The world's supply of gold only 10 per cent of one year's income of the United States, cannot possibly provide a basis for world financial transactions amounting to thousands of billions annually.

You might as well say that $10 in gold would be enough.

TWENTY YEARS ago yesterday the first flight was made from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean by Galbraith Perry Rodgers, soon afterward killed in an exhibition flight.

In a primitive Wright biplane Rodgers left Sheepshead Bay September 7, 1911, and landed at the end of the 4,321-mile trip to Pasadena, Cal., 59 days later. He cracked up three times on the trip, once landing in a tree near Middletown, N. Y., but he kept on.

Today cross-continent air liners fly in a half hour as far as Rodgers flew in a whole day, and the trip that took him 59 days has been done in 11 hours.

His is the glory; he blazed the trail and is one of the many pioneer fliers that the world should remember with gratitude. When you compare 59 days and 11 hours you know there is progress.

MAHATMA GANDHI met the King of England yesterday, raising his hands as he approached the royal personage, as though in benediction.

The Mahatma, from India's coral strands, wore his loin cloth and shawl, legs and arms bare, sandals on his feet. The King wore a black coat, turned down collar, dark tie with an old-fashioned pin. Formal civilian attire.

ONCE REPRESENTATIVE of Indian power would have come with a long title, elaborate clothing, many jewels.

And the representative of European royalty would have received his visitor, brilliant in color, in a long cloak, lined with ermine, brilliant stars glittering on his breast.

The world has changed. George holds office thanks to his simplicity and obedience to the people's will. The Gandhi owes his power largely to his simplicity, his breech clout and his bare legs. Carlyle could write another "Sartor Resartus" on that meeting.

The Rev. Inge, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, foresees the fall of the British Empire soon. Says he:

"Our part as a world power is approaching its end. We have been good enough to achieve a wonderful position in the world, but I am afraid

TOKIO PLANES BOMB CHINESE FLEEING WAR IN PANIC

TOKIO, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Japanese troops crushed a Chinese army in a three-day battle in Manchuria, and sent the soldiers flying northward in disorderly retreat, said dispatches from Mukden today to the Rengo News Agency.

The Japanese lost 130 killed in the Nonni River bridgehead area in North-Central Manchuria. The battle ended today when reinforced Japanese launched an offensive which dislodged the Heilingkiang province army.

Japanese scouts reported the Chinese rear guard passed a town three miles north of the Nonni River bridge an hour later.

Japanese airplanes rained bombs upon the fleeing Chinese, throwing them into panic and increasing the disorder of their retreat.

The dispatch to the Rengo News Agency said only three Japanese companies bore the brunt of the severe fighting north of the Nonni River, which began Wednesday. They opposed Chinese tenfold more numerous and possessing cavalry and artillery.

Considerable losses appeared to have been suffered by the Chinese.

The government, meanwhile, was considering a carefully guarded American note regarding the new hostilities.

Official circles guarded its contents, but referred to it as a "friendly representation." The Tokio government announced its troops would not advance upon Anganchi or the more important neighboring city of Tsitsihar unless the Chinese soldiers continued

BURKE AUTO LICENSE PLATE GIVEN BUTLER

James Francis Burke will yield the distinction of having license plates No. 31 on his automobile next year to Gen. Smedley D. Butler, the fighting ex-Marine.

A dispatch from Harrisburg today disclosed that Gov. Pinchot has politely rebuked several prominent persons who, for years, held the honor of having license plates under 100, particularly those known to have been actively opposed to his candidacy for Governor.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, whose auto carried license No. 62 this year, doesn't know what number he will get, as no assignment has been made.

Katherine Lindsay, a clerk in the Governor's office, is to be given license No. 32, which had been issued to W. G. Costin, of Pittsburgh.

Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, one of Pinchot's strongest opponents, lost his license Nos. 5 and 55.

United States Senator David A. Reed, retained No. 22 and also was given No. 93, formerly held by George Wharton Pepper.

W. L. Mellon, former Republican state chairman, keeps No. 26, and Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, daughter of the late Progressive leader in this part of the state, has been given 29 for another year.

Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon retains No. 48, held by him for years, and other members of the Mellon family keep their old numbers, including Mrs. Helen W. Mellon, 33; R. B. Mellon, 57; Richard K. Mellon, 59, and T. A. Mellon, 89.

'BOB-HAIRED' BANDIT ENDS 7-YEAR TERM

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 6.—(INS.)—Celia Cooney, the first "bobbed haired bandit," got up this morning from the bare cot on which she had lain for the seven dreary years of her sentence.

She put on the makeup carefully in the dim light cast by the wired tube in the ceiling of her cell. She kicked her prison clothes aside and donned a bright new dress. She heard the rattle of the master key in the lock which governed her cell tier and stepped toward the cell door. It moved silently back on its hinges. She walked out and down the passageway and stood against the outer door. The guard on the

New High For Wheat

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The stock market surged ahead to the best levels of the recovery today, stimulated by a sensational rally in wheat and a further rise in silver metal to a new high for the year.

United States Steel led the rise, going above 70, and carrying other leading industrial and utility issues along. Steel had been down to 66⅞ in the early trading. The silver strength buoyed the mining group significantly and rails were in better demand.

Wheat's rally was by far the outstanding feature of all markets. On the opening a flood of selling forced it back sharply from last night's finish, but the heavy buying which has forced it up almost 25 cents from the early October low made its appearance again. The rally carried through from about the second hour with final prices showing net gains of ½ to 1⅜ cents a bushel.

Husband Sues Squire Morgan, Career Blamed

MRS. MARGARET E. MORGAN

The desire of Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, to continue her professional career is the basic cause behind her husband's suit for divorce, filed yesterday in Reno, the latter's attorney, William M. Gardiner, of Ayers, Nev., said today.

Stewart McKee Morgan, the husband, filed his divorce on a claim of desertion. To Nevada proof of desertion over a period of five years or longer is necessary.

DEMAND TUNNEL DEAL BE EXPLAINED

Two separate investigations into the county's purchase of the Wabash tunnel and bridge, for use as a South Hills-Downtown vehicular artery, were in full force today.

The October grand jury, in an open hearing, was listening to County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and Charles C. McGovern defend the $3,000,000 purchase.

The County Planning Commission announced it would inspect the project tomorrow morning, and said it would not approve the purchase until the inspection had been completed and the County Commissioners had answered seven question relating to it.

TAXPAYER SUES

Norman P. Hopkins, as a taxpayer, brought about the grand jury rehearing on a court petition in which he charged the previously granted jury approval had been made before the county commissioners had studied specifications of the project.

Another of the complaints against consummation of the deal is that the county commissioners

Pittsburgher Among Sailors Hurt in Blast

STEPHEN R. KOWALSKI

A Pittsburgh sailor was injured seriously in the explosion of a five-inch anti-aircraft gun on the battleship Colorado, near San Pedro, Cal., late yesterday, which resulted in the deaths of one officer and five seamen.

The injured Pittsburgher is Stephen R. Kowalski, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kowalski, of 2616 Bunmer street, South Side. Kowalski, a seaman, enlisted almost two years ago. Word of the tragedy was received today by the

STATE ACTS TO GIVE DEPOSITORS FUNDS BY CHRISTMAS

Latest developments today in efforts to aid depositors in closed state banks were:

1—Charles L. McCune, director in various banks and corporations here, accepts appointment as "private banker" to distribute cash on hand to depositors before Christmas.

2—Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, announces he has asked from banks a complete report of private dealings by public officials who might influence public deposits.

3—Names of directors of Gordon's proposed "realization corporation" were to be announced late this afternoon.

Naming of McCune as private banker came today as a distinct step in the move to release depositors' funds held in the closed state institutions. It followed a two-day series of conferences between Gordon and Vice President James C. Chaplin, of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association, and other business men and bankers.

McCune will become the agent to distribute any cash the closed banks may have on hand, to depositors. Under Gordon's plan, immediately upon filing of inventories of closed institutions, proofs of deposit will be taken from depositors and, after a 30-day period, McCune will be ready to issue his checks.

Inventories from some of the banks have been filed already in Harrisburg, Gordon says, and more are coming weekly. It is believed that millions will be freed in Western Pennsylvania before Christmas.

McCune is a director in the Dol-

ORGANIZATION HOPES FOR LAWRENCE FADE

Republican machine leaders who gleefully predicted yesterday that David L. Lawrence, Democrat, would be ultimately shown to be victor over C. M. Barr, Independent, for third place on the Board of County Commissioners, today were becoming subdued and apparently reconciled to loss of control of the county government.

Barr's headquarters workers said that returns which they had compiled themselves and checked against election board return figures in the Prothonotary's office, gave their candidate a lead of approximately 10,600 votes over Lawrence.

Barr, on the face of other unofficial returns, was ahead of Lawrence by 8,764 votes. The only material discrepancy with election night figures developed in the Third District of the Fourth Ward, home of Senator James J. Coyne. Republican leader who backed Lawrence. The return

FIRST SNOW FLURRIES OF SEASON HIT CITY

Snow flurries swept Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania today for the first time this season, bringing a foretaste of winter and impeding traffic on mountain highways.

A few scattered flakes fell early today, followed by quite a brisk snowfall which began shortly before noon, while the temperature hovered around the freezing mark.

Air travel was affected slightly, it was said at the airports.

A fall of two inches was reported from Kane, Pa., with a measurable quantity from other western counties.

Forecaster W. S. Bretzman predicted clear, cold weather tonight, followed by fair and warmer tomorrow. The lowest temperature predicted for tonight is 25 to 30 degrees.

PITT AND CARNEGIE AWAIT GRID BATTLE

By JESS CARVER

Pitt and Tech put the finishing touches to their varsity elevens today in preparation for the annual city championship tussle in the Stadium tomorrow.

The Panthers, safely and secretly quartered at a nearby country club, went through a signal drill under the watchful eyes of Coach Sutherland. The Panther squad was taken out of town following yesterday's workout on the Pitt practice field and will remain in its hiding place until shortly before game time tomorrow.

Carnegie's squad staged its final workout in the Tartan Bowl this afternoon, with Wally Steffen, who came over from Chicago a day earlier, in charge. The Tartans will slip away to an out-of-town retreat after an early supper.

Despite the cold and snow, a good-sized turnout of Pitt students, the band and R. O. T. C. turned out at Ruskin Field, Oakland, at noon today for a pep meeting and 'thuse. The R. O. T. C. staged a review in honor of the 10 co-eds who had been named battalion and regimental sponsors.

TRAIN WRECKS TRUCK IN SOUTH SIDE CRASH

Harry J. Lanz, of Parkview avenue, Carrick, driver for the George Lanz Company, builders' supplies, leaped to safety a few seconds before a through freight of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad struck his truck at the South Eighth street crossing shortly before noon today.

The 100-car freight was within sight of the crossing when the truck stalled on the tracks. A watchman ran out to flag the train. Prompt application of brakes failed to bring the train to a stop in time to avoid the crash. The train crew escaped injury.

HOOVER, BIG NAVY BACKERS, SPAR WARILY IN 'SHIP WAR'

CONTEST OVER ARMAMENT NEAR CRISIS

President's Reaction To Charges of Ignorance Awaited In Conference

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Like wrestlers sparring for an unbreakable hold, President Hoover and the Navy League circled each other warily today as their semi-comic war over relative knowledge of American naval needs approached a climax.

Spectators principally were interested in watching how Mr. Hoover would react to being accused a second time of having struck a vital blow at national sea defense through his drastic economy program.

He had called upon League President William Howard Gardiner to apologize publicly for sponsoring a pamphlet expounding such views rather forcefully but instead the "big navy" organization's executive committee reaffirmed the charges.

REPORT AWAITED

The President's own committee of inquiry continued its deliberations with indications a report would be available for the White House to make public this afternoon. This committee—headed by John Hays Hammond, the millionaire mining engineer—already has reached a verdict of "not guilty" and merely is concentrating on putting it into dully convincing language.

Whether the Executive would utilize his regular Friday afternoon press conference to indulge in a few personalities of his own was the immediate question of speculation. Mr. Hoover stands recharged of being "abysmally ignorant" and a "congenital pacifist"—to which Gardiner added an additional touch yesterday by stating he first uttered them "in the best of good faith."

SECRET CONFERENCE

The Hoover "vindication committee" conducted its final sessions in the greatest secrecy. Last night they held a meeting, refusing to tell reporters where it would be. The news men located their quarry at the home of Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, Jr., a member, but it did them no good as all five committeemen had entered into a solemn pact to say absolutely nothing until their report of absolution was in the hands of the President.

In addition to Castle, the others on the body are Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke, Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, retired, and Eliot Wadsworth, of the President's unemployment relief organization.

HOOVER SUPPORTERS

Meanwhile, the lone voice of dissension set up by Col. Henry Breckenridge when the Navy League executive committee gave its chief a 7-to-1 vote of confidence was not without echo. Several other prominent members of the organization devoted to preparedness propaganda issued statements agreeing that "unseemly and unjustified language concerning the President of the United States" had been used which would do the league no good.

One such was Dr. David Jayne Hill, who served as ambassador to Germany under former President Taft. Another was Mrs. James Carroll Frazer, of Washington, D. C. A third was a high-ranking retired military officer, whose convictions were not sufficiently strong to make him stand for quotation.

TUNNEL DEAL FACES INQUIRY

failed to comply with state law when they did not submit the project to the Planning Commission, 20 days prior to signing the resolution of purchase.

The seven questions which the Planning Commission has demanded the County Commissioners to answer are:

1—Is it true that the tunnels started to collapse 18 months or more ago; that engineers of the P. & W. Va. Railroad worked for six months to prevent such a collapse, and the Pennsylvania Railroad hauled away debris from the tunnel for many months?

TITLE IN DOUBT

2—When the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad ceased to operate its terminal, did a majority of the property rights on Mt. Washington, over the tunnel, which were obtained by condemnation for railroad purposes, revert to the original property owners and have real estate owners obtained options on these rights?

3—Wasn't it the plan of County Engineer Norman F. Brown that the Sawmill Run Boulevard and the West End Bridge would detour traffic out of the Triangle and isn't it true that this project is in direct opposition to such a plan?

4—Did not the engineers of Allegheny County decide that when $800,000 was spent in relieving traffic at the south end of Liberty Tubes no more traffic relief for the South Hills would be necessary for years?

5—Will not a single tube be a traffic hazard?

6—Will it not be necessary to rebuild the present Wabash Bridge in order that it will be adequate for traffic demands?

7—How much will it be necessary for the county to spend to rebuild the present tunnel, build a second tunnel, rebuild the present bridge, erect the necessary ramps and reimburse the property owners in order that this project may be made safe, sane and feasible?

At yesterday's meeting of the Planning Commission, County Commissioner Babcock presented the resolution for purchase. He apologized for the Commissioners' laxity in not doing so previously, but did not explain their tardiness.

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.
Vol. IX—No. 97.
Friday, Nov. 6, 1931.
Published evening and Sunday at the office of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, Pa. Price: Daily, 3 cents; Sunday, 10 cents.
Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Pittsburgh, Pa., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

FIRST REPORT

Planning Commission minutes revealed this was the first official information it had received of the purchase, despite the clearly defined procedure outlined in the state statutes.

It informed Babcock that it would take no action until late next week, when another meeting will be held, the inspection completed, and the County Commissioners have had an opportunity to answer the seven questions.

Commissioners Armstrong and McGovern both defended the purchase and the project as wise and feasible when they appeared before the grand jury today.

Armstrong admitted, to questioning from Albert T. Morris, foreman of the grand jury, that he had no idea as to the approximate cost of a companion tube, part of the plan to eventually make the tunnel a two-tube, single direction affair similar to the Liberty Tunnels.

TUNNEL NEEDED

C. W. Scheck, township commissioner of Mt. Lebanon, told the jury there was a great need for the Wabash tunnel to relieve traffic conditions in the South Hills.

William S. Haddock, former burgess of Dormont, substantiated Scheck and added the Liberty tunnels are inadequate.

Walter P. Frazer, president of McCann's, testified he believed such a tunnel would boost real estate values in the lower Triangle district and would pay for itself in two and one-half years.

IDENTIFY ONE, DEAD ON TRAIN

Police of Wheeling and Pittsburgh and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad today were seeking to identify one of two men fatally hurt riding on top of a freight train from Wheeling to Pittsburgh. The body of Louis Stereheld, 25, of Canonsburg, Pa., was found along the tracks at Elm Grove, W. Va. It is in the Wheeling Morgue.

Unconscious, the other was found on a car top as the train neared Bruceton. The man was removed to Mercy Hospital, where he died. Capt. John Gross, of the railroad police, believes the men were stealing a ride.

OPERATORS SEE GAIN FOR COAL INDUSTRY

Central Sales Agency for Each Region Urged at Parley Involving 9 States

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Hope for brighter days in the bituminous coal industry was expressed today as a special committee representing operators in nine states east of the Mississippi met here to devise means of combating overproduction and other ills.

The first task attacked was a plan to set up central sales agencies by regions. C. B. Huntress, of Washington, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, indicated the chances for this plan to go through seemed good.

NO PRICE CONTROL

Under it, regions of varying productive capacities would each have a central agency. Some of the regions produce 8,000,000 tons of coal per year, others as high as 15,000,000. Although the plan was not considered a cure-all, coal men believed its co-ordinating factors would tend to eliminate some of the ills of the industry.

Huntress declared it would by no means lead to "monopoly" or price control because the average yearly production of bituminous coal in the United States is something like 450,000,000 tons. Even if a central sales agency were set up in a region producing as much as 20,000,000 tons, competition from other fields and other fuels would still exercise a controlling influence, he said.

FIGHT TRUST LAWS

The conferees, Huntress indicated, were determined to do everything in their power to help the industry, providing the steps are legal. The committee, it was pointed out, was representative of the bulk of the industry, since 90 per cent of the bituminous coal is produced east of the Mississippi.

Another proposal to come up for discussion was modification of the Sherman anti-trust law and the Clayton act to permit greater unification, in what coal men described as an attempt to curb cut-throat methods and bring about better co-ordination in the industry.

Some members of the committee were said to believe physical mergers of properties was desirable.

Bank Closing Laid To European Bonds

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(INS.)—Speculation by banks in foreign bonds was blamed today as a "cause of many bank failures" by Senator Henrik Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota.

He charged that federal and state bank examiners have fostered a speculation orgy by banks by inducing them to "throw out farm paper in favor of bonds." Under this urging, he said, banks refused to support the market for mortgage bonds and gambled "with American depositors' funds in the politics of Europe."

5 MEN KILLED IN N. J. PLANE CRASH

Bodies Charred as Transport Bursts Into Flames; Eyewitness Tells of Deaths

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 6.—(INS.)—Victims of a tragic airplane acident, the bodies of five men lay in Cooper Hospital today, charred almost beyond recognition.

An inquest into the tragedy, in which a speedy transport plane of the Ludington line, bound from Newark to Washington, plunged like a plummet to the ground on the third green of the Cooper River Country Club and burst into flames, was scheduled for today.

TRIED TO LAND

The dead were: George B. Taylor, Washington, laboratory director, Chestnut Farm Dairy; Elmer Smith, Boston, advertising manager of the Washington Herald; Carlton Ehle, Riverton, N. J., president International Resistance Company, Philadelphia; Vernon Lucas, Washington, a Ludington Line pilot riding home "deadhead," and Floyd C. Cox, Washington, pilot of the plane.

Cox tried to make a landing at Central Airport when the crash occurred. He was observed to make a circuit before landing. Whether the plane ignited before it thumped to the ground had not been established today.

Watchman Sees Tragedy, Kept Back by Flames

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 6.—(INS.)—"They died screaming and fighting for their lives."

Thus did Samuel Ludwig, 22, a watchman on the golf course just east of Central Airport here, where the Ludington express crashed last night killing its five occupants, described the tragedy today.

He said:

"I could hear them screaming. I could hear them beating and kicking against the walls of the plane. I heard their screams subside. It was terrible.

"I was only 100 feet from them, but I could not reach them. The heat was terrific.

"I could hear them calling and screaming. Twice I tried to get near, but the flames drove me back.

"I couldn't see them behind the wall of flames. When the flames subsided enough for me to go near the plane the screaming was over. I knew them that everybody in the plane was dead."

AL'S BROTHER GOES TO PEN

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Ralph Capone will leave at 6 p. m. today for Leavenworth Penitentiary to start serving his three-year term for violating income tax laws, it was announced today at the United States marshal's office.

Ralph spent the night in the Cook County Jail with his brother, "Scarface Al."

Alphonse, under 11 years' sentence for violating the income tax laws, was there because he can't decide in which jail to spend his time while awaiting an appeal.

They were in separate cells. Al was in a hospital cell where he reads detective novels. Ralph was in the general lockup.

women justices of the peace to be appointed in Pennsylvania, has not been living with her husband for 13 years, it is said.

MARRIED IN 1910

They were married in Chicago, November 26, 1910, and almost immediately settled in Sewickley.

Morgan went to war and his wife entered government service.

When he returned from France, Morgan found his wife employed in the Veterans' Bureau at Washington.

He came to his father's home, near here. Following an illness and an operation, he left for Texas and California to recuperate.

ELECTED TWICE

From that time, Attorney Gardiner said, the couple has been separated. Mrs. Morgan's ambitions for a professional career preventing her from rejoining her husband in the West.

A son, Stewart, 18, is being supported through a trust fund by his father, Gardiner added.

Squire Morgan was appointed to her present office by Gov. William C. Sproul October 13, 1922. She has been elected twice, the last time two years ago.

Ethel Barrymore Sued by Physician

DETROIT, Nov. 6.—(INS.)—The famous Ethel Barrymore was sued today by Dr. Frank Kelly, who seeks to collect a $50 bill which he claimed is due for professional services.

Dr. Kelly declared he had attended Miss Barrymore on November 18, 1930, after Miss Barrymore collapsed in her dressing room in a theater here prior to a performance of "Scarlet Sister Mary."

other side swung it open. It was 3:15 a. m.

Following him, she went down to the warden's office. She was given her release papers and $10. Outside newspapermen and photographers were waiting to see her. The warden slipped her out a side door. It was pitch dark, the heavy darkness that precedes the dawn.

A hooded car was waiting, its curtains drawn. She stepped into it and was whirled to Syracuse. There she took a train for New York and a meeting with her husband, Edward Cooney, with whom she flashed like a meteor for a brief moment across the crime horizon.

MADE GREAT TEAM

Celia and Ed were a great team. Celia began as a lure. Then her nerve brought her to be responsibility of "get away guy," the one who drives the mob car from the scenes of their crimes. Soon she was using a rod and attending to the "stick-ups" herself.

And then the police nabbed the Cooneys and sent both of them away for 10 years apiece. Ed went to Clinton for his "vacation." Celia went to Auburn. Both knocked three years off their sentences for good behavior.

Ed only has one arm. He lost the other in the machine shop where he worked at a lathe.

But that isn't a factor in the decision that both the Cooneys reached to go straight. They're through with crime. Ed's going to get a job. And so is Celia. Celia learned stenography and typewriting while she was working out her sentence.

parents from the Navy Department.

Besides Kowalski, seven others were injured in the explosion, which was being investigated by naval authorities today. It occurred during anti-aircraft practice.

The accident was one of the worst in peacetime since the disastrous explosion in a gun turret aboard the U. S. S. Mississippi off the San Pedro harbor in 1924, when 48 lives were lost.

Soviet, Fearing War, Urges Aid for Chinese

MOSCOW, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—An appeal to its members to support the "Chinese proletariat" against Japanese occupation of Manchuria, and a warning that war against China is "a step toward war against Soviet Russia," was issued today by the executive directorate of the Communist International.

The appeal was made on the occasion of the celebration today of the fourteenth anniversary of the revolution in Russia. The statement said:

"The leaders of all the capitalistic countries are wandering about, searching for an outlet and afraid of complete bankruptcy before the mounting swell of the proletarian revolution. The class fight is becoming more acute. The imperialists have already begun war in the East in the hope of attaining this outlet."

Two Negroes, uninjured, fled the scene. The windshield and other glass in the car didn't even break!

Spann Ready to Back Beer For Jobless Relief

Assemblyman Max J. Spann announced today that if Congress will promptly legalize the sale of 4 per cent beer, he will move to amend the state law enforcement act, enabling the sale of it in Pennsylvania, and suggest a tax on it to help build up an unemployment fund.

Attorney Spann, who is a member of the Legislature from the Fifth District, says that as Congress will meet next month and be in session while the Pennsylvania Legislature is meeting to discuss ways and means to relieve the unemployment situation, prompt action is necessary. Discussing his plan Mr. Spann said:

"Gov. Pinchot has called the Legislature in special session to provide taxes to meet the unemployment problem and I think my plan will greatly help and at the same time give the people beer, which I think they want. There is nothing wrong about putting a tax on it if we can get it, and I think the public would gladly pay the tax.

"I also favor opening the amusement places on Sunday and placing a tax on amusements for that day, equal to the admission fee charged, but only for the period of this emergency.

"These two plans would be a painless abstraction and would produce revenue immediately. In other words, it would enable the state to provide an unemployment fund and pay as we go."

As for giving the public 4 per cent beer, he said that could be done speedily by Congress. The alcoholic content in the Volstead act could be changed.

Cash Stolen to Aid Home, Charity; Woman Paroled

Four elderly spinster sisters stood before Judge R. M. Gibson in Federal Court today, while one of them, the financial head of their home, pleaded guilty to embezzlement of $1,485 from the First National Bank of Juniata. Their story of their struggle to keep a home and engage in charitable work was backed by their pastor, the Rev. Paul Foulk, of Trinity Lutheran Church, Juniata, and J. E. Gable, superintendent of the Sunday School, where the prisoner had been a teacher.

Esther Burley, 47, by 22 years of work in the bank, increased her salary from $30 a month to $160 a month. On this she [illegible] care of the household expenses, augmented by what one sister could earn by taking in washing and another by baking. Despite a mortgage on their home, they managed to engage in charitable work, and now are rearing an orphan child.

Miss Burley said that when household expenditures became too heavy, she borrowed from the bank, intending to pay back. She got deeper into debt, the court was told, and when her peculations totaled $1,485 she confessed to a director of the bank.

She was paroled for two years.

DEATH OF TRUNK SLAYER FEARED BEFORE TRIAL ENDS

MRS. JUDD FAST LOSING FIGHT ON DISEASE

'Tigress' Drops 15 Pounds Since Arrest; Officials Still Balked by Mystery

By W. M. BISHOP
International News Service.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 6.—Arizona authorities are no nearer solving the mysterious love murders of Agnes Ann Leori and Hedwig Samuelson today than they were when Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd surrendered to her husband and attorneys in Los Angeles 10 days ago.

This was frankly admitted today by Sheriff J. R. McFadden and County Attorney Lloyd J. Andrews who have tried for a week to definitely establish a clue to the identity of the persons or person who is thought to have aided the blonde "velvet tigress" pack the bodies of her victims in trunks and ship them to Los Angeles.

STORY UNSHAKEN

Mrs. Judd's first story — that she had killed the two women, for whom she had an admitted warm affection—in self-defense, has remained unshaken in the face of grilling in her solitary cell in the Maricopa County Jail, and under the pressure and influence of her own attorneys.

While the authorities are attempting to establish a "definite "end" motive for the crime, on every hand here today there is expressed in official as well as medical circles a grave concern over Mrs. Judd's physical condition. It is doubted in many medical quarters that she will live to face the demand of County Attorney Andrews that she pay for her felonious crime against society with her life on the gallows.

Mrs. Judd's inactive tubercular condition has become extremely active during the last 10 days. She has lost more than 15 pounds in weight since she surrendered to the California authorities October 22 in a Los Angeles mortuary.

WITNESS CALLED

Twelve persons will be called as witnesses at the preliminary hearing Monday of Mrs. Judd, according to county prosecutor's deputies.

Secrecy surrounded the names of the witnesses.

Superior Judge M. T. Phelps denied Maricopa County officials a writ to restrain defense counsel from inspecting the apartment in which Mrs. Judd admitted she killed her two women friends.

Mrs. Judd apparently had been deserted by "Phoenix playboys" named in the diary of Miss Lerol. Several of the "playboys" were reported questioned by the sheriff, but none was detained.

FUND PLEDGED 3 DAYS' PAY

Contribution of three days' pay to the Welfare Fund by city and county employes was decided today. At a meeting of the elected county officials in the County Commissioner's office, it was decided that all county employes drawing upwards of $150 a month would be asked for three days' pay. One day's pay is to be given each month for the next three months. County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern and Controller Robert G. Woodside were named to handle the fund.

At a meeting attended by Mayor Charles H. Kline and members of his cabinet it was decided that the donations of city employes would be taken out in 1932. Each employe will be asked to sign a pledge that the three days' pay will be contributed within the first six months of 1932.

TREASURY SEES BUSINESS GAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(INS.)—Some signs of economic recovery probably will be shown by the next series of Federal Reserve Board, Commerce Department and other governmental statistics due for publication within the next 10 days, according to Treasury officials today.

While in the last available reports, covering September and early October, the figures were highly discouraging, they did not reflect the true condition of the last two weeks, when there have been at least a few favorable developments, such as the gains in wheat and certain other grain prices and of oil.

In two months there have been no serious declines in general commodity prices.

SOUSA, MARCH KING, 77, TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—America's march maestro—John Philip Sousa—celebrated his seventy-seventh birthday anniversary today.

It was not known how he intended to observe the day, but it certainly wasn't to be writing a commemorative march. He decided that back in 1927, when he celebrated his golden jubilee year. At that time the march king was pressed by friends to compose a piece to mark the event. It was the first time he said, "I can't." His reply was:

"Ask me to write a march on any other theme and I will go to it, regardless of what the public may think of it when it sounds forth.

"I wrote a wedding march in war-time in answer to the protest against using Wagner's or Mendelssohn's. Whenever my imagination was grasped by an event or person I wrote a march. But I can't write a march on the anniversaries of John Philip Sousa, I can't!"

JEWELRY TAKEN AT MT. LEBANON

LIBERAL TO RUN FOR PRESIDENT, SAYS CHURCH

Third Party, With Anti-Dry Plank in Platform, Plans National Campaign in '32

Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, said today that a national Liberal party would be organized with an outright anti-dry plank in its platform, and hold a convention in 1932 to nominate candidates for President and Vice President.

The Liberal party in Pennsylvania supported John M. Hemphill, also the Democratic nominee for Governor, against Gov. Pinchot in the last general election, and Hemphill polled nearly 400,000 Liberal votes, Church said.

"After the experimental campaign in Pennsylvania, it was determined that the Liberal party should effect a national organization."

He said the party's platform also would include demands for immediate reduction of 20 per cent in the tariff; issuance of $1,000,000,000 in silver certificates based upon the purchase of an equal value of silver bullion; remission of a part of the war debts; abandonment of price fixing in agriculture; restoration to the state legislatures of the choice of United States Senators; protection of labor against unemployment by a reservoir system of payment; a conference seat in the League of Nations and membership in the World Court.

The anti-dry plank will propose repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and return of control of the liquor question to the states under a system of local option, he said.

MOUNTY'S POSE TRAPS REDS

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—With the main bulwark of the prosecution based on evidence gathered by a Royal Canadian mounted policeman, who concealed his identity and posed as a "Red" for seven years, the Crown today closed its case in the trial of nine Canadian Communists for conspiracy.

The prosecutors rested its case after a final presentation of documents linking the activities of the Communist Party of Canada with the Communist International at Moscow.

Defense attorneys then prepared to begin ther efforts to save the nine defendants from conviction and it was said a number of the men might take the stand in their own defense.

The documents introduced at today's session of the trial disclosed that one of the defendants had gone to Russia at one time to attend the fifth congress of the Communist International at Moscow.

NEWS ON VOICE TESTS ANGERS MRS. HOOVER

'First Lady's' Displeasure Prompts White House to Start Inquiry on 'Leak'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Inquiries to determine the source of the story that Mrs. Herbert Hoover was having talkie voice tests made were started today by White House personnel.

Mrs. Hoover was displeased at published reports yesterday of sound news reel apparatus being set up in the executive mansion to determine which range of her voice was most effective.

Newspapermen and photographers were questioned concerning the source of their information that such tests were being made.

It was said at the White House that Mrs. Hoover did not plan to view the results of the first test. Theodore Joslin, one of the President's secretaries, said he had heard nothing about the tests or that inquiries had been made concerning reports about them.

SHIP AGROUND, CREW IN PERIL

DEAL, England, Nov. 6.—(INS.)—Lifeboats and tugs were rushed today to the assistance of the United States Shipping Board steamer Hybert, which went aground on Goodwin Sands and was reported in a dangerous position.

The vessel was close inshore, looming mountain-like through a gray mist. The sea was calm, and it was believed that part of the cargo was being thrown overboard in an effort to get the ship refloated.

The Hybert is a freighter of 6,500 tons, built in 1920.

BLAZE SPREADS TO LINER

HOBOKEN, N. J., Nov. 6.—(AP.)—The ocean liner Statendam, of the Holland-American Line, caught fire today when flames raged across the freight station of the Hoboken Manufacturers Railroad at Sixth street and the Hudson River. The Statendam was towed out into the Hudson, where the fire was extinguished.

The fire started in a freight car which had been drawn onto the pier in the process of loading a lighter. Firemen said the cause of the blaze was spontaneous combustion.

The flames spread rapidly and early arriving firemen, noting the danger to Hoboken's waterfront, immediately sounded extra alarms, bringing most of the city's apparatus to the scene.

LILY PONS HERE, FINDS CAREER 'THREELING'

Opera Star Lives Always In 'Winter;' Hailed by Her Many Pittsburgh Admirers

By J. FRED LISSFELT

Lily Pons, lightweight grand opera star, is here for her gala concert tonight.

Of her concert in New York Wednesday night, she said:

"Voila, messieurs! But that was an audience in Carnegie Hall the other evening . . . tellement chic . . . the best of New York and all of them . . . 400 on the stage and $10 a seat . . . ah! the thrill of it all!"

Then she eagerly tore open the florists' packages and discovered luxuriant roses sent by her many Pittsburgh admirers of last season. She continued:

"What a life! Thirty concerts from now until January first, and as many refused for lack of days; then the opera. First 'Lucia,' my debut opera; then the 'Lakme' revival, and lastly 'La Sonnambula.'

WILL NEVER GROW OLD

"You know, it is really strange, but at this rate I shall never grow old. Don't you say here about a lady that maybe she forgot to count her summers . . . Well, I don't have any. It is this way. New York in winter . . . then I leave for South America, and when I get there it is winter too, and then . . . well, here I am again and it's winter! Voila! Nothing for me to do but buy an esquimo suit."

But the esquimo suit would be quite as charming as her nifty bottle-green jacket and jaunty hat, for Lily Pons has the most sprightly demeanor, and is so enthusiastic about giving herself to the cause of great music. But we all could not help wondering about the boots for the winter suit, for her shoes now have to be made to order; the shops carry nothing so small.

LOVES OUT OF DOORS

Lily Pons loves the out-of-doors, but never indulges in sports during the season. Riding and hiking are left for the vacations, "whenever I get one," for the world is anxious to hear this lovely voice. In Buenos Aires there were riots when she sang. Mobs waited at the stage door; men and women were like mad in their attempts to catch a glimpse of her and when she finally could enter her automobile, they broke the windows in their enthusiasm.

Of the United States, she said:

"Here they are a little saner, fortunately, but none the less understanding.

"Now if you want me to sing beautifully, run along. It's 9 and I'm off to bed for a long sleep. How do you say? . . . 'So long!'"

'Car Token' Worshippers Scored by Priest

A stringent criticism of his churchgoers who contribute an average amount equal to the value of a street car "token" was issued today by the Rev. Thomas F. Coakley, of Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church, 6202 Alder street.

The arraignment, labelling the 10:15 mass as "The Street Car Token Mass," has been prepared in pamphlet form and will be given to each person attending Sacred Heart Church Sunday morning.

In the pamphlet, Father Coakley calls attention to the fact that the mass was once known as "The Woolworth Mass—nothing over a dime." In the past few months, he declares, the average contribution per person has dropped to 8⅓ cents, the price of a street car check.

In verbally chastising such contributors, Father Coakley stressed the fact that his arraignment was not addressed to poor or unemployed, but to persons who "paid more for their newspapers or their cigars than they contributed to God."

STATE BANKING CHIEF LAUDS M'CUNE

Text of Gordon Statement Appointing Pittsburgher To Free 'Frozen' Funds

The full text of Dr. William D. Gordon's statement announcing selection of Charles L. McCune as "private banker" to speed release of tied up funds and other plans for closed banks in this district follows:

"Mr. Charles L. McCune, of Union Bank Building, Pittsburgh, Pa., has been selected by me as the Pittsburgh representative who will be licensed as a private banker by the Department of Banking, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of enabling me to pay out cash of closed banks in a more expeditious manner than would be possible through the regular procedure of liquidating as provided for by statute.

"Mr. McCune is a man who enjoys a fine reputation in Pittsburgh, and is connected with many business and financial organizations. He is director of Freehold Building and Loan Association, Freehold Real Estate Company, Pressed Steel Car Company, Lewis Production Company, Republic Fire Insurance Company, Union National Bank, Coraopolis Savings and Trust Company, Dollar Savings Bank, and is director and treasurer of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation.

"Mr. McCune is the son of J. B. McCune, who was a former president of the Union National Bank and interested in various Pittsburgh business institutions. He is the grandson of the J. B. McCune who organized the Union Bank in 1857.

"After consulting with various financiers and business men in the Pittsburgh district, I determined upon the selection of Mr. McCune as an outstanding man who was willing to give of his time gratuitously in an effort to enable me to pay out funds from closed institutions, in order to relieve distress caused by the unfortunate closing of state banking institutions in the Greater Pittsburgh area.

ACTS FOR GORDON

"Mr. McCune will serve for me in this capacity in the same manner in which Mr. John A. McCarthy, vice president of the Real Estate Trust Company, Philadelphia, and president of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refinery, is acting for the Greater Philadelphia area.

"A similar project will be worked out for the central district and the Wilkes-Barre and Scranton district by me as Secretary of Banking.

"Mr. McCune will be licensed as a private banker at Harrisburg tomorrow, after which he will be in a position to function in the payment of advanced dividends to depositors of closed institutions as fast as sufficient funds are accumulated in these institutions.

"The modus operandi of the plan is as follows: Whenever reasonable amounts of cash are accumulated in the closed institutions I shall draw checks upon them payable to Mr. McCune as private banker. Mr. McCune in turn will deposit these funds in designated banking institutions upon which checks will be prepared by the Department of Banking and signed by Mr. McCune as private banker, for distribution to the depositors.

"As soon as the inventories have been prepared in closed institutions, a notice will be sent to each depositor by the Department of Banking stating the net deposit on hand, giving the depositor 30 days within which to substantiate or disprove their deposits.

TO TRANSFER FUNDS

"At the conclusion of this period, according to a prepared schedule, funds will be transferred from these institutions by me to Mr. McCune as private banker. The depositors will be notified through the newspapers to call at their respective banks on specified days to present their proofs of claim and proper identifications. Meanwhile, the Department of Banking will have printed and prepared the checks for the depositors in the amounts to be paid in the advance dividends. These will be signed by Mr. McCune and countersigned by one of his assistants, the checks being drawn on designated banking institutions.

"Through this vehicle approximately five months will be cut off from the time ordinarily required in the payment of the first dividend under the former plan of liquidating closed banks."

OLD PROCEDURE

"Heretofore, after the filing of the inventory and a determination to liquidate, two appraisers next had to be appointed to prepare a detailed appraisement. Heretofore a notice giving depositors and creditors four months within which to file proofs or disproofs of their claims were sent out. Then the Department of Banking filed the appraisement with the court, and it remained on review for 30 days. At the end of this time permission was asked of the court for the payment of the first dividend. Upon the obtaining of this permission, dividend checks were prepared and mailed.

"The plan which I have devised for the use of a private banker will make it possible for us, wherever there is sufficient cash on hand, to pay a dividend immediately after the inventory has been received by me and the 30 days' notice for depositors and creditors to prove their claim has expired.

"From time to time a definite announcement will be made as to the dates on which dividends will be available to the public. Of course, it must be understood that most of the closings in the Pittsburgh area were considerably after those in Philadelphia, and for that reason dividends may not be available as rapidly. However, everything will be done to expedite the payment of as many dividends as possible before the Christmas season, in order to relieve suffering and distress to depositors who unfortunately have been affiliated with closed institutions.

"My aim is solely to help distressed depositors, and the cooperation of Mr. McCune will greatly facilitate this in the Greater Pittsburgh area."

lar Savings Bank, the Union Savings Bank, the Coraopolis Savings and Trust Company, the Freehold Building and Loan Association, the Pressed Steel Car Company, the Lewis Production Company, the Republic Fire Insurance Company and director and treasurer of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation.

Gordon also announced today that he has asked closed banks throughout the state, including those in Pittsburgh, to give him complete reports of transactions with public officials.

He is particularly interested, he says, in any instances where officials' abilities to influence placing of public deposits may have influenced granting of private loans and credits. While his call is primarily to aid him in drafting preventive legislation, he says that any evidence of fraud will be vigorously prosecuted.

SCHOOLEY CASE CITED

It is thought that Gordon has in mind possible dealings similar to those of former City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, who, records indicated, borrowed money from the Franklin Savings and Deposit Bank, gave his note for $10,000 as security for a $9,800 N. S. F. check and caused $290,000 of city funds to be deposited there.

The banking secretary is also investigating direct and indirect dealings of all bank officials with their own banks, He said.

"I want to know if anybody is becoming director of banks in order to borrow money; I want to know if banks are playing the market, and I want to know if banks are going into the real estate business."

Officers of banks are prohibited from borrowing more than 10 per cent of their institution's capital and surplus, according to the banking code.

Gordon also revealed that he has instituted a knew report and examination system in Pennsylvania banks designed to enable him to check any possible future failures. The new system, he says, gives a better and more complete check of banks' condition than has ever been had in the state until now.

Weekly reports must be made by all banks, stating their time deposits, demand deposits, time bills payable by the banks and demand bills payable by the banks and their per cent of cash reserve.

These figures must be tabulated in comparison with those of the same week in the last month, the same week in the last year, their per cent of increase or decrease and their cumulative decrease or increase for the year.

PROTECTION TO BANKS

By calling on banks to retrench when deposits and reserve goes down and bills payable go up, affected institutions can, almost always, be saved, Gordon believes. The statements from the banks must be signed by responsible officials of the institutions.

Complete monthly reports detailing resources and banks' connections with other firms through holding companies or other means are also required, Gordon announced.

The realization corporation, headed by Gordon, will function in an effort to liquidate assets of closed institutions centrally and efficiently. It is hoped that best value will be obtained and the market escape flooding at one time with securities and other assets from all banks.

Extension of credit to depositors by Pittsburgh merchants and businesses was to be discussed by local leaders next week.

GIRL UNSHAKEN IN ACCUSING PANTAGES

Miss Pringle Withstands Grilling; Defense Attack On Her Past Restricted

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.—Throughout a day of grueling cross-examination, Eunice Pringle, youthful dancer, maintained her story that Alexander Pantages, wealthy theatrical magnate, had attacked her, and prosecution attorneys were satisfied with their case as court was adjourned today until Monday.

Miss Pringle has finished her testimony in the re-trial of Pantages on attack charges.

Under a ruling of Judge Clair S. Tappaan, defense attorneys must present any inquiry about Miss Pringle's past on direct and specific evidence and not by innuendo.

DENIES CHARGE

Miss Pringle denied she once had appeared at the window of a man's apartment in Hollywood attired only in night clothing.

Questions asked by defense counsel indicated witnesses would be produced in attempt to show that Miss Pringle was not an innocent university girl when she met Pantages.

One of the questions directed at her was:

"Eunice Pringle, is it not a fact that you went to the office of Alexander Pantages on the afternoon of August 9, 1929, for the express purpose of placing him in a compromising position?"

Miss Pringle vehemently denied that was her intention in visiting the office, but declared she went there to seek an engagement as a vaudeville dancer on Pantages theatrical circuit.

NEW WITNESSES

Defense attorneys said numerous witnesses would be introduced whose testimony was barred from the first trial in which Pantages was convicted. The conviction was overruled by the State Supreme Court.

Pantages' attorneys tried to introduce as evidence facts in connection with a $1,000,000 civil suit Miss Pringle has pending against Pantages. Judge Tappaan said he would rule on this phase of the case Monday.

Other engagements of Judge Tappaan made necessary the adjournment of court until Monday after Mrs. Lou Irene Pringle, a suburban school teacher, had testified her daughter, Eunice, "has never run around with men."

G. O. P. CHIEFS' HOPES SLUMP

sheets recorded 200 more votes for Lawrence than appeared in the unofficial totals.

CHANGE PROBED

Independent leaders are conducting an investigation of this change, and are maintaining a close surveillance over the return sheets as their totals are tabulated.

Vote totals for Senator William D. Mansfield and County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, the other two candidates elected to the county board, were not materially changed by tabulation of the official return sheets. The only fight was between Lawrence and Barr, and it was in this contest that trickery by the Republican machine in favor of Lawrence was feared.

Post-campaign developments, including a review of the vote, confirmed the charge that the Republican organization had coupled Mansfield and Lawrence, and practically every man in the organization, including the candidates, was aware of the bi-partisan deal.

RECORDS CALLED

Minority election inspectors of 196 city and county districts today were ordered to deposit their records of Tuesday's voting with the returning board under court supervision.

The order was signed by Judge Elder W. Marshall on petition of Attorney Mayer Sniderman, representing C. M. Barr, Independent, apparently elected as County Commissioner on the face of unofficial returns. Marshall instructed Sniderman that he must arrange to serve the 196 subpenas and must arrange with the returning board, now compiling the official vote count, as to the time when the records will be presented to them.

129 CITY DISTRICTS

The districts included 129 from 12 city wards. Total of districts sought from boroughs included: Braddock, 8 districts; North Braddock, 9; McKees Rocks, 12; Homestead, 12; Millvale, 6; Etna, 5; Sharpsburg, 6; East Pittsburgh, 4, and City of McKeesport, 6.

Discrepancies found between the unofficial results gathered by Independent party workers and the official records in the Prothonotary's office caused the action, H. C. Workmaster explained. He was campaign manager for the Independent and Square Deal tickets.

One additional vote was reported found on the voting machines over the voters' check list of the First District, First Ward, according to Independent headquarters. The machines are reported by an overseer to have totaled 391 votes while the list revealed only 390.

Members of the election board of the Second District of the Fourth Ward, Mt. Lebanon, whose return sheet turned in to the prothonotary's office failed to record any votes for Barr, today declared they made a clerical error. Barr's total in the district, they said, was 238. The total will be shown when the official sheet is opened by the Returning Board, they say.

we are not good enough to keep it."

He believes a spiritual bond will hold the British race to England.

If many of the British people feel as depressed as that, they might sell the empire to the United States, or better, on long time credit to Canada.

In Canada are youth, energy, optimism, also in South Africa. An energetic builder would put Britain and her flag on which the sun never sets, back on top of the heap promptly.

HE WOULD IMITATE France and Russia, reducing the value of currency 80 per cent as France did, and say to foreign bondholders as Russia did:

"Sorry, but it is not convenient to pay."

He would have an air fleet of tens of thousands fighting machines to offset the 5,000-plane French fleet, make silver instead of gold the standard of value, leaving Uncle Sam and France to muse like two disappointed Fafners upon their gold accumulation.

Why don't the British let Beaverbrook try it? He is from Canada.

THOSE INTERESTED in French prosperity will be delighted to hear that yesterday the French Central Bank reported a gold reserve increased by $30,000,000 in the last week and established a new gold record.

In a month the United States has lost $100,000,000 in gold, most of it to France. If that happened too often, we might feel it.

FEARS OF ATOM BLAST SCOUTED

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—(INS.)—There is no danger that the tremendous power to be released through the shattering of an atom in electrical experiments at Round Hills, South Dartmouth, will result in disintegration of the world, Boston physicists declared today.

It has been a popular theory among so-called alarmists, said the Boston physicists, that if the energy of one shattered atom were released, it would cause other atoms to disintegrate progressively, affecting the entire earthly planet.

Describing this theory as "muddled thinking," the physicists pointed out that as much energy is needed to explode the atom as is contained in it.

Louis Piterski, 9, of 70 Holt street, South Side, a pupil of St. Peter's School, suffered a probable skull fracture and brain concussion when, police said, he ran into the path of an automobile driven by Miss Frances Trutwin, 23, of 2839 Arlington avenue, at Josephine and South Twenty-sixth streets today.

PINCHOT FILLS PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

Gruenberg's Appointment Brings Complete Board First Time in 6 Months

HARRISBURG, Nov. 6.—(AP)—With the appointment of Frederick P. Gruenberg, Philadelphia, to succeed James S. Benn, resigned, the Public Service Commission has its full membership of seven for the first time in six months.

Gruenberg, named yesterday by Gov. Pinchot, was formerly director of the Philadelphia bureau of municipal research, chairman of the governmental research conference of United States and Canada and a member of the 1917-19 citizens committee which obtained the new charter for Philadelphia. He was also a lecturer at Hobart College and a member of the faculty of the Pennsylvania School of Social and Health Work. He is widely known as a writer and lecturer on civic and economic subjects.

SECOND NAMED

He is the second Commissioner appointed by Gov. Pinchot, who had previously named George W. Woodruff, Berwyn, to succeed Charles H. Young, New Castle, whose term expired on July 1. The appointments of both Gruenberg and Woodruff are among those which will come before the Senate for confirmation during the special session of the General Assembly, which starts next week.

Subject to the action of the Senate, the appointments of the two new Commissioners represent the first two steps in the series by which Gov. Pinchot will be in position to appoint the majority of the seven Commissioners during his four-year term. The terms of two of the other Commissioners will expire during the next two years, that of Commissioner J. W. Brown, Lancaster, ending July 1, 1932, and that of Commissioner Emerson W. Collins, terminating July 1, 1933.

PRESENT PERSONNEL

The present personnel of the commission and the dates of expiration of their 10-year terms are:

W. D. B. Ainey, New Milford, chairman, July 1, 1937.

S. Ray Shelby, Uniontown, July 1, 1938.

Samuel Walker, Butler, July 1, 1939.

Emerson Collins, Williamsport, July 1, 1933.

J. W. Brown, Lancaster, July 1, 1932.

George W. Woodruff, Berwyn, July 1, 1941.

Frederick E. Gruenberg, Philadelphia, July 1, 1941.

Commissioner Benn, whom Gruenberg succeeds, was reappointed by former Gov. John S. Fisher last year, at the same time Commissioner Walker was reappointed. The Pinchot administration forces opposed the confirmation of the Fisher appointments when they came before the Senate during the 1931 General Assembly session, but both were approved.

Commissioner Benn, against whom the Pinchot followers had made their strongest fight, continued in office until May 13, when he announced his decision to retire.

Tobacco Men Score Pinchot Cigaret Tax

Tobacco dealers were up in arms today against the state tax on cigarets proposed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot as part of the program to be enacted by the Legislature at the special session meeting next week for the relief of the unemployed. In a letter received here, Charles Dushkind, of New York, managing director of the Tobacco Merchants' Association of the United States, declared the tax would injure the business of cigaret dealers, and inflict a hardship on the poor.

THE GREAT NEW TOYLAND . . . NINTH FLOOR

Going Around in Washington

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Senator Tom Heflin of Alabama is fully convinced he will soon again echo the corridors of the Capitol from the vantage point of membership in the United States Senate.

Tom was defeated for re-election last year by John H. Bankhead, Birmingham lawyer and state Democratic leader. Tom charged corruption and fraud and was so persistent in his accusations that the Senate finally directed an investigation. The committee is now formulating its report and Tom claims it will corroborate his charges.

Whatever the committee's report, the issue will go to the Senate floor for decision. The Senate is the sole judge of its membership and can unseat one claimant and give the place to another if a majority so decides. It did this several years ago in the case of Senator Brookhart.

The Governor of Iowa certified to the Senate that Brookhart had been elected. The count was very close. The Senate, after almost two years of committee inquiry, finally rejected Brookhart's claims and seated his Democratic opponent, Dave F. Steck. Brookhart was not to be outdone, however. He promptly returned to Iowa, ran against Senator Albert B. Cummings, Republican floor leader, and defeated him. This time there could be no question about Brookhart's right to his seat and he is a member of the Senate today.

While waiting for the Senate to return him to its rolls, Tom is earning an honest living, as he explains it, by lecturing. His subject is "America at the Cross-Roads." The cross-as Tom sees it-is the demon liquor traffic and Roman Catholic encroachment. He declares that business for him is brisk and that the depression has had no effect upon either zeal or numbers of his listeners.

His dress is as elaborate and novel as it ever was. A great black sombrero covers his massive head and a high white starched collar and stiff bosomed shirt cover his front. Around his middle is a large cream colored waistcoat with dangling mother-of-pearl buttons. In one pocket of this he carries a heavy gold watch with an almost fist-sized fob pendant.

His trousers are striped and his shoes swankily boast of patent leather. Over all this outer attire he wears a dark gray swallow tail coat of the old statesman variety, the tails running all the way 'round and straight up and down.

Bankhead having been certified by the state Governor is on the payroll of the Senate, although he has not been sworn in and will not be until Heflin's contest against him is settled. Bankhead also has a Senator's suite in the Senate Office Building. Tom had to give up his office rooms, but is allowed to have one chamber in which to conduct his fight against Bankhead. He does not, however, draw any pay. That stopped on March 4, last. His expenses in his contest will be recompensed by the Senate. This is the established custom in Congress.

As a former member Tom will have the privilege of the Senate floor and intends to take full advantage of that in carrying on his challenge of Bankhead. He cannot, of course, speak in his own behalf unless the Senate by suspension of the rules and by special motion should extend him that right. Tom won't say whether he will ask for that unusual privilege but there are some Senators who say they don't doubt that he will do so.

But whether he does or not the Senate looks forward to a battle royal. Tom may be vociferous but he is persistent, as the Senate will readily certify. And there are some Senators who say that it would be worth establishing a new precedent by allowing Tom to take the floor just to hear his speech.

TESTS OF AUTOS MEETING TOPIC

Details of the 1931 state automobile inspection campaign will be announced to owners and managers of nearly 500 official inspection garages and service stations Tuesday in Motor Square Garden, officials of the Pittsburgh Motor Club announced today.

Speakers will include Benjamin G. Eynon, state commissioner of motor vehicles, and William A. Reiter, assistant commissioner. C. A. Rehtmeyer, president of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, will preside.

Two inspections of all motor vehicle equipment will be compulsory next year, officials said, the first between January 1 and March 31. State highway police will patrol the roads between April 1 and June 30 and arrest drivers not showing the official approval stickers. The second inspection will be between July 1 and September 30, with checkups during the remainder of the year.

A new list of garages will be appointed in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County before January 1.

TRIPLE SLAYING RETRIAL RULED

SEBRING, Fla., Nov. 6.—(INS)—William Raymond Carver, of Stroudsburg, Pa., again must stand trial on charges of slaying his wife and 2-year-old son and a Negro employe here, April 2, 1930. Prosecuting Attorney Grady Burton announced yesterday.

Carver granted a new trial after being sentenced to life imprisonment, held high hopes the case against him would be nolle prossed because of the inaccessibility of two material witnesses, one dead, the other too ill to be brought here from Texas.

On a last-minute decision, however, Prosecutor Burton announced the state was ready to try Carver. A change of venue to De Soto County was granted. Bond was set at $15,000.

The girl is beautiful Muriel Window. "The Peacock Girl," whose name was as well-known a decade ago in the show business at Forty-second street and Broadway. She is also a well-known aviatrix.

Muriel is the estranged wife of Arthur S. Hanford, Jr., of Sioux City, Ia. Young Hanford, former Yale football star, is heir to the Hanford millions founded in the creamery business. He has been called Iowa's millionaire playboy.

Muriel told International News Service today in an exclusive interview:

"It was a wonderful romance while it lasted.

"But we've stopped loving each other and I am going back to my first love—the stage."

There is another reason.

When Muriel left the Hanford country estate near Sioux City with its private airport, golf links, swimming pool, stables and dog kennels, she began a suit for separate maintenance. The matter is tied up in the Iowa courts. She said cheerfully:

"I'm flat broke. So I have to go back to work."

Muriel Window's marriage to Young Hanford made the front pages 10 years ago. She explained:

"Arthur made me give up the stage. I didn't care because I wanted a home. I became completely domesticated and forgot the stage except for occasional visits from Ethel Barrymore, Harry Lander, Chick Sales, Kitty Gordon and others of the old gang. And once in a while I would give my act at a function of the Junior League of which I am a member.

"I took up flying—I believe I was the first woman in Iowa to fly her own plane. Arthur was envious when he came back from a trip and found it out. Then he took up aviation and I didn't see him so often. I got him to build an airport for us. We had 10 planes.

"Well, it was a lot of fun up to about a year or so—then things began to happen and we fell out of love. So I'm back where I started."

Drink Ruins Man, Widow Wins Pay From Saloonists

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—A jury ordered Mr. and Mrs. Frank Krzysztoff to pay $3,650 damages to Mrs. Sebastian Murzyn for the death of her husband who, evidence showed, committed suicide while despondent after squandering his wages for seven years in their saloon.

The jury decided the Krzysztoffs had deprived Mrs. Murzyn and her four children of support by selling liquor to Murzyn.

M'ADOO ASSAILS HOOVER ACTS DURING WAR

Book Asserts Food Shortage Story Alarmed U. S.; Tells Of 'Schoolboy' Demeanor

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover is criticized for having "greatly alarmed" the country during the war by "dire prophecies" of a food shortage in an autobiography of William G. McAdoo, Democratic Secretary of the Treasury from 1913 to 1918.

The son-in-law of the late Woodrow Wilson, in a book being published today which he calls "Crowded Years," also says of Mr. Hoover:

"His chief distinction had been acquired in distributing free food to the Belgian people in 1915 and 1916—a celebrity easily won, I fancy, as I judge from long observation that the job of giving away things requires very little wear and tear on one's ability.

"After this accomplishment Hoover was appointed Federal Food Administrator by the President, and that started him on his road to the White House."

CHARGES FACTS SUPPRESSED

In another reference to Mr. Hoover, McAdoo tells how the administration during 1918 was keeping from the public, "for fear of its effect on the morale of the Allies," the fact that there was only a two weeks' supply of food left in England and that rations had been reduced all over Europe. McAdoo writes:

"About the time conditions began to improve, through the work of the railroad administration, Hoover gave an astonishing interview."

In it, McAdoo says Mr. Hoover declared the shortage was extremely serious and blamed the railroads. McAdoo continues:

"At that time the railroad administration (of which McAdoo was the head) had the matter well in hand, and the problem was being solved rapidly. Hoover must have known of this, as he had every opportunity to be well informed."

After declaring the interview alarmed the country, McAdoo says:

"No doubt his (Hoover's) statement was promptly communicated to Germany, through the secret news service of our enemies, and gave comfort to their waning hopes."

DESCRIBES HOOVER VISIT

Then he relates that after an unsatisfactory exchange of communications, Mr. Hoover appeared at his office with "his legal adviser, Mr. Glasgow, of Philadelphia." McAdoo writes:

"Glasgow did all the talking. Hoover sat with downcast eyes, like a diffident schoolboy. Beyond the greeting when he came in and his good-bye, I do not recall that he had anything to say. Glasgow told me, on Hoover's behalf, that Mr. Hoover regretted his statement."

McAdoo says he told the attorney Mr. Hoover should make his complaints to the proper authorities and not to the public, continuing:

"Mr. Glasgow said, while Mr. Hoover made a minute examination of the floor, that Mr. Hoover would do that in the future. Mr. Glasgow finished his say, Mr. Hoover completed his inspection of the floor, and they took their departure."

The book describes the late Warren G. Harding's Senate speeches as "an army of pompous phrases moving over the landscape in search of an idea."

McAdoo takes a firm stand against cancellation of the debts.

At the local Baltimore and Ohio Railroad offices it was said the notice to discontinue service had not been received here.

Four Wise Broadway Boys

ON A RECENT weekday, four smart gentlemen of Broadway sat around in an office and discussed various ways and means of making some easy money. I call them smart gentlemen, as Artie Hitchman can tell you, because they know all of the Broadway angles. And when you understand angles on the big street, you are immediately labeled wise.

All of these gentlemen are, by profession, ticket speculators. Not big shots in the game, you understand. Just four nice boys who know there is good money in judicious ticket speculation. Just four wise Broadway boys.

"Yes, pal," mused one. "Times sure are tough right now. In days gone by, smart mugs like us could always clip a coupla bucks when we needed them. If the speculation game wasn't clicking, there was always something else. But now what? Even if you had a good idea, who you gonna clip?"

The other man nodded. There was silence for a moment. Suddenly the smallest of the four grabbed a paper that had been lying before him.

"Get a load of this, fellers," he chirped. "Maybe it might suggest something to you. It says here where there's goin' to be a big society horse racin' meet out in Far Hills, N. J., on Saturday. All the big shots is goin' to be there."

One of his pals wrinkled his brow.

"What are you talking about, Shorty?" he inquired. "Where's the idea about that? How are you going to pick up any dough around a society racing meet? Have you gone daffy?"

Shorty smiled a superior smile.

"Did you ever stop to figure out," he questioned, "that where there's a racin' meet, there's always dough to be got? Even if it's all society, they like to bet, don't they? That's human, ain't it?

"Well," Shorty went on, "what's to prevent us from takin' advantage of somethin' that fate has tossed right into our laps? I don't know how far it is to Far Hills, but it can't be too far for us to make the jump.

"It's a cinch that none of the regular bookies is goin' to think of this racket. We'll have the field all to ourselves. We simply blow in a coupla hours before the meet starts, look over the ground and let the folks know that we are genuine New York bookmakers who have come down to give the society affair a little class.

"It's gonna be a slow Saturday afternoon in New York anyhow, and the chances for a buck or two by sidewalk speculation is gonna be few and far between. What have we to lose by tryin' my idea?"

Two of the boys agreed with Shorty by the simple expedient of wagging their heads. But the third was more cautious.

"It's not a bad thought, Shorty," he offeerd, "but how about our starting capital? If the first race goes bad, we got to have some dough to pay off. How about that?"

No question was too much for Shorty's unlimited enthusiasm.

"A cinch," he returned. "We can all just about stand a $25 chip-in, and that's all we're gonna need. But we ain't gonna lose that, you understand. Not on your lives. It's just a little insurance in case anythin' goes wrong. It's just a little somethin' to flash around.

"While I been talkin', I been figurin'. We got a cinch proposition in this thing. If we win the first race, we collect immediately. If we lose, we tell the mugs we pay off after the last race. If we happen to be on the wrong end before the last race, let them try and catch us.

"It's a pipe, I tell you. Besides, it says right here in the paper that the people is all comin' from society. Now, I ask you, what can them dopes know?"

The last argument clinched the sale. The boys agreed to dig up $25 each and embark on the venture. You must admit it looked promising. Especially with four wise Broadway boys . . .

On the morning of the day in question the four men met at the ungodly hour of 8:15 and took the ferry to Hoboken, N. J. The train for Far Hills did not leave until 9:05, and the boys found themselves with 25 minutes on their hands. They didn't like this method of travel—but it was the only way they knew of to get to Far Hills. So there they were. In the good, old city of Hoboken.

Shorty glanced at his watch.

"Fellers," he observed, "it's a lucky thing we got some time to spare because we forgot somethin'. You know what? We gotta have some of them pads that the bookies use. Otherwise how we gonna take bets? I'm gonna look round for a stationery store."

And so it was arranged. Fred and George were to remain in the station while Shorty and Harry were to buy the pads. The latter men walked two blocks before they arrived at a store that looked as though it might have the article that was wanted.

Shorty tried the door. It was locked. Harry pushed against it. Still locked. Shorty pounded at the door while Harry jiggled the lock. Shorty was disgusted.

"Aint' this awful?" he complained. "We've only got a few minutes to catch the train, and this bum ain't opened his store yet. What do you know about that? Wouldn't you think a guy would have more consideration? Wouldn't you—"

He never did complete that sentence. A police car came to a halt at the curb, and four officers leaped out.

"We've been watching you," growled the leader. "Trying to rob this store, are you? Think you can get away with it, do you? Come on along with us."

Shorty attempted to explain.

"You got us all wrong, boys," he said. "This feller and I ain't crooks. We're business men over in New York. We was just goin' to take the train for Far Hills for the race meet this afternoon. Sure. Why, we even got our two other pals waitin' for us in the station."

The leader pushed Shorty into the back of the car.

"You have, have you?" he muttered nastily. "Well, we'll just pay them a little visit, too. I don't like the looks of you fellows. It seems to me I once had you in some previous case. Oh, there's no use denying it. We'll soon find out. By the way, how much dough you got on you?"

Shorty swallowed hard and produced the $100 that the four men had struggled to get together. The leader immediately notified Shorty that he didn't look like a man who should be carrying around $100, and that he must have stolen it. The more that Shorty protested, the worse he involved himself.

Well, to make a long story just a little more merciful, the policemen picked up the other two men and then placed the four of them in a cell. They were subjected to a severe grilling and finally released exactly 13 hours later. But with the release went Shorty's $100. Each man was fined $25 for loitering!

Just four, wise Broadway boys—who are now a little wiser . . .

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Nov. 6 (INS.) — Demand for the modification of the prohibition laws immediately and the ultimate repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment will be made at the annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Hotelmen's Association, which convened at the Penn-Stroud Hotel here today.

A referendum of the various members taken prior to the calling of the two-day conference showed 517 members in favor of modification and repeal and only 18 opposed.

SLEUTH SLAYER FACES 2D TRIAL

SMETHPORT, Pa., Nov. 6 (INS.) — Arguments in the appeal of Tony Lorenzo, of Bradford, convicted of murder in the second degree for the killing of County Detective Al Ritchie, will be heard before Judge Robert Lewis here tomorrow, court attaches announced today.

Monday Lorenzo will go on trial for the murder of Tony Maccio, fatally wounded by the same bullets which took Ritchie's life. The leaden slugs drilled through Ritchie's body and struck Maccio, who was seated beside him in the detective's automobile.

It was expected that Lorenzo's attorneys would plead former jeopardy in the second case, contending that the same bullet which killed Maccio also killed Ritchie and that their client has already been found guilty of that murder.

TWO ROBBERY SUSPECTS CAUGHT

Millvale Policeman Gets Pair After Chase; Three Men Slugged in Streets

Patrolman Archie Fruth, of Millvale, captured two youthful bandit suspects early today after a short chase as Pittsburgh police sought thugs and highwaymen who slugged three men. One victim, 71, was felled as he was about to enter Pittsburgh Hospital.

Believed implicated in the robbery of a confectionery store of Elmer Wilson, Grant avenue, Millvale, Peter McNight, 22, of 170 Cotton way, Lawrenceville, and Don Nour, 21, of 1005 Vinial street, Troy Hill, were under arrest in Millvale. Police said they found a cash register containing $20 in the machine in which they attempted to escape. A third youth fled at the approach of the police. The machine, believed stolen, was identified as the property of Benjamin Cherry, of 174 Thirty-eighth street.

HIT OLD MAN

Police today were searching for two thugs who slugged James Lawless, 71, of 7331 Hermitage street, last night as he was entering the Pittsburgh Hospital to see his wife, Mrs. Katherine Lawless.

Suffering from shock and cuts and bruises on the face, the aged man walked into the hospital for assistance. He told police he was seized by two men in front of the hospital.

One of his assailants, he told police, held him tightly, and the other, failing to find money, struck him over the head. Both men fled as Lawless called for assistance.

RESTAURANT MAN BEATEN

Announcing that "We're from Detroit," three men entered the Liberty Restaurant at 923 Federal street, early today, slugged Louis Hampers, proprietor, and fled after Marie Nochelle, a waitress, ran into the street screaming for help, according to a police report.

An hour later a police radio car crew arrested Russell Arras, 25, of 832 Liverpool street, James Laventi, 25, of 817 East street, and William Yeske, 24, of 834 Phineas street, as suspects. They were held in North Side Police Station on suspicious person charges.

PEDESTRIAN ATTACKED

Morris Kalson, of 533 North Beatty street, reported to police last night that he was held up, slugged and robbed of $35 while walking in Margaretta street, near Beatty street. He suffered slight head bruises.

John H. Daly, of 1621 Princess street, reported to detectives last night that during his absence thieves entered his home by forcing a rear transom and stole jewelry valued at $600 and $150 in cash.

LIFE GIVEN MAN HELD INNOCENT

LANSING, Kan., Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Convicted on his plea of guilty, Linvil C. Boswell is serving a life term in Kansas State Prison here for a murder officers believe he did not commit.

But, because of his plea, officials are reluctant to consider the matter further, and today none professed intention to intervene.

Boswell's incarceration came to public attention yesterday with a request of L. T. Cochran, former Sterling, Col., policeman, for an investigation. Cochran addressed a letter to the warden of the state prison and to Gov. Harry M. Woodring.

He explained he just received acknowledgement from Boswell of the receipt of affidavits from four Sterling citizens, who said the prisoner was in Colorado, August 24, 1926, the day Jesse F. Laster, Joplin, Mo., chief of detectives, was slain in Cherokee County, Kan. Boswell pleaded guilty to the slaying of Laster.

Curious Crowd Views Mother, Slain Babes

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Several thousand persons last night passed through the undertaking establishment where lay the bodies of 21-year-old Mrs. Anna Nathan and her three babies. The mother committed suicide Tuesday, after killing the three children, the oldest not quite 5. Her husband had been without steady employment for more than a year.

Dentist Denies Guilt At Death Hearing

RENO, Nev., Nov. 6.—(INS.)—Dr. Carl P. Andre, Fairmont, W. Va., dentist, entered a plea of not guilty to charges of murdering Martha Hutchinson, also of Fairmont, when he was arraigned in Superior Court here. Judge Thomas F. Moran set the trial by jury for December 15.

Andre was charged with pushing the woman out of his moving car, causing her death. He claims she fell out.

Two Sisters Benefit In $23,500 Estate

WOMAN'S WILL AIDS CHARITY

The bulk of the $45,000 estate of Elida A. S. Kauffeld of the South Side was left to charity under her will probated in the Register's office.

The Old Ladies' G. A. R. Home, Hawkins Station; the German Evangelical Church of Birmingham, South Side; the German Evangelical Protestant Home at Fair Oaks and the German Evangelical Protestant Orphanage, Pauline and West Liberty avenues, were each left $5,000 and share the remainder of the estate after a few bequests to relatives of from $100 to $5,000 [illegible]. Paul Pfaff, Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, was named executor.

The Pleasant Unity Presbyterian Church, near Tarentum, was left a savings fund, the amount not stated, by Joseph L. Catherwood, of Gibsonia, whose will disposed of a $17,000 estate, with the remainder to three children.

Mrs. Marie Dixie Gallupe, of 303 Coltart street, left her $14,000 estate to her husband, Samuel G. Gallupe.

TRAFFIC DISCS REPLACE PAINT

Installation of several thousand aluminum street crossing markers has been completed by the city Bureau of Traffic Planning Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre announced today.

The markers, installed in brick and asphalt roating of scores of streets throughout the downtown and other sections of the city, are much more efficient than the yellow paint formerly used, McIntyre said, adding:

"When we used paint as marker indicators for pedestrian traffic across streets, it was necessary to touch the lines up every two weeks or so. This amounted to a considerable expense. With the aluminum inserts, oval-shaped and easily discernible, this is eliminated. Tests have shown the markers last from two to three years."

Each insert costs 26 cents. Cost of installation is estimated at 9 cents. From 100 to 150 are used at each intersection, according to McIntyre.

HUNTER SHOT, SUES COMRADE

Alleging his hunting companion shot him in the face when a rabbit ran between them, Louis Posch, 877 Railroad street, McKees Rocks, filed suit in Common Pleas Court against John Winkler, 107 Ella street, McKees Rocks, asking $20,000 damages for injuries.

The two, accompanied by four others, formed a party to hunt rabbits November 15, 1930, on the farm of John Bednik, in Robinson Township, and they were spread out in a skirmish line in approved hunting fashion with Winkler 150 feet in the rear, when a rabbit ran between Posch and Winkler, the suit averred.

Winkler fired his shotgun directly at Posch as the rabbit ran behind Posch and as Posch turned the charge struck him in the face, resulting in the loss of his right eye and disfiguring his face, he charged.

Ask Your Druggist What to Do for Varicose Veins

Your druggist will tell you:

"Rub the surface gently towards the body with Moone's Emerald Oil. Makes your leg feel better even while you're doing it, and in most cases often brings surprising relief.

"Then bind your leg with a bandage three inches wide and long enough to give the necessary support. Start winding the bandage from the ankle upwards, that's the way the blood flows in the veins.

"Any veins broken? Any ulcers? Emerald Oil will heal them right up. Make your leg as good as new. It doesn't stain, so you needn't be afraid of getting it on your clothes.

"If Moone's Emerald Oil doesn't help you more than anything else you've ever tried, just bring it back and he'll gladly return your money."

NEW M'DONALD CABINET HAILED

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The new British cabinet of 20 members, headed by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, will receive the seals of office from the hands of King George V on Monday when the British monarch is to receive them and the retiring ministers in Buckingham Palace.

The men chosen to steer the British ship of state through the rough waters of the present world-wide economic storm make up "one of the strongest cabinets of modern times," the Daily Mail declares editorially today.

The Morning Telegraph says the new government is a "truly national cabinet." The Manchester Guardian, leading Liberal organ of the country, congratulates MacDonald on assembling a national cabinet, but adds a warning that the Conservative majority may try to force his hand.

It is not thought in the best informed political circles here that the new cabinet will make any immediate attempt to stabilize or peg the pound, but will for the time being allow it to find its own level through the normal working of economic law.

CANNON PLEA WITHDRAWN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(AP.) Counsel for Bishop James Cannon, Jr., has withdrawn an appeal for a writ of prohibition against the Senate Campaign Funds Committee investigation into his political activities.

The writ was denied by the District of Columbia Supreme Court, and the Senate committee immediately completed its inquiry.

Cannon called upon his counsel to appeal the case against the Senate committee, but it was learned today that as soon as the action was filed it was withdrawn by his attorneys.

The Southern Methodist churchman had challenged the jurisdiction of the Senate committee.

He is making the same complaint now against the grand jury that indicted him recently on charges of violating the corrupt practices law.

DEFEND WIDOW IN SLAYING

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(INS.)—Mrs. Amy Conlin, 37-year-old widow of the man she is accused of murdering with her 23-year-old "gigolo" sweetheart, James Pembrock Depew, was painted by defense attorneys today as a "mother to the boy."

Her trial, getting under way today before County Judge Frank Adel in Queens Court, attracted hundreds of spectators, including many women.

District Attorney James J. Conroy charged that Mrs. Colin wired Depew $50 after the murder, but this, her attorney explained, was money Mrs. Conlan had saved for him from his own earnings.

Charges that Mrs. Conlin and the youth killed her husband, John, in order to rob him of money for her divorce was set aside by her attorney as preposterous, because two days before Conlin's death he had given her $200 to settle a liquor bill.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Today brings an important event in the social world—the first debut party of the autumn. Lois Tack was to have been presented yesterday, but her party was postponed because of illness.

The first debutante to make her bow this autumn is charming Nancy Jane Longenecker, daughter of the Charles Longeneckers, of Maryland avenue. Her mother is presenting her at a luncheon today in the Twentieth Century Club.

Autumn flowers are used in decorating the one long table, centered by mounds of colorful fruit. Covers are laid for about 40.

Gown Is of Crepe

The debutante is wearing an interesting gown of Spanish tile crepe with cavalier sleeves trimmed in lace and with a long skirt flared from the hips. And in keeping the one-sided vogue lace outlines only half the V-neckline. Her hat is of black velvet, and she is carrying different gift bouquets.

Mrs. Longenecker has chosen a black crepe gown trimmed in turquoise blue and a black chenille hat.

Some time ago I mentioned that the Woman's Exchange would have both an entertainment for children and a card party for the grownups at the annual sale November 24. And now I'm told that the entertainment for the boys and girls will be a circus. By the way, prices for tables for bridge have been reduced.

To Make Debut

Eleanor Schuyler Mann, elder daughter of the Rt. Rev. and Mrs. Alexander Mann, will arrive home on December 19 from the Boston Art School where she's been studying for several years. And her parents have decided to present her together with their daughter Margaret Mann, whose debut date has been set for December 21. The Manns will give a tea dance for their daughters in the Longue Vue Country Club that afternoon. So the list of girls making debuts here will now number 20.

Margaret Brill, daughter of the A. P. Brills, will come home today from New York, where she's studying at the French School and continue her harp studies with Salzedo.

* * *

Mrs. Taylor Allderdice will be hostess at a morning musicale in her home next Friday at 11 o'clock.

Club Members Don Old Duds for Poverty Party

Outmoded and outworn clothes were fashionable once again when the Woman's City Club gave its poverty party last night. Furs that had seen better days (many days), stockings with runners and holes in them, and patched garments were worn by the guests, among whom were a number of men. Even the cover charge of 29 cents was in keeping, and the supper of coffee and doughnuts the same. Candles standing in broken cups were the only decorations on the tables that were laid with old-fashioned red and blue checked cloths.

The prizes were baskets of fruits, cartons of soap and other articles of equally original choice.

Women Will Be Ushers At British-Pitt Debate

Members of the Women's Debating Association will serve as ushers tomorrow night at the international debate between the Universities of Nottingham and Durham, England, and the University of Pittsburgh, which the American Association of University Women and the National Students' Federation is sponsoring. The debate, which will be held in Schenley High School auditorium, will be on "Resolved: That the dole system is a better method than the charity system by which to meet the unemployment problem."

Betrothal of Canadian Girl Announced at Bridge

Mrs. Margaret S. Herring, of South Negley avenue, entertained with a bridge luncheon yesterday in her home at which announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Georgia Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Robinson, of Toronto, Canada, to Carroll V. Hill, son of Ernest V. Hill, of Worcester, Mass. Miss Robinson is the house guest of Mrs. Charles W. Williams, of Clayborne street.

Hadassah Delegates Going to Zionist Meet

Pittsburgh will be represented by 10 delegates at the seventeenth annual convention at Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America, which will be held in Atlantic City November 8 to 12.

Hadassah, its aims and accomplishments in health and social service work in Palestine, will be the theme sermons in many synagogues and temples over this week-end.

Stores Pledge Gift To Relief Fund

Five per cent of the gross receipts of the United Cigar Stores and the Whalen Drug Stores for tomorrow will be distributed to the Unemployment Relief Fund, H. Davis, district sales manager of the United Cigar Stores, said today.

Miss Stafford Married to H. M. Hurst

Miss Beatrice Edythe Stafford, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Stafford, of Jancey street, East End, became the bride of Harry M. Hurst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hurst, of Noble street, Shadyside, at a quiet ceremony Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the chapel of Calvary Episcopal Church. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. E. J. Van Etten.

The bride wore a green traveling ensemble, with a corsage of yellow roses and lilies of the valley. After the ceremony, Mr. Hurst and his bride left for a motor trip to Washington. They will reside in Dormont after November 10.

ROLVAAG, NOTED WRITER, DIES

NORTHFIELD, Minn., Nov. 6. (AP.)—O. E. Rolvaag, noted novelist, and for more than 20 years a professor at St. Olaf College here, died suddenly yesterday from a heart attack.

Prof. Rolvaag's novels, written in Norwegian on northwest themes, were published in Norway and were rated as "best sellers" in that country. One of his best known writings was "Giants In the Earth," which told of pioneer days in South Dakota where Rolvaag moved when he came to this country.

In 1926 Rolvaag, who was born in Norway, was made a Knight of St. Olaf by King Haakon of Norway. He retired from St. Olaf College last August to devote his time to writing.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Nov. 6. (AP.)—The salary scale of southern universities was criticized by Edwin R. Embree, of Chicago, president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, in an address at the opening session of the conference of southern educators. He said:

"Not a single university in the whole South is in a class with a score in the North and West in intellectual output and distinction of faculty."

NEWEST VOGUE IN SMART MILLINERY

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—The hats that boldly take a dip are swimming in the sea of success. Really, women should be awfully grateful to the designer who first cut a brim so that it swooped down over one eye and then turned up sharply at the opposite side. It is an irresistibly youthful line and so, if we are wise, we will insist that it remain with us for some time. In fact, it should become standard equipment.

MARIA GUY has just shown a small but highly distinguished collection for the Parisiennes who number themselves amongst the most faithful and appreciative of her clientele. Herewith is a sketch of a model presented at this showing. This most successful hat is of bright empire green felt of a very light and flexible texture. It has a low crown which is in two overlapping sections, and there is a soft, rolled brim that dips down jauntily over the eye and then turns sharply up again. It must be the attractive, youthful line of this hat that accounts for its huge success, don't you think? At the left back of the crown, posed rather high, is a tiny green feather ornament consisting of two curling, short feather and a diminutive brush.

STOWE BOMBING RULING HELD UP

Alderman Thomas Flanigan today reserved his decision in the case of Patsy Vallestia of Fresh avenue, Stowe Township, arraigned in connection with the bombing early Monday of the home and grocery store of Louis DeCicco at 103 Highland avenue, Stowe Township. Although the charge of bombing had been brought against the prisoner by County Detective Chief George W. Murren, no evidence was introduced to link him with the actual dynamiting of the place.

Josephine DeCicco, daughter of the storekeeper and Republican chairwoman of the First District of the township, pointed Vallestia out in the courtroom as the man who had threatened her last week unless she changed her political affiliations. Vallestia she said did not state what would happen to her if his directions were not carried out.

The storekeeper, his wife, Angela DeCicco, and her aged father, Vincent Zercinzilia, also identified Vallestia as having been seen "hanging" about their home. Alderman Flanigan then announced that he would render his decision tomorrow.

G. O. P. HOUSE MEMBER DIES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 6—(AP)—Representative Harry M. Wurzbach, Republican, died in a hospital here at 2:20 o'clock this morning as a result of complications following an operation for appendicitis.

Wurzbach's home was in Seguin. He represented the Fourteenth Texas congressional district, in which San Antonio is located. He was the only Republican member of Congress from Texas.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—The death of Representative Wurzbach, only Republican member of the House from Texas, strengthened the probability of Democratic organization of the House next month.

With the Texan's passing, the lineup today stood: Democrats, 217; Republicans, 214; Farmer-Labor, 1; vacancies, 3.

The death of Wurzbach, who would have begun his sixth consecutive term next month had he lived, was the fourteenth among members of the new House, evenly divided among the two parties.

Police Guard Volpe Foes in Wilmerding

WATER CONTRACT VOIDING DEMANDED

TRAPPED AND RESCUER

14, Caught in Mine, Dug Out by Playmates

WILLIAM DETLINGER, 14 NICHOLAS SCHIFFAUER

William, Park Wood road, pictured after his return from South Side Hospital at the site of the accident in which he was buried by a landslide into a 10-foot pit near Dawes street, Mt. Oliver, while he and others were digging coal. Nicholas and other playmates dug him out. He had been completely covered by the slide.

DEFEATED BOSS DENIES BLAME IN OUTBREAK

Troopers Establish Station In Town Until Danger of New Attacks Subsides

A temporary sub-station of the state police was established in Wilmerding today to protect homes and business places of Independent voters against a recurrence of yesterday's violence which followed defeat of the Volpe faction.

Three troopers were assigned to patrol the district. They will be kept on duty, it was learned, as long as may be necessary to guard against outbreaks such as that which led to stoning of three places yesterday.

They were patroling between the homes of Edgar Donaldson, S. L. Smith and S. Howard Smith, appointed as election officials by Judge James H. Gray, following the removal of the board whose members had been indicted by the grand jury in election irregularities, and those of the victims of yesterday's stoning.

FEAR THUG ATTACKS

The new election board finished counting the ballots late yesterday, and Independent officials asked for state police to prevent them from being attacked by thugs. The troopers remained on duty during the night, but the anticipated trouble did not materialize. They were to continue their vigil today.

John Volpe, leader of the faction dominant in Wilmerding politics for many years, denied that his organization was responsible for the stoning of the Independent voters' homes. He promised to aid in arresting the thugs, declaring that they "have done the Volpes more harm than good."

SATISFIED WITH VOTE

Volpe said he was satisfied with the outcome of the election and added:

"I want to see just what will occur in the next two years.

"All the intimidation of voters that occurred in Wilmerding was due to the Westinghouse people, where foremen told their men that unless they opposed the Volpes they would not have their jobs. As far as stoning houses is concerned, all I have to say is that we would not be small enough to use such small practices.

"If we were going to go in for anything like that we would have chosen something big instead of acting like a gang of schoolboys. I am just as anxious as the Westinghouse people to find out who is responsible and when I find the people who threw those stones I will turn them over to the District Attorney and will show them no mercy because they have done the Volpes more harm than good."

THREE PLACES STONED

A store, a barber shop and a home were stoned early yesterday. Theodore Uzelac, of 148 Watkins avenue, said to have been an independent worker, found a window in his grocery store shattered by a brick. A short time later Uzelac's son-in-law at 1 Shaw avenue was awakened by the crash of glass. Going to his barber shop, Milos Milasinevich, of 173 Watkins avenue, found windows broken. S. Howard Smith, an Election Board official, found all of the tires of his automobile punctured.

EMPLOYE GROUP IN FUND DRIVE TO MEET

Rally Tonight Will Climax Plans Of Division For Welfare-Emergency Plea

Workers in the employe division of the two-weeks' campaign of the Welfare Fund and Allegheny County Emergency Association will climax their preparations with a rally tonight in the Fort Pitt Hotel. The drive will open Monday.

Speakers tonight will include the Rev. Dr. G. Wallace Petty, pastor of the First Baptist Church, whose topic will be "Pittsburgh Tackles Its Biggest Job," and Frank R. Phillips and Joseph Dilworth, leaders in the drive. William E. Quinby, division chairman, will preside. Music will be furnished by the 28-piece band of the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh. Boy Scouts will act as ushers.

Eight thousand volunteers will canvass corporations, downtown business offices and individuals in an effort to raise $5,981,184 before November 24. Separate campaigns will be conducted in the larger suburban communities under C. W. Head.

Revised estimates indicate there are now more than 125,000 unemployed men in Allegheny County. This figure does not include those working half-time or less, officials said.

COMMERCE BODY CHARGES HUGE LOSS TO CITY

Taxpayers to Pay $400,000 In 1932; Burden Held To Be Unfair to Public

Charging that the agreement between the city of Pittsburgh and the South Pittsburgh Water Company whereby the city pays from its treasury the difference between the city water rates and the higher rates of the water company, is illegal and will cost the taxpayers approximately $400,000 for 1932, the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce today demanded abrogation of the contract.

The Pittsburgh chamber in the action taken by its board of directors, stated:

"Such an arrangement is a subsidy to the consumers of the South Pittsburgh Water Company within the limits of the city at the expense of the taxpayers at large. It is beyond the authority of the city of Pittsburgh to execute and carry out the terms of the contract."

It was brought out by the board of directors that during the fiscal year ending December 31, 1930, the city paid the water company $533,619.92 and collected from the consumers $222,349.20, which made the city's loss $311,270.72. The general taxpayer in the city paid for that deficit.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, when asked for his opinion on the contract said that he would be unable to officially give an opinion until he had carefully gone over the records at the instruction of City Council. However, he said he believed that there was nothing illegal in the contract.

LONG TERM CONTRACT

The contract which covers the purchase by the city of water furnished by the South Pittsburgh Water Company, recorded in ordinance book, No. 40, Page 639, became effective January 1, 1929, and terminates on September 31, 1938.

It provides that the city shall pay the company for water supplied to various consumers within the city limits, the charge to each consumer to be arrived at by the application of the schedule of rates and readiness-to-serve charges of the water company. The city pays the water company the total cost of this service less a discount of 5 per cent for payment within 30 days after billing. The water is resold by the city to consumers at the cost of city water, which is much lower than that of the South Pittsburgh corporation. In addition, the city pays the water company $72.50 per year for each fire hydrant installed while the contract is in effect.

The chamber says in reference to the resale method:

"This method of billing is causing a draft on the general tax funds of the city."

COST TO INCREASE

In the city budget for the year 1931, a fund of $360,000, with an additional sum of $20,000 to cover the deficit existing from 1930, was set up to take care of the cost of this agreement with the water company. Due to the building developments in the South Hills, the annual charges and loss to the city can be expected to increase, according to the chamber.

The South Pittsburgh Water Company is a subsidiary of the American Water Works and Electric Company of New York, a national utility holding company.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

KINGSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 6.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Down on the great King ranch, biggest in the whole Southwest, and I did my best acting trying to look and act like a cowboy on Bob Kleberg's best cutting horse — and hanging on by my teeth. Both Kleberg girls dragged calves up the fire faster than I ever could. This is a real outfit. If you think there ain't any more real cowboys in this country you're crazy. Flew down here with the Flying Laphams and Frank Hawks. Mother Lapham flying her own plane; Papa Lapham his; Baby Lapham his; each Lapham servant their own.

Many a Brick In Brickyard Of Our Mabel

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Looks like the tasty wine brick is a violation of the Instates Comics Commission.

Mabel Willebrandt is the lawyer for the company that borrowed the money from the Farm Board to make the grape concentrates that made the wine bricks.

The total was only $3,500,000. The firm was feeling its way along a million at a time.

You all remember Mabel. She was on the prohibition angle of the situation until she noticed the other side of it.

Not that there is anything wrong about a grape. Or even a raisin. They are perfectly legal until you dip them in water and fan them with your hat.

And while Mabel has agreed with the government over stopping the manufacture of wine in brick form she hasn't promised that she wouldn't make 'em like crullers.

The matter never reached the courts. It proves that the best way to cure a toothache is to ring the dentist's doorbell.

WALL REMOVAL ORDERED BY COURT

King Edward Apartment Encroachment Chiseling Confined to Own Property

Chiseling of several inches from one of the walls of the new King Edward Apartment, Craig and Bayard streets, was ordered to proceed from the apartment property by Judge Joseph Stadtfeld yesterday.

Attorney John H. Lauer and his wife Anna A. Lauer, upon whose property the wall encroached, previously had prevented the wall removal by an injunction.

When it was discovered early in 1930 that the wall encroached the Lauer property an effort was made to chisel the wall during a Sunday recess of the court. The wall was chiseled down to the third floor by means of swinging ladders.

At the opening of court Lauer obtained an injunction stopping the removal. Lauer then obtained an injunction ordering the removal of the wall and the order signed yesterday directed that the work be done from the apartment property.

SHAFT ERECTED TO BRADY PAUL

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 6.—(AP.)—The memory of Corp. Brady Paul was perpetuated in marble by his comrades yesterday at the spot where he was killed in action while upholding his oath as a defender of the highways.

The scene was the New Castle-Butler highway and the slayers were fleeing from a Butler robbery. Paul and a companion officer, Ernest Moore blocked their flight. Moore was wounded.

A simple ceremony marked unveiling of the memorial tablet. The Rev. Dr. H. C. Weaver, Methodist Episcopal pastor, delivered an address and a salute was fired over the market by highway patrolmen.

Capt. P. E. Doerr, Harrisburg, had charge of the dedication. Several hundred persons were present.

Dressler and Moran to Star In New Laugh Picture, Titled 'Prosperity'

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6.

In times like these, motion picture fans can stand plenty of comedies.

It ought to be good news, then, that Marie Dressler and Polly Moran are shortly to co-star in another of their laugh-fests, "Prosperity." Zelda Sears, who has been occupied chiefly of late doctoring other people's scripts, will get full credit for this original story.

While the production date naturally hinges on Marie Dressler's state of health, plans are being made for the picture to start soon after the star completes "Emma." By this time Polly Moran will have returned from her personal appearance tour in the East.

Leo McCarey, who has had some trouble settling down to a directorial assignment at M. G. M., will megaphone "Prosperity."

Still come the echoes of Jimmy Durante's fishing trip.

A postcard to W. S. Van Dyke says:

"Having fish dinner every night.

"P. S.—But the wife and I are getting awfully tired of sardines."

MORE GOSSIP

All stories to the contrary, Ina Claire is still in Hollywood, or was when this was written. Samuel Barrymore Colt, son of Ethel Barrymore, is learning about studio surgeon. He got quite a shock the other day when a cameraman calmly announced: "We'll have to beat up Colt. His face is flat." Translated, this means insufficient lighting. . . . Vivian Duncan tells me Sister Rosetta is on her way to the Coast and the two of them will sign the contract to revive "Topsy and Eva" for Henry Duffy. Niles Asther still waits for that M. G. M. assignment. . . Marjorie White is headed East for vaudeville. Esther Ralston is another who will do personal appearances. . . Saw Walter Hiers at Levy's Tavern in Hollywood. . . . Also Claudette Colbert and Norman Foster. . . . Bartlett Cormack has two plays opening on Broadway in January. This, in addition to his film work. Cormack is one author who has clicked emphatically in Hollywood. . . Harry Bannister and Ann Harding were looking for a new pilot, but Harry has decided he can do the family flying himself from now on.

GOBEL SIGNED

Art Gobel has been signed by Radio Pictures to fly in their air epic "The Lost Squadron." You haven't forgotten Gobel won the Dole flight, in 1927, from Oakland to Honolulu. Another well known flyer, who will appear in this picture is Frank Clark, who did many of the stunts for "Hell's Angels." The most dangerous thrills, of course, will be supplied by Dick Grace, author of the story and stunt-ace of Hollywood.

No Clinch!

Ronald Colman is the hero in "The Unholy Garden," opening today in the Sheridan Square, but he doesn't get the girl and there is no fadeout clinch.

Will Rogers In Stanley Travesty

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Ambassador Bill," starring Will Rogers, opened yesterday on the Stanley screen. In this one Mr. Rogers takes his cowboy manners and his homely humor and philosophy into a royal court. A good time is had by all.

Sylvania, an imaginary somewhere in the Balkans, is the scene. There is a royal father, who abdicated his throne, and there is a boy king. All of which gives the idea that Rumania helped inspire the yarn.

Revolutions are the chief outdoor sport of the Sylvanians. On the very day that Ambassador Rogers arrives, one is in progress. He mistakes the rebel-pursuing royal troops for a reception committee and begins to make a speech.

GOOD SHOEMAKERS!

In no time Mr. Rogers starts to run the country. He has the ministers of state playing poker and the boy king playing baseball. And, in the end, he brings the royal father back to the throne and upsets the plans of a villainous prime minister.

During the action of the film, Mr. Rogers also lets some pointed quips fly in the direction of Washington. When a court attache laments that one of the baseball-playing chums of the boy king is the son of a republican shoemaker, Will pipes up: "Well, the Republicans are good shoemakers."

A capable supporting cast helps along in this diplomatic travesty. Among the players are Marguerite Churchill, Greta Nissen, Gustav von Seyffertitz and Tad Alexander, a youngster who plays the boy king.

MR. ROGERS IS THE SHOW!

Of course, it is Mr. Rogers who is most of the show—and he's a good show, too.

Robert L. Ripley is on the bill with another interesting "Believe It or Not" reel. He presents the largest information bureau in the world, which, in reality, is just a piece of furniture. Other highlights include the largest indoor rubber plant in the world and a gentleman who can tear a deck of playing cards into eight parts with his hands.

'Squaw Man' Comes to Fulton

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"The Squaw Man," that old battle of environments, which concerns an aristocratic Englishman who goes to Arizona and takes up with an Indian maid, came into the Fulton yesterday. This new version of the old Edwin Milton Royle stage play was directed by Cecil B. De Mille. Like most of Mr. De Mille's productions, it sacrifices dramatic force for endurance. It consumes too much film footage in putting its story over.

However, the picture entertains. It has moments of sentiment and sequences of intense melodrama. There is beauty in many of its scenic settings, the fox hunt in England; the barren hill scenes in Arizona.

SHE WONT GO AWAY

Leaving England and the woman he loves under a cloud, the hero goes to the great open spaces of America and becomes a part of the crude life about him. He befriends a pretty Indian lass and she, in turn, saves his life—not once, but twice. Then she refuses to leave him, in spite of all the film footage Mr. De Mille uses up in trying to make her go away.

Years pass, and there is a 4-year-old son in the scheme of things. Is he to be a white Englishman like his father was, or is he to revert to the type of his Indian mother's people?

WHAT, NO BLUEBIRDS?

Well, this is decided at the climax—a climax leading to a finale that sticks its tongue right out at Old Man Happiness and his flock of pet bluebirds.

The cast does good work. Warner Baxter and Lupe Velez, as the strange-mated pair, give sympathetic portrayals. Others, who also measure up to a standard, include Eleanor Boardman, Charles Bickford, J. Farrell MacDonald, Roland Young and Paul Cavanagh.

Rollicking Irish Humor in 'White-Headed Boy' Wins Triumph

By GEORGE SEIBEL

At last the Pittsburgh theatergoer has discovered that the Irish players are in town, that they are playing comedies and tragedies of high literary quality, and that they are acting them in a way worthy of the very highest traditions of the English-speaking stage. Hundreds were in line at the box-office of Carnegie Music Hall yesterday to see "The White-Headed Boy," Lennox Robinson's joyous farce of family reckoning. And the performance was so full of good things that one may expect an overflow tonight when Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock" closes the engagement.

George Seibel

For the benefit of those who are not versed in Irish idioms, let it be said that a "white-headed boy" means the fortunate lad who is the family pet. Lennox Robinson's play has made the expression proverbial.

The play itself is broader and less poetic than "The Far-Off Hills," but it has the same vigor and freshness and rich characterization.

MAUREEN DELANEY'S TURN

Of all these characterizations the richest was Maureen Delaney's portrayal of Aunt Ellen. Her courtship with John Duffy, played just as effusively by Barry Fitzgerald, was a comic idyl worth walking five miles to see.

Then Eileen Crowe, as the fond mother who has spoiled the "white-headed boy," presented a makeup of gray age startling to those who had seen her play blooming young girls. Only her beautiful voice, which she cannot make up, revealed the Eileen who has turned the hearts of many gossoons.

F. J. McCormick also showed his versatility by playing the only straight part in the comedy, as Brother George who is tired of spending the family money on the "white-headed boy" and is ready to ship him off to Canada.

Nor must due meed of appreciation be denied to Shelah Richards, whose characterization of "Baby" was so true you could hardly believe it. She and Maureen Delaney ought to give actors lessons in how to manage their eyes.

ROBINSON'S HUMOR

Like the other comedies of Lennox Robinson, "The White-Headed Boy" is a gold mine of humor. He is different from those other Irishmen—Oscar Wilde, Bernard Shaw, and also Richard Brinsley Sheridan—in giving us humor, rather than their wit. He is of Oliver Goldsmith's and Samuel Lover's breed. You feel that he loves all the characters he puts into his scenes—even the hard-hearted villains come in for a benediction before the last curtain.

The comedy he has made out of the return of the family pet, after failing in the examination which would make him a doctor, meeting with stern judgment which turns into ever better luck for him, until at the close he has married the girl he loves and gets the job his brother was to have, is one of the jewels of the Irish drama. That Irish drama has truly traveled far since Dion Boucicault.

ERLANGER KIN SCORED IN SUIT

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Testimony that relatives of the late A. L. Erlanger, theatrical producer, gave him less care during the last weeks of his life than Miss Charlotte Fixel was introduced at a hearing on her petition to be declared Erlanger's common-law wife.

Joseph W. Reatch, a registered nurse in attendance on Erlanger, testified that no member of the household of the producer's brother, former Supreme Court Justice Erlanger, assisted him in the care of his patient, but that Miss Fixel, whom he termed "Mrs. Erlanger," always helped him.

Mountain Week-End

The shadows make a lovely light
And, yes, I like the pretty views.
What's out of mind is out of sight . . .
Somebody must love . . .

The cornfields are for checkers
And the farms for pawns will do.
The road is full of neckers . . .
Somebody must love you . . .

The trees are ruddy glory
Against a crystal blue,
This is an old, old story . . .
Somebody must love you . . .

But me, I like a city
Where Washington Square is ruddy.
The mountains sure are pretty—
And somebody loves somebody!

Gag

One of the new musical shows which opened the other night and flopped so hard you could hear the thump away over here furnished this quip for the column. The show has the record for long-distance rehearsals and preparation.

In the middle of the second act most of the restless spectators got up in a body and walked out of the theater.

One of the weary cherines looked mournfully at the half-filled house, and said to a comrade:

"We're still rehearsing."

Those Critics

Another nifty making the rounds deals with the wag who, after seeing a new flop show, returned to the scene in the dead of the night and pasted on the billboard another sign reading:

"Opened by Mistake!"

A Form of Criticism

"The only difference," affectionately writes Thomas H. Fleming, of Albany, N. Y., "between a newspaper columnist and a federal weather observer is that the weather observer has to be 85% correct in his predictions or he loses his job."

Poor feller.

Add Similes

Anon: Easy as making a collection for a police captain . . . As close together as 20 minutes to 8 . . . As exciting as seeing a strange blonde enter a restaurant with your husband.

Racket

Far be it from us to point a finger at a clergyman, but we can back this charge up with proof—for it comes direct from the intended victim.

You'd never suspect that men of the cloth would go in for such matters, but one of them has been trying the trick with showmen.

A clergyman from a town in New Jersey wrote a prominent theatrical firm:

"If you will send me 15 pairs of good seats for your show I will mention it in my sermons, and tell people to see it."

Shame!

Ain't It So?

And Arthur V. Watkins, of Baltimore, comforts the depression-victims with:

"Don't worry. Something is bound to break—like a shoestring when you're in a hurry."

Or the sixth and last saucer when company is coming.

The Idea Swelegant

Bill Vallee, who is Rudy's brother; Leon A. Friedman, who is Ted Lewis' brother; Mike Kwait, who is Sammy White's brother; Jack White, who is George White's brother; Herman Bernie, who is Ben Bernie's brother; and others who are brothers of somebody in the limelight, have organized a society called "The Brothers of Celebrities Society." The main object of the organization is to shoot on sight any and everyone who, in introducing any of the members, prefaces the introduction with "This is a brother of (name of celebrity)." The organization is growing rapidly. Anyone handicapped by having a famous relative and who is in sympathy with the aims of the society may join by writing Bill Vallee, care of Hotel Pennsylvania.

Flip Quip

Take it from Walter O'Keefe of the "3rd Little Show." Clifton Webb, passing through Chicago with M. Farmer and O. Swanson, was asked:

"What persons do you crave to meet more than anyone else in Hollywood?"

"Greta Garbo and Aimee McPherson," replied Master Webb.

On the return trip they asked Webb:

"Well, what do you think of Aimee?"

"It's not important what I thought of her," answered Clifton, "nor is it interesting what she thought of me. She met me and the next day went right out and married a baritone!"

The Pity of It

From D. Murray, one of the loyal tribe of contribs:

"So your daughter comes home late at nights?"

"Yeah. She comes in so late that the neighbors have to sleep days so they won't miss her."

Imagine

A Los Angeles millionaire was going gay on his yacht, with a blonde star during his wife's holiday in the mountains. The wife returned unexpectedly and sent him word of her arrival. She added that she wanted to use the boat over the week-end.

The excited husband got rid of his flame and, to make sure no tell-tale evidence would be on the boat, he threw away everything with a feminine touch. Among other womanish things he destroyed was a bit of millinery.

The wife later asked him:

"What in the world ever became of my favorite $50 hat?"

Heheheh

Sid Parry avers that things are so tough the Smith Brothers are no longer wearing ties!

Merciless Truth

Borrah Minevitch has discovered Frances Bowdon. He believes her to be a "find." He is trying to peddle her to an air chain or the stage. She is a pretty thing, cornfed—straight from "Rory" (Aurora), Missouri. She is 18, mind you, and the most refreshing bit of femininity seen in New York in ages.

A genuine hill-billy she is—who will tell you that she lives five miles (by dust) from a certain place out there. "By dust" meaning by buggy or car on a dirt road. Her language fascinated me last night.

I asked her if she liked New York.

"I like it, yes," she said, "but golly! When they grow a little grass around here—they tell you keep off it!"

WELLS WRITES OF ELEPHANTS :: Object to Being Shot At, Explorer Says :: DOROTHY STONE ON AIR

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

CARVETH WELLS' gift for poking fun while telling a serious story on the radio is perfectly effected in his new book, "Adventure!" which Lowell Thomas has enthusiastically indorsed . . . We took Lowell's word for it and read the book . . . In the beginning Wells says that he would rather see life than be a millionaire but it's the chapter about elephants that made us laugh the most . . . Wells says:

Darrell V. Martin

"If you go elephant hunting, you will find that in both Africa and Asia elephants object strongly to being shot at. In fact, they are likely to charge you. If, in your excitement, you forget whether you are hunting in Asia or Africa, you can find out by the way in which the elephant comes for you. If he curls his trunk up into a ball, holds it in front of his head and charges silently, you are in Asia. If he screams and rushes at you with his trunk straight out—then you are in Africa. You can make absolutely certain by looking at his back. Asiatic elephants are humpbacked; African elephants are sway-backed—like the lions. Elephants have a keen memory of faces and never forget their enemies."

Eugene O'Neill has "given in" to radio . . . the News Drama on CBS-WJAS at 8:30 tonight is to portray a scene of his new play "Mourning Becomes Electra" . . . another thespian, Dorothy Stone, is Leo Reisman's guest artist on WCAE at 9:30.

Question a Day:

The voice of Alice Joy, contralto, on WCAE sounds familiar. Is this her real name?—Anna T., Youngstown, O.

Answer—Alice Joy's paycheck is made out to Frances Holcomb.

Out of town tonight—Frances Alda, WJZ, 7:15; Billy Hillpot and Scrappy Lambert, WJZ, WGAR, WLS, 8:30; Ben Bernie, WABC, WBBM, midnight—and a gala celebration on WJZ at midnight, featuring Roxy, Frances Williams, Helen Morgan, Ruth Etting, Nick Lucas, Russ Columbo, Rudy Vallee, Marion Harris, Jeanne Aubert.

The ticking of a wrist watch worn by an announcer was plainly audible in a KQV mystery drama the other night, adding more weird effect to the script . . .

Arthur Pryor, Erno Rapee, Dr. Walter Damrosch and Edwin Franko Goldman paid John Philip Sousa a glorious tribute today on his seventy-seventh birthday . . .

Wonder what happened to those Phyllis Morton sketches?

We still contend there's a place for Shakespeare on some Pittsburgh station, appropriately presented with stirring music . . .

The fact that Kathryn Parsons, the Girl O'Yesterday, is on the network means more than one might think . . . the other day she received a letter from a Midwestern banker who wanted to know if she was the same Kathryn Parsons who had deposited a $200 Liberty Bond in his institution in 1918 . . . It was the same Kathryn all right . . . she had forgotten all about the bond.

Today's Tid Bit:

These New York praise agents have no compunction any more for stealing the other fellow's stuff. At least five radio celebrities have been credited with Walter Winchell's pun the other day:

"They say the depression is over. If it doesn't end soon, Mahatma Ghandi will be the best dressed man in the world."

The Loudspeaker

— By — LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Most disappointing of sports broadcasts are the football games now being aired. It is not the fault of the announcers, but of the schedule makers in the studios.

Largest pre-game interest last Saturday was centered in Yale-Dartmouth and Cornell-Columbia games, but listeners, if they tuned in at all, had to hear of Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech, Northwestern-Illinois and Princeton-Michigan. Princeton, with its mediocre team, was even honored by two microphones.

Strange, the broadcast barons and the rulers of football can't get together and do right by the armchairs. There is too much Notre Dame on the air for one thing, and eastern listeners are not interested in the gridiron adventures fo Illinois . . . They say belated attempts were made to broadcast the Yale-Dartmouth game, but that Yale officials said "no," said the radio would injure the attendance. Without radio the attendance was reported at only 36,000, less than half of the Bowl's capacity.

The theater is said to be finding it harder and harder to obtain businessmen as angels for its attractions. Men who once would finance stage productions are now turning to radio, where they can play at showmanship more successfully, and at the same time advertise their wares in a manner that will add more readily to their bank deposits . . . Most of big business is now represented on the air waves.

Mrs. Hoover has never appeared on the same program with her husband, a matter that G. O. P. press agents would better look into soon. The President's wife is one of the fastest of radio talkers. Zip go the words, zip fall the periods, and before you know it she is through and the moon has come up over the mountains of the jazz bands . . . Radio engineers report that were she not the President's wife, Mrs. Hoover could find a secure job for herself as a radio speaker. Yes, if she were identified with some special activity, some special enterprise. Otherwise, no. The radio woods are full of people who can talk well on the microphone, but unless they are associated with movements that need radio publicity they are not summoned.

Listeners like to discover their own radio stars, build them up to the status of household gods. Practically all who are perched upon the radio peaks were put there by the public, not by the drum-beaters in radio publicity offices . . . The drum-beaters have tried valiantly to place crooning baritones on the peaks but the build-up was too obviously manufactured, and the public resented it.

"I liked Chesterfield right from the start"

"NO, I don't know a blessed thing about how cigarettes are made. But, of course, I would want the tobacco to be PURE. And then I've heard that the blending is very important. I'd want that to be done just right.

"Then the paper. I don't like paper that you can taste—or smell when it's burning. I'd want that pure too.

"Another thing. I want to smoke whenever I feel like it—without worrying about smoking too many. So I want my cigarettes MILD.

"But the main thing, of course, is TASTE. I don't care for over-sweetened cigarettes. I much prefer those that are just sweet enough.

"Chesterfield seems to satisfy in every one of these ways. That is why I'd rather have a Chesterfield."

SMOKERS tire of too much sweetness in a cigarette, and they don't like rawness. For a steady diet, they want a cigarette like CHESTERFIELD—a mild and mellow smoke, free from any over-sweetness or any harshness or bitterness. That's why more and more smokers every day are changing to CHESTERFIELD.

Good . . . they've got to be good.

Wheat Export Ban Denied by Russia

MOSCOW, Nov. 6 — (INS) — Belief was expressed in well-informed circles here that the statement attributed to M. Dovgalevsky, Soviet Ambassador to Paris, declaring Soviet Russia would export no wheat for the next two years, was circulated by "White" guardists, anti-Soviet factions or market manipulators.

The Soviet government takes the view that as the statement itself was false, its source is unimportant.

Autoist Exonerated In Goldstein Death

Saul Vinstock, 42, 118 Atwood street, is free today of a charge of involuntary manslaughter, following his acquittal in Criminal Court before Visiting Judge Miles J. Potter, in connection with the death of Kassel Goldstein, 76, father of Alderman Sol Goldstein of the Fourteenth Ward, June 25.

It was testified Goldstein stepped off the curb between two automobiles parked in Murray avenue, near Darlington road, and walked into the side of Vinstock's car, suffering fatal injuries.

Makers of Vicks VapoRub Announce a New Plan for Home-Control of Colds

News Comes With Development of a New Product; A Unique Companion to the Famous Treatment; Based on a New Idea for Prevention of Colds.

Makes Possible a Further Reduction of the Family "Colds Tax" This Winter In Time, Money, Health.

A quarter century ago, Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern external method of treating colds. Now, Vicks Nose & Throat Drops—latest development by the Vicks chemists—introduces a new idea in preventing colds. Together, these perfect allies make possible the new Vick Plan for better "Control of Colds" and reduction of the family "Colds-Tax" in time, money and health.

Here is the Vick Plan of Control:

1—BEFORE a Cold Starts.

On exposure to colds or to any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds—(crowded indoor places—stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms—sudden temperature changes—wet and cold, etc., etc.)—that slow down the normal functioning of the nose. Nature's marvelous "first line of defense against colds"—use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens, at that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages, a few drops up each nostril, and many annoying colds will be avoided.

2—AFTER a Cold Starts.

At night, rub Vicks VapoRub well over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed-clothing loose around the neck so the medicated vapors can be inhaled all night long. During the day—any time or place, use the convenient Vicks Drops as often as needed. This gives you full 24-hour treatment. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drops—medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

Trial Offer to Vick Users.

The makers want every user of Vicks VapoRub to try Vicks Nose Drops. Free trial samples of the Nose Drops were sent every druggist in the United States—but if you failed to get yours, buy a bottle today and try out the Vick Plan for better Home-Control of Colds as directed. If you are not delighted with results, your druggist is authorized to refund your money without question.

TWO MEN HELD IN BOMBING ATTEMPT

Identified as Pair Which Attempted to Blow Up Film Theater in Carson Street

Anthony Deangelis, 22, of Fleming avenue, Pittock, and Joseph Reichle, 22, of 3824 Windgap road, Stowe Township, were held for court today on charges of malicious mischief, at Central Station when city detectives accused them of being implicated in the attempted bombing two weeks ago of the Colonial Theater, 2009 Carson street.

Anthony J. Carlin, a motorist, who frustrated the bombing of the theater, police say, identified Deangelis as the man who had tossed the bomb into the lobby of the theater and ran to an automobile. Carlin also pointed out Reichle as the man who had been seated in the machine in front of the theater. It was Carlin who notified policemen in time to prevent the explosion.

Serafina Pittinato, 27, of 61 Half street, Stowe Township, was held for court on a similar charge. Police testified he had admitted he had set off "stench bombs" in the theater previously.

Michael Ciamacco, 22, of 593 McCoy road, Stowe Township, was held over. There is no specific charge against Ciamacco, but detectives asked more time to investigate his association with the three.

Detectives Michael Tortotelli and Sigmund Gorsky testified the trouble is a result of labor difficulties.

WHEELER SEES WAR PERIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(INS.)—"Europe today is an armed camp, 15 years after the war to end war. In my judgment war would break out if some of the nations in Europe felt they could finance it."

United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, made these assertions today on his return from Europe aboard the liner President Roosevelt.

Discussing the political situation in this country, Senator Wheeler said he regarded Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, as the strongest presidential candidate of the Democratic party for 1932. He said:

"Roosevelt rightfully should be nominated. He certainly would win. The election returns in New York state indicate his strength."

BAIL ALLOWED IN POISON CASE

LEBANON, Ind., Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Judge John W. Hornaday today granted the request of Mrs. Carrie Simmons' attorneys that she be released on bond pending a new trial on the charge of poisoning her 10-year-old daughter, Alice Jean.

The jury which heard Mrs. Simmons' first trial was discharged last evening when it reported inability to reach an agreement after deliberating nearly 48 hours.

Judge Hornaday fixed Mrs. Simmons' bond at $5,000 on each of the two murder indictments pending against her. She is also under indictment for the murder of her 14-year-old daughter, Virginia.

Both children were victims of poison placed in sandwiches prepared by their mother for a family reunion here last June.

Clerks Defy Bandits, Avert Bank Holdup

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Five bandits attempted to hold up the Prairie State Bank in suburban Oak Park today but fled after firing five shots at employes who, refusing to be intimidated, set off the police alarm instead.

The robbers commanded 11 employes to put up their hands. Three tellers and an assistant cashier dodged under the counter and pressed alarm buttons. The bandits fired at random and left hurriedly.

Watkins Addresses Pitt Business Men

Dr. Ralph J. 31-Cent Daily Diet Keeps Teacher In Health

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—A woman can live on 31 cents worth of food a day and remain in good health.

At least Miss Jeanette Chesbro, a teacher of economics, succeeded in doing so, she revealed yesterday at a state conference of vocational homemaking teachers. She said:

"I know you would expect me to be rather emaciated, but I'm here to prove that I'm well fed and have been all summer."

She added that she accomplished the feat by "comparatively intelligent buying," by purchasing foods in season, and by a conscientious use of leftovers.

PARIS HONORS 2 AMERICANS

PARIS, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Two distinguished American savants, Prof. Walter Bradford Cannon, noted physiologist of Harvard University, and Henry Fairfield Osborn, director of the Museum of Natural History of New York, will receive honorary degrees from the University of Paris tomorrow in the famous amphitheater of the Sorbonne.

The only other foreigners to receive similar distinctions will be Prof. Nicolas Jorga, Rumanian premier, rector of the University of Bucharest and mentor of the present King Carol, and Prof. Ausaux, of the University of Brussels.

The ceremony will be carried out with all the medieval pomp that intellectual Paris, which nurtured such geniuses as Dante and Rabelais, knows how to bestow.

Daily Diet Should Include Fruits and Vegetables

These two foods can do much to pave your way to good health.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator From New York.

I know a wonderful old man. He has lived far beyond the allotted three-score-years-and-ten. Perhaps it is not remarkable that he has lived so long, but it is truly remarkable how vigorous and alert he is. At nearly 90 he drives his car through the streets of a great city. He enters gleefully into the sports and discusses the topics of current life. He is active as the average man of 55.

Of course, there are many factors that enter into the perfection of this life. I am confident, however, that his eating has much to do with it. His ever-watchful and tireless daughter sees to it that nothing but perfectly prepared foods are served on that lucky man's table.

In my opinion, one reason for my friend's good health is because he makes daily use of the products of field and garden. It is really remarkable how many dishes can be made from vegetables.

It won't be long now before fresh vegetables will not be so cheap and plentiful as during the warm season. But in the markets of the cities they can be had every month of the year. In canned form they are easily procured.

It is really remarkable what the commercial world has given us in the form of tinned fruits and vegetables. The products of the whole world are available.

The fruits like apples, peaches, apricots, pears, cherries and many more are on the shelves of the grocery and delicatessen store. There is no reason for going without them.

Just now the markets are crowded with delicious apples. They are cheap, wholesome, and health promoting.

I wish I could induce every one of my readers to eat an apple or two every day. That practice would indeed help to keep the doctor away. The acids and other ingredients of that fruit are acceptable and stimulating to the body.

Eating practices are governed by individual habits, of course. We recognize that man will survive many bad habits, but it seems foolish indeed to overlook the eating of those things that are most helpful.

I have used the apple as an example merely. There are many, many fruits of value to health. Why not eat them?

When I see a man like my old friend of whom I spoke, in vigorous health at 85, I am tempted to make his habits the text for a sermon. But I won't say more today, except to urge you to include fruits and vegetables in your daily diet.

In a shallow greased baking dish place the potatoes, pour the cheese sauce over them, and cover the top with the buttered bread crumbs. Don't Nurse a Broken Heart Throughout Life

Does a broken heart ever heal?

Can we ever grow to love and laugh and hope again . . . ever walk free of pain . . . after something has smashed our shiny dreams to bits?

Ann wonders—

Ann, who, for all her life, had been saving her love for "The One Man"—

Then The Man came.

And many another girl has lived through the rest of Ann's story.

"Dear Sally:

"Do people ever get over broken hearts? Do you ever really stop feeling bruised and hurt? Do familiar scenes and half-forgotten tunes ever lose the power to cause pain? Do they?

"Mine is not such a queer story, or such an unusual one. But it is tragic for me. Two years ago, I met Keith. He is tall and clean and brown. I am in love with him. I've been in love with him ever since then. I'd never loved anyone else. All my life I'd been saving my love for the One Man—and he was the one.

"He liked me. For two years we were comrades. He never pretended to love me, and he never knew how much I loved him. We were inseparable companions. Somehow, I didn't realize until the blow struck, how much I'd counted on his falling in love with me some day.

"Two months ago, he met another girl. Then he galloped over to tell me about her. Gee! When I think of that night! Tortured heart, ears and eyes! He wanted me to meet her, and I did. She has charm and intelligence. She loves him. She will make him a better wife than I ever could, I know. It's his happiness, and I'm glad for him, but it hurts.

OLDER MAN WANTS HER

"Now I've met another man. He's 45. He has plenty of money and could give me all the things girls are supposed to want—and that I don't give tuppence for. He is 25 years older than I, but he's young and never will be old. He enjoys dancing, parties and all the rest. He asked me to marry him. I told him the story, thinking it would be the end, and a tactful exit. But he wants me to marry him anyway. He wants to make me happy, and Lord knows I want to be happy. I want to snap out of this and be big and noble. Kiss Keith goodbye—wish him luck and mean it, and ride on.

"Shall I marry Clive? Maybe I'll find happiness trying to make him happy. Or shall I work out my own salvation and become one of those lonely, frustrated women whom romance has passed by? Please help me to decide. I seem to have lost my capacity to make decisions. "ANN."

Every time we look at the scarf, we think of the old pain, and feel that "everything is over." For we're sure that a scarred life is a spoiled life.

But that's wrong.

A WISER LIFE

A scarred life is a spoiled life—only if we let the scars spoil it. Otherwise, it's a richer, stronger, wiser life than ever before.

For those who dare to live—who dare to build dreams and risk them on one adventure—they're bound to be scarred, little girl. That's part of the grand and glorious adventure of growing up.

But growing up is worth anything it costs. And if you have the courage to risk it . . . if you have the courage to walk with life . . . life will reward you.

You'll be scarred, but for every scar you'll be greater—more able to understand, more able to go on the big adventures and win the big prizes.

So stop thinking that you have a broken heart. Say to yourself, "I have a growing-up heart. And if I have the courage to go on living, I'll find another greater, sweeter dream."

And meanwhile—don't marry unless your heart goes with it. Why should you? You're hardly more than a child. The world lies before you. Why throw away that world because you've fallen and skinned your knee?

Pick yourself up . . . brush yourself off . . . get going, kid! There's happiness waiting, just around the corner.

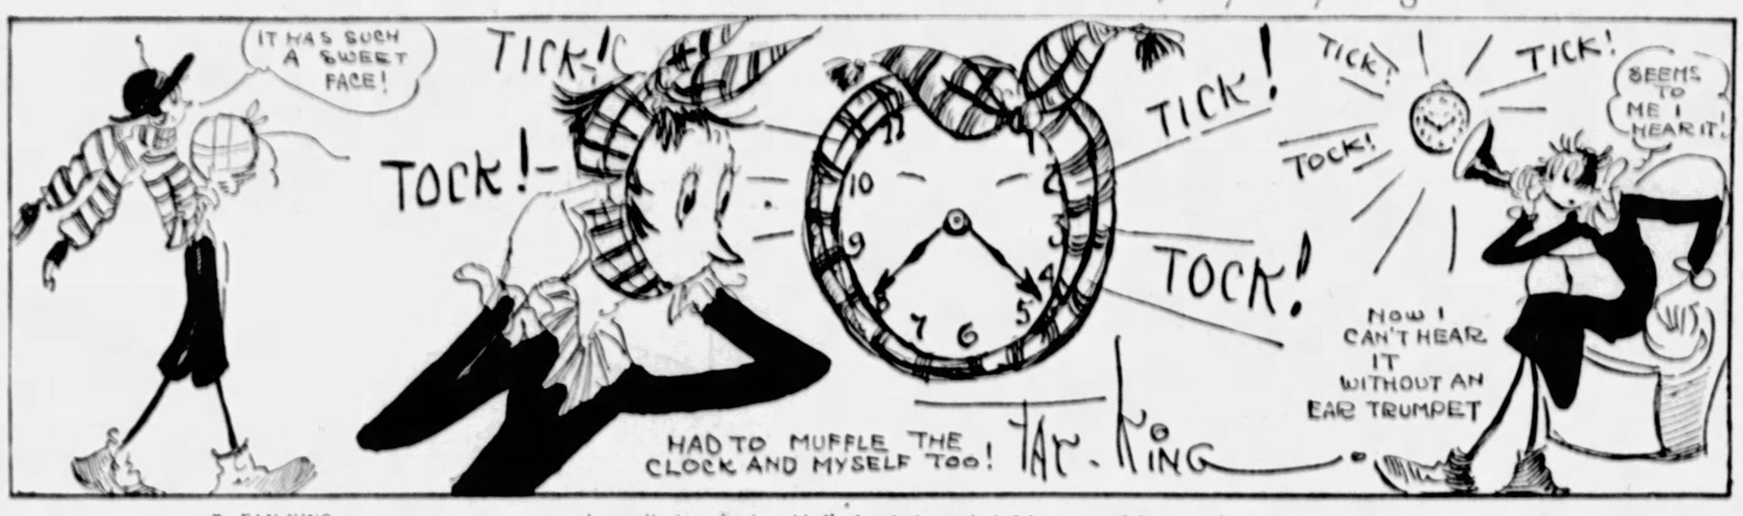
Alarm Clock Made Her Immune to Street Noises, Says Fay King



By FAY KING

Some folks are forever on the move getting away from noises. Blasting, excavating, riveting or the screech of street car brakes drives them onward.

But I hardly notice those sounds, and I owe my remarkable immunity to noise to a kindly-faced alarm clock I have owned for years.

When I first wound it up its tick scared me like the backfire of a milk truck. I tried to muffle the clock and myself in everything in the way of a muzzle and sound deadener that I could find or invent.

But after a while I couldn't hear that clock tick without an ear trumpet.

Since then riveting and so forth affect me no more than the buzz of a humming-bird would.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Chinese Menace Rears Again as Sam Ticer Finds Note!

"What in tunkett," Mrs. Ticer muttered as she saw her usually easy-going husband drive my car furiously into the farmyard, almost upsetting the machine in the prospect. She hurried out to the yard, and I, ashamed to hurry after her, lay still on the couch where Mrs. Ticer had put me, feeling my pulses pound furiously in suspense as to what had happened while my neighbor was changing the tire which had burst as I was on my way to Southampton. Sam Ticer found out that someone had been watching me as my vague fears had hinted during that breathless walk to the Ticer farmhouse, which had followed the bursting of the tire and the consequent interruption of my journey?

"Mis' Graham! Mis' Graham! Mr. Ticer was shouting at the top of his voice as he came into the farmhouse, his wife trotting after him vainly trying to "sh" him, and repeating over and over, "What is it" and "Don't dare to scare Mis' Graham out of her senses when there probably hain't nothing to show her except a nail through the tire or something like that."

But her tone betrayed plainly that she was not half so doubting a Thomas as she appeared, and Mr. Ticer's tone was triumphant as he answered her.

"Nail! Huh! I suppose you call this a nail!"

I heard his wife give a little gasp, and then they were both in the room and Mr. Ticer was handing out to me a carefully folded piece of very thin rice paper on which I saw—with a sudden terrified shrinkage as from something physical which might hurt me—several Chinese characters.

"I found this pinned to the upholstery of the back of the front seat," Mr. Ticer said. "I thought you always kept the door locked."

"The key wouldn't turn this morning," I said, secretly chafing at his pausing for so trivial a detail.

"That's the way he got in, then," my neighbor said, and I had hard work not to shriek my countering query.

"He! Who? Did you see the person who put this in?"

"No, I didn't see nobody," he said, and he added briskly as if the idea had just occurred to him.

"It wasn't there, I suppose, when you left the car."

"Sam Ticer!" His wife took him by the arm and shook him to and fro. "Have you lost all few senses the Lord gave you when you come into the world? Land knows, I've had experience with the dumb things you can say sometimes, but if this ain't the limit. Of course, this Chink thing wasn't in the car when Mis' Graham left it. Do you think she'd have left it there for anybody to find? And how in tunkett could it get in there while she was driving the car?"

"Wa'al, I didn't know," her husband said stubbornly. "You've heard tell of those O-rientals that kin throw things with darts stuck in 'em and hit anything that's moving. I didn't know but, maybe, somebody had thrown it through the window of the car, and Mis' Graham had been so scared she'd just cut and run without taking it off."

"You've been going to the movies too much," his wife said witheringly. "Now listen and see if you can get this through your head. If you did not see nobody, did you hear anything? Mis' Graham thought she heard something in the thicket this morning. She sort of felt as if she were being watched."

"She heard rabbits, probably, or squirrels," he returned with the obstinacy of those limited in intelligence. "No, there wasn't no sign of nobody. But what I'd like to know is how this got there?"

"Well, ain't that wonderful?" his wife declared scornfully. "You act as if you were the only one thinking that. That's what we'd all like to know, but if you didn't hear or see nuthin', I guess we hain't goin' to find out very soon."

"Hain't you goin' to open it?" Mr. Ticer said, hopefully, looking at the rice paper which I still held nervelessly in my hand.

"No, she hain't goin' to open it while there's anybody around. Have you lost all of your senses?" his wife said. "No you better get back to your chores."

"I'd better get over to Graham's," Sam Ticer said, and now I detected anger in his voice and I knew that his usually placid wife's denunciation of him had penetrated his egotism.

"No, you don't need to go over there," his wife announced loftily. "I'm going myself."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

A Hymn of Hate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Are there many things in social life that you hate more than you do to see a person chewing with his or her mouth open? I can think of nothing that I hate more! Please agree with me, and let's start a league for teaching people to keep their months closed when they chew. Are you with me? JACK.

With you? I should say so! This minute I can't think of anything that I hate worse than just the thing you are talking about. Unless it is to see a person, when eating ice cream, draw the spoon from the mouth with part of the ice cream on the spoon, and then replace the spoon in the mouth. How do you feel about that? Or is your Hymn of Hate confined to those who chew with their mouths open?

Shower Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly tell me how to word an invitation to a variety shower which I wish to give to a friend who is to be married soon? I am planning to have the affair in the evening and it cannot be a surprise to my friend. JANET.

This might suggest a form:

Dear Mary:

It would make me very happy if you can come to a "variety" shower that I am planning for Joyce Marshall at my home, on Friday evening, the twelfth of November, at eight o'clock. Joyce, too, is especially anxious to have you come—indeed, we refuse to have the party without you. So do tell me soon that we may expect you.

Best and dearest wishes to you, and the high hope of seeing you on the twelfth. (The shower gift may be of any kind you wish—"variety" is the word!)

Affectionately yours,

(Copyright, 1931, Premier Syndicate, Inc.)

Household Hints

Water in which onions have been boiled is excellent for cleaning white paint.

Lace curtains can be stiffened by adding a tablespoonful of methylated spirit to every gallon of water in which they are washed.

Noodles and ham are a delicious combination. Fry until crisp four thin slices of ham cut into narrow strips; add one-half pound of noodles previously boiled in salt water until tender; fry until lightly browned; sprinkle with chopped parsley and pimiento and serve.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

A cornmeal and buttermilk paste is highly recommended as a bleach and softener for the hands. Mix the two together, apply to the hands, slip the hands in old white cotton gloves and keep on all night.

Pint-size, skinny gals who would be of hugable size should drink one quart of milk a day, take two eggs for breakfast and get to bed early. The fashionable silhouette is a figure that is sufficiently padded with adipose tissue to show nicely rounded lines.

This is the time to recondition the hair with oil treatments. Heat olive oil. Apply to the scalp with a pledget of cotton. Massage the scalp for 10 minutes. Next morning, shampoo thoroughly.

Give the rosy-posy nose a dab of ointment of zinc oxide at night. It will, in short order, be less flamboyant. Cut down on condiments and rich pastries. Eat plenty of fruit and vegetables, lean meats and green salads and drink milk. Milk is the perfect beauty food. So is orange juice.

What will the years BRING YOUR FAMILY?

SO OFTEN the health and happiness of a family is influenced by the foods they eat. Meals that lack "bulk" or Vitamin B frequently lead to constipation. This treacherous ailment often causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, and serious illness.

Your own family's happiness next month, next year, will be affected by the health-precautions they take today. Guard against constipation now.

Fortunately, you can obtain two correctives of common constipation ("bulk" and Vitamin B) in one delicious cereal. The "bulk" in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

The Vitamin B in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN tones the intestinal tract, and helps promote regular habits. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also contains twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is far better than pills or drugs, which bring artificial action, and often lead to harmful habits.

Two tablespoonfuls daily of this delicious cereal are usually sufficient to prevent and relieve most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal or use in cooking. Tempting recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

EMPLOYMENT SHOWS GAIN

HARRISBURG, Nov. 6.—(INS.)—Figures available today on the latest periodical surveys of state employment offices indicated definite improvements in several industries, particularly anthracite mining and textile.

Reports were filed by district offices of the Bureau of Employment, State Department of Labor and Industry, and individual summaries showed a number of bright spots.

At Allentown, it was estimated, the number of unemployed textile workers was reduced to about 200. It was shown that workers in that field returned gradually to their posts following the silk strike, which lasted about five months.

Scranton area recorded a decided improvement in the basic industry, hard coal mining, and mines in the Lykens and Wisconisco district resumed operations after long periods of idleness. Work for hundreds of men was provided in these cases.

DICE TO DECIDE FLIGHT PILOT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—(INS.)—Five aviators were to sail for Honolulu late today to shake dice for the honor of attempting the first flight from Hawaii to the United States.

At the last moment they may be accompanied by a woman pilot, Miss Victorine Lederer, 25, from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., who would also share in the diceshaking.

The winner will make the attempt in a plane purchased by all.

The five booked to sail are J. K. Von Althaus, German war ace and one time member of Baron Von Richtofen's famous "air circus," Harry Forbes, Leslie Louden, H. S. Mead and Thomas Darby. The latter four are from San Jose, Cal.

MOTHER FREED IN BANK THEFT

HASTINGS, Neb., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Velma Creighton, mother of two children, was acquitted by a jury today of receiving property stolen last February in the $27,000 Hastings National Bank robbery.

She wept as she heard the decision, and said she would return to Nowata, Okla., and start work with a telephone company.

She was employed as an operator, she said, before her marriage to James Creighton, a suspect in the robbery, who has been sentenced since then to death for a Webb City (Mo.) murder.

It was her second trial. Last month a jury failed to reach a verdict.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Take Stock of Health Annually

At dinner the other evening my host, carving the chicken, handed me the wishbone and asked that I "wish" with him. It was the customary solemn and silent procedure, rather comical perhaps to be indulged in by grownups.

Dr. Copeland

I have often wondered for what people wish. My host and I discussed that question. We agreed that the ideal wish is a prayer for health.

Good health is something that cannot be obtained merely by wishing, of course. But since it is one of the desirable things in life it is a good thing to wish for it and then to make every effort to make the wish come true.

When one is blessed with perfect health, it is a possession envied by many. As a matter of fact, it is possessed by comparatively few. I have seen many men with wealth and power, who lacked the one most precious thing that money won't buy.

Many a young person starts out with good health, but because of carelessness or ignorance has thrown away this great gift. Later he regrets the mistake. Just as a man who has been rich bemoans the loss after his fortune has been squandered, so does such an individual regret the loss of his health. For some such persons it is hard to have sympathy.

There are others who have not been endowed with perfect health at birth. But as the result of careful and conscientious attention to the rules of right living, they have acquired a fairly good state of health. Such persons, in my opinion, are to be admired and commended for their accomplishments.

Good health is dependent upon many things. We may be born with it, or we may acquire it as we grow older. But at all times we must respect it and maintain an earnest effort not to lose it.

Lack of understanding of the body and its limitations usually results in loss of health. This temple will not stand against the foolish assaults of wrong living.

Excessive drinking, excessive eating, excessive smoking, indulgence in fast living, lack of sleep and proper food—these are the chief foes of good health. When their importance is overlooked, the result is poor health.

The future of medicine, as I see it, will be to prevent disease, rather than to cure disease. Preventive medicine should appeal to all who are interested in and concerned about the preservation of health.

It is advisable to see a physician at least once a year and more frequently if necessary. It is only by your own co-operation that certain diseases can be prevented, or those you have be cured.

Have you any complaint at present? Have you recently taken an inventory of your state of health? Do you feel perfectly fit to do your work? Do you enjoy your work or is it done with an effort? Do you sleep well and enjoy your food? Do you have any digestive disturbances?

These suggestions cover some of the questions you should ask yourself. If there is any doubt in your mind about your state of health, consult with your physician. Perhaps it is time for you to take stock and see just where you stand.

LOUISE HUNTER RENEWS TROTH

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6—(INS.)—Changing her mind when Murray Salzman, New York broker, who had crossed the country in search of her, confronted her, Miss Louise Hunter, New York and South Carolina society girl, declared today she would marry Salzman.

Her change of mind followed a declaration that she "wanted to be left alone" and that her romance with Salzman "was ended."

After being reported "en route back to New York," Salzman reappeared.

A conference brought the announcement that the wedding would occur "within a short time."

Miss Hunter had said earlier:

"We did love each other once, but it is all over now, we are through. I want to live in San Francisco, find a job and be let alone."

Chain Store Fight On Tax Dismissed

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The suit of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, chain store corporation seeking an interlocutory injunction to restrain the state of Kentucky from collecting taxes under the retail merchants gross sales tax act enacted in 1930, was dismissed today in a joint decision signed by three federal judges.

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Card to Lead at No Trumps

Ordinarily you hold a suit of four or more cards that has not been bid adversely. The proper card to lead depends upon your suit length, honors held, and your honors held in side suits. With a suit probably established (eight cards headed by A-K; six headed by A-K-Q; or four solid cards—A-K-Q-J) you try to drop cards by straight leads. Merely as a courtesy to partner to let him know how many cards he probably must make, many players lay down the ace when expecting to win six or more tricks, or the king when expecting to win fewer than six solid tricks. Of course, such solid suits seldom are held against no-trumpers, but they sometimes occur.

In case a sure entry is held in a side suit you may lay down toppers from suits where you expect to lose a trick. With two entries you may bang down honors even when you expect to lose two tricks. With A-Q-J-6-3-2 plus a side ace, lay down your ace, followed by the queen, hoping that when you obtain entry with your spare ace your jack will drop the last opposing card of your long suit, enabling you to run off three tricks with your small cards.

Lack of re-entry obligates leading low from a long suit, so that your partner may be able to return your lead before his cards of your suit are exhausted. Lead one of three honors, provided two of them touch. The A-Q-10 are the only three honors of which two do not touch. If the lowest honors touch (A-Q-J, A-J-10, K-J-10), lead the highest of the touching honors, expecting to lose the trick, but hoping that partner may lead your suit back, through the declarer, to your advantage. If the two higher honors touch (A-K-J, A-K-10, K-Q-10), lead the king, if you have re-entry. Without re-entry you must lead the J or 10 from A-K-J or A-K-10.

With only four cards in suit it does not pay to lead an honor (unless you hold A-K-Q-X) from three. Lead your fourth-best card, hoping that partner may force the declarer to play high.

Where an honor lead is not called for by the cards held, make a fourth-best lead to enable your partner to apply the "rule of eleven." Against no-trump makes you need not hesitate as you do against trump makes over leading suits headed by either ace or king without the other high honor; nor need you fear opening the suits headed by tenaces. You can not have your high honors trumped when playing no-trumps, but against trump makes it is unsafe to touch certain suits, they need some other player to lead them.

Short suit leads and other "freak" suggestions have been tried many times in the past. Sometimes such leads prove successful. Remember that you have two opponents and only one partner; the odds are 2 to 1 against finding partner with missing strength.

PITT AND TECH POLISH OFF

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

FIVE WIN VARSITY BERTHS AS SOPHS

IN THE PITT lineup facing Carnegie Tech tomorrow will be five naturals. At the Panther school a natural means a sophomore who is able to step right into the varsity picture without much opposition. Ordinarily, Coach Jock Sutherland does not lean toward sophomores, holding that a second year student who can perform with gridiron veterans is a rare figure. The presence of five men of that caliber is a fairly good indication of the native strength of the 1931 Panthers.

Bob Hogan

Only one of the five came up this year. The newcomer is Bob Hogan, bulky quarterback, whose duties now consist of running the team on offense, taking out opposing ends, and backing up the line on defense. Last year Warren Heller was the lone sophomore making the team at the beginning of the season, the Steelton youth beating out the veteran Whitey Walinchus for the halfback job at the training camp. In 1929 the crop was larger, three members of the present team playing that year as sophomores. They were Jim MacMurdo, Ralph Daugherty and Paul Collins.

THE SIX OTHERS starting tomorrow's game, however, had a hard time winning varsity berths. Eddie Hirshberg, captain and left end, started only five games during the seasons of 1929 and 1930. Jess Quatse understudied Charley Tuli in 1929. Mike Milligan subbed for Luby DiMeolo in 1929 and last year alternated with Hart Morris now on the hospital list.

Cheeso Onder has been a second-string guard all season and gets a chance to start against Carnegie only through the inability of Morris to play. In the backfield, Jimmy Clark never has been a regular through a full season. He was a second-team fullback in 1929 and alternated with Franklin Hood last year. Paul Reider, at right half, didn't win a regular job until the middle of last season, when he finally displaced Josh Williams.

THE GIANTS' DEAL for Outfielder Leonard Koenecke of Indianapolis, for whom Pitchers Joe Heving and John Berly and Outfielder Harry Rosenberg have just been given up, though the dicker was arranged three months ago, has revived the annual story that John McGraw plans to use Freddie Lindstrom in a trade.

Cincinnati is said to want Lindstrom in exchange for Pitcher Red Lucas, whom the Giants are seeking, but there is no assurance McGraw will be found willing to let Freddie go in such a swap. He may have obtained Koenecke to replace Fred Leach or Ethan Allen rather than Lindstrom.

DISPUTING THE ILLINOIS claim that Bob Zuppke originated the huddle, a veteran football man says that Zuppke may have been the first to use the huddle, but that it was originated by Herbert Reed, a writer. It is related that Reed, discussing football with several Army coaches one night, suggested the huddle and pointed out that it would enhance deception in plays. The players could come out of the huddle, he explained, shift to different positions, and start the play before the defensive team could diagnose the change in positions. And that was the real purpose of the huddle. It was not, as has so often been said, devised to enable the quarterback to make his signals heard above the roar and the din of the crowd.

Joe Morbito

GUS DORAIS, star quarterback at Notre Dame in the playing days of Knute Rockne and now head coach at the University of Detroit, is the man who conceived the idea of turning a fumble into a scoring play, the same stunt which, intentionally or not, Joe Morbito and Stan Berkman pulled for Burns against East Liverpool in a West Penn Conference game at Parnassus Wednesday night.

The latest working of the "intentional fumble" by Detroit was a feature of last Saturday's game against Loyola, of New Orleans. Louis Berg, Detroit halfback, was criticized for carelessness in what looked like an ordinary fumble, but it developed that he should have been credited with quick thinking and carrying out a coach's orders.

ON FOURTH DOWN after advancing to Loyola's one-yard line, Berg hit the right side of Loyola's defense. When he was tackled the ball popped out of his hands and was recovered by Joe Beer in the end zone for a touchdown. It looked as if Berg had crossed the goal line before losing the ball and he was criticized for carelessness.

But Detroit players explained later that he had not reached the goal line when he fumbled, and when Berg was asked if he had deliberately dropped the ball to take a chance on its being recovered by himself or a teammate he merely grinned and said: "You better ask Coach about that."

"BERG MADE A smart play, not a careless one," Dorais said when the matter was carried to him. "We have been going over situations of that kind in skull practice recently. The coaches pointed out the possibility of scoring by fumbling on the fourth down when near the opponent's goal. If the ball carrier has not made the necessary distance, his team is going to lose the ball on downs, anyhow, so he might as well risk losing it on a fumble and take a chance that it may be recovered over the line or carried over the line by a teammate. If his own side recovers he may be the gainer, as we were against Loyola, and if the other side receives it nothing is lost, as the ball would have gone to the opponent on downs anyhow. We beat Idaho with that play once when I was coaching at Gonzaga."

DAN HOAN, Socialist mayor of Milwaukee, has declined an invitation to serve as honorary chairman of the reception committee for the Olympic Games, scheduled for next year in Los Angeles, on the ground that organized labor is boycotting California for its stand on Tom Mooney.

The Milwaukee executive adds that the labor sentiment against California is not confined to the United States, and that he knows for a fact several foreign countries for the same reason will not send teams of athletes to Los Angeles.

ERNIE QUIGLEY, National League baseball umpire, probably set a record for officiating at intercollegiate football contests when he worked three events in two days last week in the St. Louis district.

Quigley refereed the St. Louis-Oklahoma City game Friday night, was in charge of the Missouri-Nebraska game Saturday afternoon and was the chief official at the Washington-Drake event Saturday night.

Ray Miller

WHETHER TONY CANZONERI retains his world lightweight championship two weeks from tonight or it passes to Kid Chocolate, there will be a stiff job ahead for the winner in the shape of a match with Ray Miller. On his work during 1931, Miller appears to be entitled to a shot at the title. In 13 starts he has scored nine knockouts, and in five of those nine kayo victories he put his man away in the first round. He was scheduled to meet Canzoneri in Detroit last summer, but the match fell through. The left-hook artist can hardly be ignored as a challenger for the championship, and not a few good judges of hitic form believe that if Miller is given a crack at the crown there will be another southpaw in the throne room to keep company with Lou Brouillard.

FIVE GAMES SLATED FOR CITY LEAGUE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Headed by the Stowe Township-Ambridge battle at Stowe Township, today's scholastic football card offers followers of the sport in Western Pennsylvania a varied program of Class A and Class B contests that should provide plenty of thrills.

Indications were that soggy gridirons would prevail throughout the district due to a heavy fall of snow, which started at noon.

The Stowe-Ambridge game brings together two powerful and undefeated elevens, although both teams have been tied. Coaches Rubenstein of Ambridge and Marnen of Stowe have been pointing their teams for this particular contest. Stowe, after being held to a scoreless tie in the opening game of the season with Har-Brac, has scored six successive victories. Only two points have been scored against Marnen's team, representing a safety by Carnegie.

FIVE LEAGUE GAMES

Five league contests and one non-league affair are offered the followers of the City League this afternoon. Schenley will have a chance to bolster its advantage over Peabody in the Section I race by engaging the weak Fifth Avenue team at Malone Field. South meets Westinghouse at Westinghouse in the other Section I fray. Allderdice, also a member of this section, plays Rankin in a non-league tussle at Allderdice.

Every member of Section II is slated for action. South Hills seeks its fourth victory at Oliver. Carrick seeks its fourth straight with Allegheny at Carrick, while Langley and Perry, the tail-enders, clash at Perry.

The Clairton High eleven, making a determined fight for the W. P. I. A. L. championship, will play its first Friday game in weeks by engaging Elizabeth at Clairton. Woodman's team has copped six straight games and will be out to make it seven in a row today.

New Kensington will go after its seventh straight victory tonight when it opposes Beaver Falls under the floodlights at New Kensington. The contest originally was scheduled for tomorrow afternoon but was moved up by mutual consent. Beaver Falls looms as one of the toughest obstacles facing Glock's eleven. Its only defeat of the season came at the hands of the undefeated Midland aggregation, 13-0.

CLASS B FEATURE

Another battle that should develop into an interesting affair is the Class B headliner between East Pittsburgh and Edgewood at East Pittsburgh. East Pittsburgh coached by Johnny Coleman, has been beaten losing to Braddock, 7-6, while Edgewood shows a record that is marred only by a scoreless affair with Aspinwall. The Edgewood team, coached by Pickett, will prove a real test for the East Pittsburghers.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A LOCOMOTIVE LIFTED BY A SHEET OF PAPER—Someone in the organization of the Hemmel-Ross Fibre Corporation, Hopewell, Va., wanted to know just how strong their .045 (1-22 of an inch) fibre paper was, but there was nothing handy to make such a test. Eventually they rigged up a 9x5 foot piece of paper with clamps at each end, hooked one end on the boom of a locomotive crane and the other end on a locomotive—the heaviest thing around the plant. It worked, and the engine was left dangling from the end of the boom for some time, suspended by nothing but the single sheet of paper.

TOMORROW: A "NEW BRIDGE" THAT IS MORE THAN 300 YEARS OLD.

CLARK TO GET CALL AGAINST TARTANS

By JESS CARVER

Jimmy Clark is going to start at fullback for Pitt against Tech tomorrow and Jimmy figures to put on a rousing exhibition of fullbacking.

Johnny Luch

Clark was the regular fullback at Pitt last year and at the start of the present season. Then Johnny Luch came along with fine plunging against Iowa and West Virginia and a pip of a workout against Western Reserve, and Jimmy, who only weighs 160 pounds, lost his job. Luch started the Notre Dame game, worked as first string fullback in practice and was held out of the State walkaway last week, along with the other varsity performers.

Jimmy, a quiet, easygoing sort of a chap, felt pretty keenly Luch's usurping of the fullback job. In the Notre Dame game, Luch had his leg injured and the hurt was aggravated in practice last week, with the result that Johnny will be on the sidelines against Tech, certainly at the start and perhaps for all afternoon. If Clark can go against the Tartans, he likely will get the starting job in the big game of the year, against Army, and on Thanksgiving Day against Nebraska.

CLARK IS FAST

Clark's greatest asset always has been his speed. He lacks both weight and height, but he can start fast and runs like a deer. He's a pip of a guy to have toting the ball on the spinner, for the defense hardly can see him before he's away.

Anyway, he'll be in there tomorrow afternoon for the kickoff against Tech. His presence in the Pitt backfield assures a smoother working quartet, for the team clicks better with Clark than with Luch, for Clark has the experience and handles the ball every bit as well on those double passes and reverses. He is as fast as any of Tech's backs.

The rival squads are to be out of town until game time. Pitt went last night and Tech will pull out this evening. It's an annual custom. Wally Steffen bobbed in from Chicago this morning, a day early, to take charge of the Skibos.

LINEUPS SET

No changes are anticipated in the starting lineups that have been indicated in the drills this week. Cheeso Onder will be at right guard for Pitt in the place of the broken-handed Hart Morris. Collins and Hirshberg will go at the wings; with MacMurdo and Quatse set for a big day at the tackles and Mike Milligan at the other guard. Hogan at quarter, Reider and Heller at the halves and Clark at full.

LOCALS TO AID NEEDY CAUSE

Plans are rapidly being shaped for a local benefit football battle, to be held at the Stadium on Saturday, December 6, for the benefit of the unemployed. Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University all have signified their willingness to do something for the worthy cause, and Pitt has come forward with the offer of the free use of the Stadium for the occasion and also will hold its football players in readiness to compete following the close of their season against Nebraska here on Thanksgiving Day.

The movement is in line with the proposal of Owen D. Young, chairman of the Committee on Mobilization of Relief Resources of the President's Organization on Unemployment Relief that all colleges donate the receipts of one game or engage in a game or tournament to help out. More than 100 colleges have heeded the plea.

Just what form the local venture will take remains to be seen, but the ball has been started rolling, and developments may be expected in a short time.

CARD TWO GAMES

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 6.—(AP.)—The University of Missouri committee on intercollegiate athletics last night approved two post-season charity games for the university football team. One will be played in St. Louis, December 5, against the winner of the St. Louis-Washington game and the other in Kansas City, November 28, provided the charity committee there can arrange for a suitable opponent.

COAST TEAMS TO PLAY

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 6.—(INS.)—A post-season charity game between the University of Utah and the winner of the Oregon-Oregon State game at Eugene a week from Saturday, will be played here December 5.

HARRIERS RACE TOMORROW

The senior Allegheny Mountain Association cross-country champion for 1931 will be crowned tomorrow afternoon when a field of 31 entrants will fight it out over the difficult Schenley Park course.

Woodward Adams, Pittsburgh Athletic Association star who won the individual title last year, will not defend his crown, and neither will the P. A. A. defend the team championship which it captured in 1930.

The record for the Schenley course of 27 minutes 32 3-5 seconds was established by Gus Moore when he was running for the University of Pittsburgh.

The start of the race is scheduled for 1 o'clock.

The Pitt varsity will be represented by the following hill-and-dalers: John Clise, James Watkins, William Lawrence, Anthony Mazzei, John Smoyer, Paul McCormick, Glenn Thiele and Joseph Gallagher, and Pitt freshmen representatives will be Kenneth Wagenhouser, Charles Kirkpatrick, Albert Bruenig, William Albright, Paul MacMurdo, William Galan, John Hepner and Emmett MacDonald. Other entrants are:

K. L. Carter, P. A. A.; P. M. Drinkhiser, of Meadville, Pa., unattached; William Greis, of Jeannette, Pa., unattached; Arthur Will and Vincent Pomeroy, of Erie, Frank Cerni, Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company; Franklin Gaines, Pitt; Roger DeMarten, Union A. C.; and Joseph W. Gallagher, Frank Jerp, Andrew Laughey, J. M. Southern, Jr., and John C. Krisonak, all unattached.

OLLIE CHILL DIVORCED

CLEVELAND, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—A decree of divorce was granted today to Mrs. Ethel B. Chill, Bedford, O., from Oliver Chill, former American League umpire. Mrs. Chill said she did not know Chill's present address. They were married in 1906. She said he left her in 1923 and that she has not heard from him since. They had no children.

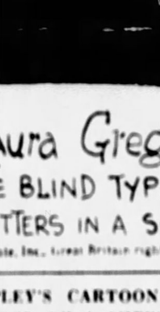
THE COACH'S VIEWPOINT

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College coach, and former all-America star at Carnegie Tech.

Tomorrow brings to the Stadium the football classic of Western Pennsylvania, the annual meeting of the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech . . . This game always is a great spectacle, and, because of the intense rivalry between these schools, the teams always are at their best when playing each other . . . No quarter is asked and none is given . . . It is a battle all of the way from the opening kickoff to the final play.

Since the two schools resumed athletic relations in 1923, each has won four games . . . Tech won in '23, '24, '26 and '28, while Pitt was on the long end of the score in '25, '27, '29 and '30 . . . There have been three big upsets in the series in which the underdog has won from a supposedly stronger opponent . . . Tech hasn't needed a chance of winning in either 1923 or 1924, and Pitt pulled the surprise last year by nosing out a good Carnegie team, 7 to 6 . . . Tomorrow's game appears to be so much in favor of Pitt, judging from the strength and records of the teams, that many of the Tech fans are just hoping for a low score.



Howard Harpster

There is an interesting story connected with Tech's first victory over Pitt . . . Coach Steffen had been using the old "end around" play with marked success for a number of years at Tech . . . The play is quite simple and amounts to nothing more than the fullback taking the ball from the center, running over and giving it to the end, who carries it around the other side of the line . . . From this play the Tech coach evolved the "spinner" which was exactly like the "end around" except that the fullback only feigned giving the ball to the end and then slowly walked through the hole the end had just left . . . It was this spinner play which defeated Pitt for the first time.

When the deciding play of the 1925 game was called, everyone on the Tech sidelines, including Steffen, thought it was to be the "end around" . . . Mike Goodwin came from end and started across the field, faking as if he had the ball . . . He kept running back farther and farther and finally was brought down by several Pitt tacklers . . . Steffen had been watching Goodwin, and, when he was tackled for an apparent loss, he made some remark about the play not being worked properly . . . He had no more than got the words out of his mouth when when someone pointed to Beede, the Tech fullback, who was running as hard as he could for the Pitt goal with the ball under his arm . . . Beede had faked the ball to Goodwin, spun around through the line inside of the Pitt tackle, and started down the field before

PANTHER CUBS, KISKI TIED

SALTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 6.—The University of Pittsburgh Freshmen and Kiski were deadlocked at 6-6 at the end of the first half of their football game here this afternoon.

Kiski was the first to score in the first period when Hamilton, left halfback, hurled a 30-yard pass to Mescrit, right end, who stepped over the goal line for a touchdown.

On the kickoff that followed the score, Nicksich, left halfback of the Panther Cubs, picked up the ball on his own 20-yard line and raced 80 yards through the entire Kiski team for a touchdown that evened the score.

Neither team had an advantage in a scoreless second period, which found most of the play in the middle of the field.

Cubs Buy Coast League Infielder

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—The Cubs today made their first move to strengthen their battle line for the 1932 campaign by purchasing Stanley Hack, star third baseman, from the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast League.

A large amount of cash, not revealed, and a player to be named later was offered and accepted for Hack, whose rise within one year has been one of the most sensational in baseball. He batted .350 for Sacramento last season and sparkled on defense.

BROCARDO-TIETZ COP

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—The Franco-German team of Brocardo and Tietz won Berlin's twenty-sixth six-day bicycle race, concluded last night. The winners covered 3,349 kilometers (2,081.629 miles) and amassed a total of 148 points.

DUKES ARRIVE IN WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 6.—The Duquesne University football squad, in charge of Head Coach Elmer Layden, arrived here today and went through a light drill in preparation for their game with the powerful Holy Cross eleven here tomorrow.

It is not expected Layden will name his starting lineup until just prior to game time. Several shifts in the present combination may be anticipated in order to effect a real plan of battle against Coach John McEwan's Crusaders.

The Dukes will depend upon Bud DeVinney and Al DeLuca, passing duet, tomorrow, to assist in the good work, for an air game is most likely to mark the Duke's attack.

Armand Niccolai, Monessen sophomore, again is likely to be at right end; Abele and Al Krankota, regular terminals who were injured, accompanied the team, but it is not likely Krankota will see action. Abele will be held for utility purposes.

Fight Results

At McKeesport—Young Rudy defeated Marty McHale, 10 rounds; Johnny Chiodo defeated Lou Saunders, 10 rounds; Joey Barrone defeated Bob McCormick, 8 rounds; Jimmy Loises and Claire Repole, drew, 6 rounds.

At Paris—Attila defeated Valentin Angelmann, 10 rounds.

At Miami, Fla.—Ernesto Sauger defeated Nick Claudio, 10 rounds.

At East Liverpool, O.—Ray Lyle knocked out (technical) Freddie Edwards, 2 rounds; Al Gruver knocked out (technical) Kenny Davis, 2 rounds; Charley Tarzen won on foul from Mickey Lyle, 4 rounds; Mike Thomas defeated Bill Fairweather, 4 rounds; Bud Fiber defeated Tony Cemento, 3 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Jimmy Stewart defeated Bobby Dean, 8 rounds; Ernie Caesar defeated Billy Purnell, 8 rounds.

At Paterson, N. J.—Vince Dundee knocked out Jack Kiernan, 2 rounds.

JACKET ICEMEN SET TO LIFT LID TOMORROW

LOCALS MEET HAWKS IN INAUGURAL

By CARL W. SHATTO

Although the Yellow Jacket skaters face a tough fight tomorrow night, when they will meet the Chicago Hawks, of the National League, in the first game of a two-game series at Duquesne Garden, there was no let-up in the local International Leaguers' training grind today.

With a full squad at hand for the first time since the opening of the practice sessions, Coach Charley Reid put his puckmen through a spirited two-hour session on the Garden ice this morning, and then had the Chicago club's trainer, an expert in his work, put them through some conditioning exercises.

FEW CHANGES

Cam Proudlock and Milt Halliday, left wings, and Albie Cox, spectacular and effective goalie, reported to Coach Reid yesterday, and unless Bill Holmes, big center who recently purchased his release from Syracuse, accepts Pittsburgh's terms, there will be no changes in the makeup of the squad before Syracuse comes here to open the International League title race next Thursday.

Reid devoted much time to perfecting the teamwork of his new front line of Eddie Rodden at center, Ty Arbour at left wing and Frank Ingram at right wing again today, indicating that they will be in the starting lineup when the Jackets swing into action against the Hawks tomorrow night.

FRASER IN FORM

Gordy Fraser, back in top form, and Art Berlett will be stationed in front of Albie Cox, in the nets, in the drill today Cox made many spectacular saves, indicating that he has lost none of the skill which last season made him a big favorite with Pittsburgh fans.

International League teams have been "taking it on the chin" from National League clubs with great regularity in exhibition games played in other cities. London was defeated by the New York Rangers, 6-1, and Syracuse bowed to Les Canadiens, of Montreal, 5-1. The Jackets hardly expect to take the measure of the powerful Chicagoans tomorrow, but they do expect to make as good a showing as have their International League brothers.

Inter-city amateur show for benefit of child food fund, Detroit.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

The Tiger West-Jimmy Moore eight-round semi-final at Motor Square Garden next Monday night is off. West, who recently was laid up with tonsilitis and a bronchial condition, has suffered a relapse and has had to withdraw from the engagement upon the advice of his physician, Dr. James W. Spellman, of Brookline. Matchmaker Jules Beck is casting about for a substitute. Jack Tracey, North Side Negro, may get the assignment.

Buck McTiernan, who makes his debut as a full-fledged middleweight against Ben Jeby, of New York, in the 10-round main bout, is standing up well in the training grind following his recent layoff. It was feared he might not be able to hold his newly-gained weight, but he has surprised his handlers by sticking around 160 pounds, and says he never felt better.

Jeby, by the way, pronounces his name to correspond with Jebby. In New York they call him Hebbie Jeby, and not Heebie Jeby.

Between Rounds

Dan Billick, Duquesne bantamweight, is back in training at Motor Square Garden and looks stronger than formerly. He wants to box anyone up to 122 pounds.

The St. Francis de Sales Holy Name Society, of McKees Rocks, will stage an amateur boxing show and varied entertainment in its school auditorium one week from tonight.

One of these days the boxing world will begin to realize that Battling Battalino, the featherweight champion, is a fairly good fighter, as he demonstrated just once more in defeating Earl Mastro in their bout in Chicago Wednesday night.

Frankie Bujarski needs another run such like himself in Steve Smith in their 10-rounder in Erie tonight. Frankie Wallace, who has beaten Jackie Rodgers and Moe Bolen here, engages Harry Pinti in Cleveland.

Steve Stefen, of Uniontown, will box on a benefit amateur card in Detroit tonight.

Paddy McArthur, McKeesport lightheavyweight, boxes Chuck Burns in Cleveland next Monday night. Bernie McArthur tangles with Teddy Welch at Fairmont, W. Va., November 19.

Al Brown, the bantamweight champion, meets Tommy Paul in a ten-little bout in Boston one week from Monday night.

Bobby Jones Named Sports Film Director

ATLANTA, Nov. 6.—Bobby Jones resigned his duties as a director for an athletic goods concern. He was elected at the annual meeting yesterday.

For more than a year Jones has been serving as advisor for the organization in its golf department, supervising, in a certain way, the production of its golf equipment.

He will take a more active part in the affairs of the concern now that he is a duly appointed executive.

Meet the Pitt 'B' Team, Which Plays Navy Tomorrow

GONGLOFF HARDER WEINBERG BROGE ROTH MURDOCK SCHUDA

As a forerunner to a varsity game between Pitt and the Navy a few seasons hence, two so-called "B" teams of the rival institutions will meet on the gridiron at Annapolis, Md., tomorrow. Here is the lineup of the Panther B regulars, who leave today for the scene of the battle with the Middies.

PITT, TARTANS POLISH OFF FOR TILT

two changes from the lineup that started against Notre Dame. Lib Lewis' job at right end will be filled by the capable Tony Ostrosky and Bert (Yes Suh) Pouncey is to be in at fullback, in the stead of Jerry O'Toole, who has a tummy ache or something and can't play.

The attendance at this annual city classic hardly is figured to break any records. In fact, unless the advance seat sale today and tomorrow improves mightily, a crowd of 30,000 will fill the eyes of Buddy Overend and W. (before the Don) Harrison with tears of unfeigned joy. They are going to let the kiddies in for a dime a throw, a smart move. What they should do is to sell the entire Stadium, aside from one or two 50-yard line sections, for a buck a customer.

Today the Pitt Freshmen warriors have a date with Kiski at Saltsburg. The Panther Yearlings are unbeaten, but were held to a scoreless deadlock by Carnegie's Plebes. This morning, the newly organized "B" squad, some 20 strong, leaves for Annapolis, where tomorrow it will take on the Navy "B" eleven. The following players were named by Head Coach Jock Sutherland to make the trip: Ends—Craft, Tommins, Gongloff. Tackle—Anderson, Harder, Klehnberg. Murdoch. Guards—Smith, Schuda, Broge. Centers—Wilson, Kesaris. Backs—Wells, Roth, Yesko, E. Heller, Stark, Gelini, Stricker.

At noon today there will be a snappy pep meeting and 'thuse at Ruskin Field, Oakland, where the Pitt student body will stage a demonstration aimed at working up enthusiasm for the struggle tomorrow.

DILKS MAKES LONG RUN

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Earle Dilks, local long distance runner, covered the 62½ miles between Meadville and New Castle in 9 hours 24 minutes. That is three minutes faster than Thomas Zerbe and Lauriano San Miguel, Indians, ran the same distance in Mexico in 1928, according to Dilks' friends. Dilks sustained only grape fruit and water on his long jaunt. He lost six pounds.

should have no trouble winning its seventh game of the season in its contest with Imperial at Mt. Lebanon. The only team that has beaten Mt. Lebanon this fall is McKees Rocks.

Johnny Reed takes his Scott High machine, of North Braddock, away from the floodlights to meet Duquesne at Duquesne in an afternoon fray. Duquesne has the knack of upsetting topnotchers and will prove a tough opponent for the Scotties.

BRADDOCK AT HOMESTEAD

Other good class A games today find Braddock at Homestead in a night game, Carnegie at Dormont, Bellevue at Coraopolis, Redstone at German Township, Apollo at Kittanning, McKees Rocks at Crafton, South Union at North Union, Trinity at Canonsburg and Waynesburg at Carmichaels.

Class B attractions of lesser importance find Arnold at Sewickley, Aspinwall at Avalon, Belle Vernon at Perryopolis, Millvale at Ben Avon, South Fayette at Bridgeville, Fayette City at East Pike Run, Hurst at Mt. Pleasant, Springdale at Oakmont and Claysville at East Washington.

The Shady Side Academy eleven plays the first of its Tri-State League games here tomorrow against the Nichols School, of Buffalo. Coach Jimmy Robertson has the Aspinwall boys primed for battle, and it is expected they will add further laurels to the 13-7 win they scored over the University School, of Cleveland, in their first conference tilt earlier in the season.

The soccer teams of the two schools will meet in the morning. Shady Side also holds the championship in this sport.

RUDY WINS OVER M'HALE IN M'KEESPORT

CHIODO EASILY SETS DOWN SAUNDERS

In one of the hardest-fought main bouts seen in McKeesport in a long time, Young Rudy, veteran Charleroi welterweight, defeated Marty McHale of McKeesport, taking at least six of the 10 rounds and holding McHale even in two other sessions.

From the opening bell, both boys went to work with terrific punches to the face and midsections, and several times it appeared as though one would fall beneath the ferocious wallops, but both were on their feet at the final bell.

McHale took a neat pasting throughout the fight and his face showed plainly the effects of Rudy's punches. There were cuts beneath both of Marty's eyes, while a long gash also appeared over his left optic. Several times, particularly in the sixth, eighth and ninth sessions, McHale let go with a hard right, putting every ounce of steam he had behind the wallop, but they failed to daze Rudy, who kept boring in with both fists flying.

In the 10-round semi-final, Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, made a chopping block of Lou Saunders, of McKeesport, taking eight of the 10 rounds.

Several times Chiodo had Saunders on the verge of a knockout, but the Jewish boy weathered the storm and kept trying to land a vital punch on the Johnstown fighter. In the third round, Chiodo nearly stopped Saunders and had him in bad shape, but Lou was still on his feet at the final bell. Saunders came in at 130, while Chiodo weighed 129½.

Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, bested Bob McCormick, of Pittsburgh, in the second bout of six rounds while in the opener, Jimmy Louzes, of McKeesport, went six rounds to a draw with Claire Repole, of Pittsburgh.

THREE GIANTS SHIPPED TO INDIANAPOLIS

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Three of the five players involved in the $75,000 deal for Leonard Koenecke, star Indianapolis outfielder, have been announced by the New York Giants.

The New York club made known it had consigned Pitchers Joe Heving and John Berly, right-handers, as well as Outfielder Harry Rosenberg to Indianapolis, as majority payment for the player expected to bolster the outer works of the Giants in 1932.

Pitcher Johnny Cooney, former major leaguer, already has been transferred to Indianapolis via Toledo, in connection with the deal. Rosenberg was shipped from Bridgeport, of the Eastern League.

A fifth player, as yet unselected, will be sent to Indianapolis in the spring.

It was stipulated in August, when Koenecke was acquired for 1932 delivery, that payment would be in players equivalent to $75,000.

Rosenberg came to the Giants from San Francisco, highly touted, but was released to Bridgeport, the Giants' Eastern League farm, where he batted .330 in 71 games last season.

MACK TRADES TODT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia American League Baseball Club, has announced the transfer of Phil Todt, first baseman, to St. Paul, of the American Association. Todt is being sent to the minor league club to complete the deal whereby Oscar Roettger, St. Paul first baseman, is brought to the Athletics.

Todt was obtained by the Athletics in February, 1931, when he was purchased from the Boston Red Sox for the waiver price. He played in a number of games this season and was used several times as a pinch hitter. He throws and bats left handed.

WALKER, STRIB TO FIGHT

CHARITY FUND TO BE AIDED BY BOUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Jimmy Johnston, boxing promoter for Madison Square Garden, has announced he has practically completed negotiations with Mickey Walker and W. L. (Young) Stribling for a bout in the Garden, December 11.

Proceeds of the bout will go to the New York American's Christmas Fund.

Jack Kearns asked him several days ago to get Stribling for a fight in December, Johnston said and he got Pa Stribling's consent by long distance telephone to Atlanta, Ga.

Johnston said contracts probably would be signed next week.

Stribling recently started a comeback campaign from his defeat by Max Schmeling in a fight for the heavyweight title in Cleveland, July 3.

Walker, former middleweight titleholder, gained heavyweight consideration by his amazing 15-round draw with Jack Sharkey in Ebbets Field last summer.

The Coach's Viewpoint

Beede was caught from behind on the two-yard line and the winning score was made from a line plunge a play or two later.

To this day Beede claims that if it hadn't been for a rosin pocket which was sewed on the back of his pants the morning of the game, he wouldn't have been caught before crossing the goal.

The former Tech fullback holds that the Pitt man who caught him wasn't close enough to make a tackle, but that when he dove his fingers caught inside the newly-sewn pocket. The pocket started to rip and then held, and, when the game was over it was hanging half on and half off. . . . I never before have heard of a pocket saving a touchdown . . . Wonder if Ripley has?

MANDELL MAY LOSE PURSE FOR BOUT

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Sammy Mandell, once a great champion, faces the humiliation of not receiving a cent as the result of being ordered from the ring in the eighth round of his pitiful engagement with Ralph Lenny, after the Battalino-Mastro featherweight championship fight in the Chicago Stadium.

This development came yesterday, causing the admirers of the former lightweight titleholder to urge him to quit the ring. Under the rules of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, the purse of a boxer tossed out of the ring is automatically forfeited, and the only compensation he may receive is trainfare to and from his home, plus $25 a day for training expenses.

Despite the pleas of his admirers, Mandell will attempt to continue boxing. He thinks he received a raw deal.

CITY SCHOOLS TO MEET

The annual city high school cross-country meet will be held over the short course in Schenley Park, near Tuesday afternoon at 3:45. All 12 schools in the city will have entries on the race.

Gridder's Secret Wedding Is Annulled

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Kenneth Meenan, Northwestern's sensational sophomore halfback will start against Minnesota Saturday, but there was doubt for a while yesterday that he ever would play football for the Wildcats again, all on account of a secret marriage last summer.

Helen Major—or Mrs. Meenan, as she was then—appeared in Superior Court yesterday, with her father, to obtain annulment of her marriage on the grounds that she was not of age when she was secretly wed to the Wildcat star last August. Her plea was granted upon corroboration of her testimony by her father, J. C. Major.

There is a rule against student marriages at Northwestern.

Stagg 'Run Over' In Chicago Drill

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(INS.)—Chicago's veteran coach, A. A. Stagg, bore several bruises today as evidence that there is at least one good blocker on the Maroon squad. Stagg got in the way of a scrimmage yesterday as the Maroons were drilling for tomorrow's game with Arkansas, and was sent sprawling.

FOUR SOCCER TILTS SLATED TOMORROW

By TOM BIRKS

The Central League and West Penn cup ties are expected to attract soccer fans tomorrow afternoon. The cup battles and two league tilts are carded.

At the Westinghouse High School stadium, Cecil, of the Keystone League, and Clan Douglas, Central League champion, clash, while at Houston the local club tangles with the Gallatin Braves.

In the Central League, Manager Jack Campbell did not want to keep the Switch team idle, so the Swissvalers will make a trip to Tarentum, and this game should be easy for McNair and his boys. At Swissvale, Westinghouse meets the Pittsburgh Celtics.

NET CONFAB GOES SOUTH

LIONS SHIFT AGAIN

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 6.—(AP.)—For the fourth time this week, a new combination in the Penn State backfield was tried yesterday. Conn was in at quarter, and Goldie returned to fullback in the goal to last practice before the Colgate game here tomorrow.

STOCK MARKET STAGES BRISK UPSWING

Metal Shares Lead Sharp Rally in Late Trading; Many Issues Up 2 to 5

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Further buying enthusiasm in the wheat and silver markets precipitated a fresh outburst of bullishness in stocks in the late trading today, and many prominent issues gained 2 to more than 5 points. Sales approximated 2,000,000 shares in the first hour and in about a half hour more than that was stron.

The bond market was somewhat more spotted than recently but improved in the late trading. High grade bank investments were actively sought and foreigns improved, notably Latin Americans. Stocks reacted 1 to 2 points in the morning but regained their losses around midday as metal shares were bought in response to the further upturn in silver.

The advance broadened in the late trading and among issues closing about 2 to 5 higher were United States Steel, American Telephone, Kennecott, American Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, Homestake Mining, St. Joseph Lead, Allied Chemical, American Can, American Water Works, Case, Corn Products, Eastman, American Tobacco B, Union Pacific, du Pont, Public Service of New Jersey, and Woolworth. Gains of 1 point or more appeared throughout the list.

Fresh stimulus was given the metal issues by a further rise in bar silver which added 1¼ cents to yesterday's 1½-cent rise, bringing the price to 34 cents an ounce and the highest in about a year. While not one of the elements in the copper market were making most of the [illegible] also produce [illegible] amounts of silver. Gold mining stocks have been working [illegible] for some time, as lowered commodity prices in relation to the fixed price of gold have [illegible] cost.

The Manchurian crisis is receiving considerable attention in speculative quarters. But while some observers have felt that the Far Eastern war clouds may have had a stimulating effect upon commodity prices, the tendency in Wall street is to attribute the upturn to more fundamental causes.

The weekly mercantile reviews were cheerful, saying that optimism was gaining in many quarters as result of the upturn in grain, and that retail trade was feeling the stimulus of cooler weather.

The money market showed an easier tone and bankers acceptance and commercial paper rates were shaded.

Reeser Offered California Oil Czarship

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—A definite offer will be made E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum Institute and head of the Barnsdall Corporation, to accept the presidency of the Oil Producers Sales Agency of California.

While the official position to be offered is merely the presidency of the agency, it likely will prove to be unofficially that of chief adviser and arbitrator for the entire industry in California, oil men pointed out.

The sales agency is a co-operative group of oil producers which at present handles some 2,300,000 barrels of oil monthly.

WHEAT RALLIES SHARPLY

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Persistent buying on the part of undiscouraged believers in higher prices for wheat led to late advances today to well above yesterday's finish. The rise represented an upturn of almost four cents from an early low point. Reports of dust storms in two tiers of Kansas counties, a condition ominous of crop damage, were a late bullish factor.

Wheat closed nervous ¾ to 1⅜ cents higher than yesterday's finish; corn ⅝ to 1¼ cents up; oats unchanged to ¼ cent off, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents down.

[illegible]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—After early strength, prices on the stock exchange today were shaded on profit taking, but German bonds and Argentine rails were notably higher. Japanese bonds were [illegible]. Sterling advanced to $4.79½ in the post-market trading.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—(AP.)—Prices on the bourse today were irregular. Early losses were partly recovered on repurchases near the close.

Misleading of Investors To Mean Prison?

—By B. C. FORBES—

THE MAN who for many years held the most important position in British shipping a member of the peerage has been sent to convict prison for a year. He was convicted of issuing a prospectus containing misleading statements. Declared the appeal judge:

"Half a truth is no better than a downright falsehood."

B. C. Forbes

Is there not a warning in this for some promoters, brokers, executives, investment and other bankers in this country?

THE AMERICAN public has become so bitter against "Wall Street" and everything it conjures up in the public mind that anyone brought before judge and jury accused of deceiving unwary investors is likely in the future to be dealt with much more severely than in the past.

And it is right that this should be so.

I HAVE never been able to understand why when it is accounted such a heinous crime to issue fake currency the issuing of fake securities and bonds has been so lightly punished. The public is swindled out of a thousand dollars by bogus securities for every dollar lost through bogus currency.

Why not make it as grave a crime to swindle the public by producing worthless stocks as by producing worthless currency? The one offense works infinitely more hardship than the other.

OUR LAWS governing the issuing of securities have proved altogether too lax, too easy-going, too ineffective.

Why should a poor unfortunate have to pay for a license to peddle articles costing only a few cents, when a more astute and less honest individual can peddle securities to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars, even millions without having to pay for any license whatsoever?

THE DECEIVING of the public by questionable security issues has not been confined to puny, irresponsible unclassed individuals or organizations. It would be hard to convince juries, were all the facts laid before them, that there was no "misleading" of the public in recent years by individuals and firms and institutions claiming to be entirely respectable.

One cannot but suspect that numbers of issuers of securities have not rigidly lived up to the British judge's dictum:

"Half a truth is no better than a downright falsehood."

CAN YOU BLAME the public for not having supremely high regard for manufacturers and distributors of new securities when almost every offering has some such small-type line as this?—

"While we believe the above information to be correct, we cannot guarantee it."

The public is accustomed to having even third-rate department stores and other merchants as well as manufacturers stand behind what they sell with an unconditional guarantee. What would the public think of, say, a mail order house or a department store or a clothing manufacturer that advertised:

"While we believe our products are all right, we cannot guarantee them in any way. You must take your chances with them."

Yet, isn't it just what the manufacturers and merchants of securities do? Not only must dishonest promoters and peddlers of securities be prepared for more drastic action against them, but Wall street and everything it connotes in the public mind must likewise realize that things tolerated in the past will not be tolerated hereafter.

The New York Stock Exchange, for example, must not delude itself as to how it is regarded by the vast majority of the people. It is doubtful in my humble opinion whether the governors of that institution have exercised statesmanship in their handling of short-selling.

Would it not have been wiser to go further in satisfying the overwhelming demand for suspension of short-selling during the worst of the security market crisis? The failure to placate the public is bound to result in legislative investigation and perhaps in drastic legislative action.

THE MAN in the street used to look upon the head of a bank as a personage of superior intelligence, of far-sighted judgment, of weighty responsibility and great substance. That attitude has been blasted. Many people, including not a few who are far from revolutionaries, have formed most uncomplimentary opinions concerning many of our so-called bank leaders and of banks as a whole.

Prominent executives of large corporations have likewise lost their halos.

ALL IN ALL, our financial and corporation leaders—and non-leaders—had better watch their step as never before. The public is in no mood to be trifled with.

A "misleading" prospectus having sent a British lord to the penitentiary, the American public may hereafter demand similar punishment for issuers of "misleading" prospectuses, reports, statements or suchlike here.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—The upward movement in bonds was checked to some extent today following the weakness in stocks.

Public utility and United States government loans resisted the decline better than other issues. The latter were generally higher.

Foreign obligations declined irregularly. German loans scored some of the larger losses.

AMERICAN WATER WORKS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY INCORPORATED (of Delaware)

NOTICE OF DIVIDEND

A regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share on the $5 series, Five Per Cent Preferred Stock of the Company for the quarter ending December 31, 1931, has been declared payable January 2, 1932, to stockholders of record at the close of business on December 11, 1931.

Strength in Bond Market Adds to Confidence

By GEORGE B. SNYDER

STRENGTH IN THE BOND market lends confirmation to the growing belief that the end of unnaturally low prices for second grade issues is in sight. During most of the present year industrial bonds of all but the strongest companies declined. Within the past few months many of the rail bonds developed weakness under the realization of the fact that the prospects for the steam lines are dubious. The bond market reached its lowest point a few weeks ago and since that time there has been evidence of pronounced strength.

Forced selling undoubtedly was one of the principal factors in the declines in bond prices. Naturally the number of defaults has been greater than usual this year but it is difficult to account for the depressed levels of the bonds of many companies which have extensive properties, large resources and good records of past performance.

While the actual change in business volume has been slight during the past month, the improvement in confidence regarding the outlook for 1932 has been substantial. Rising prices for some of the important stable commodities may be an indication that a change in attitude from one of pessimism to one of optimism is justified.

Effect On Bonds

IF THE HOPES FOR IMPROVEMENT in business in the new year are born out by actual performance, bonds will be the first type of security to benefit. Forced selling of fixed income securities will be stopped, the earnings of underlying properties will be increased and bonds will enjoy greater confidence.

With bond prices at the extreme low levels of the present time, it is logical to expect that material improvement in this market may take place even before there is a corresponding recovery in stocks. Bond yields are abnormally high, particularly when comparison is made with money rates.

Attractive Speculations

A STUDY OF BOND PRICES shows that securities of many outstanding corporations, well entrenched although not of the highest rating, are selling at prices ranging between 50 and 80. To one who believes that the end of the business depression is near, these seem to offer more attractive speculations than stocks. In the case of bonds of this class, the instances where there is actual danger of default are few. Recovery in business and earnings should remove all doubts about the future of these issues and naturally should ultimately restore them to prices close to par.

In the meantime, these bonds yield a high return on money tied up in them in addition to the prospects for speculative profit.

STERLING CUTS OIL FLOW

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 6—(AP)—Gov. R. S. Sterling has announced that allowable production in the giant East Texas oil field would be reduced to 125 barrels per well daily, effective Saturday. The per-well production now is 150 barrels daily.

Gov. Sterling's announcement came in the wake of a general 15-cent-a-barrel increase in Mid-Continent crude oil prices, generally believed by the oil industry to have resulted largely from restriction programs in Texas and Oklahoma.

LOANS DECLINE $20,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City decreased $20,000,000 during the week ended November 4 to $849,000,000. This is a new low and compares with $869,000,000 in the preceding week and the record high of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

October Slab Zinc Yield Up Slightly

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—Production of slab zinc in October totaled 21,674 short tons, comparing with 21,356 in September and 40,922 in October, 1930, according to the American Zinc Institute. Shipments were 21,163 tons, against 20,902 in September and 32,430 in October, 1930. Stocks at the end of October amounted to 130,666 tons, against 130,155 in September and 143,327 in October, 1930.

THE LOVE TRAP -:- Story of a Girl's Struggle For Love and Happiness -:- By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

Mary Decides on Effort to Get Knowledge From Gang Member

CHAPTER XIV

Carlotta Guido's denunciation of Landers seemed to be producing a novel effect upon the man who had been so self-possessed with Mary.

His face began to look a little mottled. "I—I—" he stopped. For the first time, he showed hesitation and doubt. But his uncertainty passed in a flash and he threw his head back.

"I warned you once before—leave me alone and keep out of this!" He glared at Carlotta Guido. "You can be handled just the same as anybody else. I'm shaking myself loose from this Broadway mob and you're wasting your time trying to hold me."

"You'll be telling your story to a police inspector pretty soon if you don't watch out," she sneered at him. "You're not so big in this town, feller."

He stared at her poker-faced.

"That crack about the police inspector doesn't go so good with me, Carlotta. As a matter of fact you sound a little like a squealer to me yourself. That's funny, too—considering that the cops never have found out what you know about the Goldstein murder. Nobody even tipped 'em off you were in Goldstein's apartment that night. They'd give a lot to break that case and convict somebody. A woman in your shoes ought to walk a pretty straight line, Carlotta. Think that over, before you start butting in my affairs."

AGGRESSIVENESS GONE

Mary was startled at the change that had come over Carlotta Guido. The woman's brassness had all gone—her olive color had faded into a pasty pallor and the bold eyes were humble with fear . . .

"They could cut my tongue out before I'd ever squeal on you, Buck," she said. "You know that."

"I don't like the way you talk."

"It's only for your own good, Buck—I swear it is. This kid don't care anything about you. Me, I'm the only one who would stick to you through thick and thin."

"That's fine—when I need you, I'll call on you."

Carlotta shifted uneasily on her left foot; Landers was staring from her to the door, but she was reluctant to go.

"You ain't treating me right, Buck," she said. "You're just a chump to this frail here. I'm the only one on earth that loves you."

Landers paid no attention to her.

"It hasn't done you any good to spill the works to Carlotta," he said to Mary. "She's all washed up with me. What I told you before still stands, and you better be sensible."

"You don't really care for me, Mr. Landers, and you know you don't. You're just being stubborn and foolish. You're throwing down the only woman who cares a rap for you, and you're making a fool of yourself over one that couldn't ever care about you. It isn't even foolish—it's plain silly!"

CARLOTTA DISREGARDED

Carlotta threw herself down on the sofa, stubbornly persistent.

"The trouble with Buck is," she said, "that he's climbed up too high in the world. You got to the top in your own racket, Buck, and you're up there now—just balancing up on the top. It's a pretty slippery place, too, up there—things that balance pretty generally are shaky. As long as a man is climbing he's pretty sensible. I've been with you through a couple of struggles, while you were getting up there, Buck, and I was pretty good then."

"Can that!" Commanded Landers.

"God, I hate to see you ruin yourself on account of a skirt!" Carlotta went on fiercely. "I've seen guys like you take the big fall before. They get up in the cards and then they go to pieces. Rothstein got too smart for safety. And a dozen other big shots—men as big as you and bigger. And then they wonder why somebody gets 'em! Nobody gets 'em—they get themselves." Her breast was rising and falling with her shortness of breath. "I'm telling you, Buck—you better listen to Carlotta, honey. I'm the one that's standing between you and a lot of grief—the only one . . .

Landers lit a cigar. "And the only reason I let you keep on talking," he said, "is to get it out of your system. That line won't work with me any more. I listened to it for a long time and I gave you a lot of rough. You ought to have a chunk of it saved up, so you're quits."

"Some day you'll wish that you'd listened to me," Carlotta breathed.

Landers shrugged.

"I'm sorry you let yourself in to hear all this, Mary," he said, "but it doesn't mean anything, after all. It's been a long time since anybody bluffed me, and Carlotta hasn't got a chance with her line." He looked at his former sweetheart with insolent eyes. "You better forget me, Carlotta. Go make a hit with Moe Levy; he always had an eye for you."

PREVENTS VIOLENCE

Carlotta sprang to her feet, fumbling with her hand bag. Her eyes were wide. "You can't pass me on to another man, you—"

Landers rushed at her and seized the bag from her hands; he threw it across the room and it struck on a table beside Mary.

"Don't you ever try to pull a knife on me again," he cried furiously. "I'll never cash in by that route, so don't waste your time. Now get out of here!"

He threw open the door and seized Carlotta by the shoulders, pushed her out into the corridor and slammed the door behind her. Mary heard the key turn in the lock. She had never seen Landers so excited before; his face was blanched, and the pupils of his cold eyes were dancing.

"I thought you had more sense than to blab to a woman like that!" he said bitterly. "She can't help you. All you're doing is making it worse for Steve. I was willing to play fair with you, but if you drive me to the extreme limit, remember, it's all your own fault. You might as well learn sooner or later that all this stalling isn't going to do you any good."

"It's not doing you any good, either," Mary told him coldly.

REVOLVER IN BAG

Exasperation contorted his face. "All right—have your own way!" he growled. "It's true I cannot force you to marry me. You'd have to do it voluntarily, but at the same time, and never forget it, if anything goes wrong, God help your boy friend. That's one thing you can depend on. I'd fix him if it was the last thing I did on earth—if you crossed me."

Stark terror gripped her heart, but something stronger forced her to keep her eyes level. She could only help Steve by strength, not by weakness.

"May I go now, please?" she asked quietly.

Landers stared at her in silence and then flung open the door. "Nothing has changed and nothing is going to change," he assured her. "I expect my answer tomorrow."

She walked out of the apartment and the door closed behind her. Carlotta Guido was nowhere in sight—most likely she had slunk away from the hotel beaten in her effort. But somewhere in the city, Mary imagined, the woman was nursing her hurt pride and secretly fanning her own dangerous fires.

Mary rang for the elevator and at that moment discovered she carried a strange handbag. In a moment it flashed back to her that she had picked up Carlotta's bag instead of her own from the table where Landers had flung it. But it made no difference — the mistake was trivial. Some weight in the bag made it unusually heavy, and while she waited for the elevator she unfastened the clasp to glance inside. What she saw was a blue-black automatic pistol—small, compact, deadly.

CARLOTTA NO HELP

The handbag weighted with the automatic swung heavily in Mary's hand as she came out in the elevator. There were women like that in the world, ones who carried guns and would use them. Mary, dwelling recently in a constant state of nerve-strain, accepted the weapon as a natural fact. Keyed up with the desperate talk of Landers and Carlotta Guido still ringing in her ears, an automatic seemed a not unnatural part of the picture. She even thought of it as a means of self-protection. If she could only put it into the hands of Steve it might help him escape, but there was no use thinking of that. She didn't even know where Steve was. But just to think of him, gave her a surge of recklessness. By day and by night her pulse had been beating at a new faster rhythm.

One thing was becoming increasingly clear to Mary. Carlotta Guido had been no help to her; nothing more could be hoped for from Landers' former sweetheart. The two women had joined forces and nothing had come from it; nothing except the dark slimness of the automatic in Mary's possession. No, she would have to rely entirely upon herself. With a little grim regret she knew that she stood alone, but there was no good getting into a panic over it. She was swept by a remorseless fatalism that made her almost calm.

She walked across the lobby and out the front door. On the curb balancing himself, stood the ever-watchful Bat. He had discarded his cap and was wearing a gray felt hat.

The shape of his face was crooked. He was looking at Mary with expressionless eyes. She did not avoid his gaze.

TALKS TO FOLLOWER

It was strange, but true, that the possession of Carlotta's automatic pistol gave her a feeling of protection. She had never touched such a weapon before, but she knew perfectly well how to use it. The movies had taught her that: you merely pointed it at somebody and pulled the trigger. It was a simple operation. Bat did not seem as terrifying as he had been before.

She walked down to the corner of Broadway and stopped at a fruit-juice stand for a glass of the cold, sweet liquid. Bat hovered not 15 feet away from her. Somewhere inside his ugly head was the secret of Steve's whereabouts. If he wanted to talk—if he turned traitor to Landers—he could replace her horrible worry with marvelous joy. But to wring anything from him would be equivalent to crushing a cobble stone in her little pink palms.

A wild impulse stirred her. She looked straight at Bat.

"Hello," she said quietly.

He shot a surprised glance at her; his face startled out of its crooked immobility. He hadn't expected her to speak to him—it upset his morale.

"Hello," he growled with hard defiance.

Nevertheless, Mary knew that in some subtle way, he had been flattered. She turned and walked back in the direction from which she had come, back past the hotel in an aimless direction that was taking her away from the subways and buses. It was a maneuver that puzzle Bat, and he dogged her steps with disturbed fidelity. At the corner, she stopped and waited for him to come up.

His steps slowed and he hung back, but eventually he had to come even with her. Mary drew in her breath sharply, nerving herself. She half turned toward him, one of her hands clutched. A tiny wisp of her live, gold hair had strayed from under the little blue hat; her cheeks were lit with color, her eyes full of gathered intensity. It was as though a flame burned inside her.

Bat would have walked past, with his hat pulled down and his jaw firmly set, but she pulled him out of his pretended absentmindedness.

"Don't you ever get tired of following me around?" she demanded sharply.

His face flushed darkly, and he came to an awkward halt.

"What do you mean?"

Her blue eyes held him with a burning steadiness. "You ought to know what I mean. Don't you ever get sick of yourself for taking money to sneak around after a girl? You look like a man; don't you ever want to act like one?"

His color darkened violently. Her scorn had touched some secret spot in his self-esteem, and he glared at her without being able, on the instant to defend himself.

"But I don't suppose you would dare follow a man," she mused aloud.

She was trembling inwardly, but her mind was dizzy with longing for Steve. She must find him and see him; even if she had to force her way through brick walls!

Her eyes clung to Bat, holding him against release. She tried to read what was in his mind, and it seemed that he was more embarrassed than angry. The flush on his face looked like shame, his body was awkward, his lips jerked a little as if fumbling for proper words with which to establish his masculinity. He spoke, finally, in a tone that he tried to make casual.

"You got me wrong, Miss Kennedy. I ain't never offered you any harm, have I?"

She tasted a bitter satisfaction from this first success of the opening wedge. If Buck was turning, this creature might be used to magnificent purpose.

She continued to look straight at him.

"Harm me? You've done things that have made my life a hell on earth!"

But this was not true, and Bat knew it. He had, in fact, done very little. Injured innocence came to his defense and he was able, with a thrust of emphasis, to deny the accusations.

"I ain't ever lifted a finger against you!" he declared vigorously. "If other people have made your life a hell on earth—you can't blame me. You got no right to call me dirty names." He was apparently pleased with the strength of his denial, and was tempted to embellish it. He had his pride and vanity, and had no relish to appear contemptible in the eyes of a girl as pretty as Mary Kennedy. "As a matter of fact, I don't get paid for anything like this. I'm just doing a favor for a pal, same as he would do a favor for me."

The underlying trait in him that claimed equality with his master deceived Mary not at all. He was a liar, and there was a taint of cowardice behind his vicious exterior. Also, he was encouragingly dumb. Mary bit her lips for an instant, while she gathered her daring together. It was a desperate chance . . . but she was not going to let this thug get away from her.

Mary accepted the weapon.

She looked straight at Bat. "Hello," she said.

"You can't blame me," he said.

What Has Gone Before

Mary Kennedy, pretty secretary, engaged to Buck Landers, wealthy, middle-aged sports promoter, realizes love is greater than riches when she meets young and handsome Steve Moore, Landers' ward. Buck surprises Steve and Mary as they confess their love for one another. When Steve refuses to give up Mary, Landers threatens him. Landers warns Mary Steve's fate depends upon her. He insists that she visit him to talk things over. Fearing for Steve's safety, Mary has him move to her boarding house. Then she goes to keep her appointment with Landers. He insists that Mary marry him and Steve leave town. Landers' henchmen knock Steve unconscious when he voluntarily asks them to take him to Landers. Next morning Mary promises Landers she will be responsible if he will spare Steve. Landers gives Mary 24 hours to decide if she will marry him. Steve's life is threatened if she refuses. Mary meets Carlotta Guido, Landers' former sweetheart, who agrees to help her. Together they visit Buck.

Release of Bank Funds

Secretary Gordon's Visit Augurs Well for the Plan to Make Frozen Deposits Available.

Depositors in closed banks and the merchants whose business will suffer if the depositors' "frozen assets" are not soon liquidated have good reason for encouragement in current developments.

The visit of Secretary William D. Gordon, of the State Banking Department, to Pittsburgh yesterday augured well.

Conservative bankers are able to offer arguments why the customary "red tape" involved in the liquidation of closed banks should be handled in the old-fashioned way — a way which usually required the lapse of eight or nine months before depositors received any of their money.

Dr. Gordon shows a disposition to find new ways of solving the difficulties. He is not a slave to precedent. His attitude indicates a determination to put some of the depositors' money in their hands in time for Christmas shopping, if it can possibly be done.

Where there's a will there's a way.

A Just, Sentence

Imprisonment and Fine Imposed in First Election Fraud Case Should Have Salutary Effect.

The prosecution of the election crooks has started auspiciously. A conviction was obtained in the first case—that of a man who registered as a resident of the First Ward though actually living in the Second Ward.

The sentence of one year in prison and a fine of $100 is just.

It will serve as a warning that election fraud is a serious crime. The leniency that some of the judges have shown in such cases has apparently given many persons the impression that crookedness at the polls is a comparatively trivial offense. The consequence is that Allegheny County has experienced cheating on so extensive a scale as almost to make a mockery of some of our elections.

With the cheaters high and low placed behind prison bars for a term, there is hope that the citizens will be able to place in office the public officials of their choice.

The Lake Canal Plan

It Is a Pity That Magee's Suggestion Is Not Receiving the Consideration It Deserves.

There was a public hearing in Youngstown Wednesday on the proposal that the Federal Government build a canal to connect the Ohio River with Lake Erie.

Five hundred persons attended, including a delegation from Pittsburgh. The usual arguments were presented—that the canal would benefit business, that it would be assured of a large amount of traffic, that the Beaver-Mahoning River route is the best, and that it is a job for the Federal Government.

It is an old story. Several generations of Pittsburghers have been familiar with it. And still the canal remains merely a dream, with no prospect of its being built in the immediate future, notwithstanding that it is just the kind of undertaking that the Federal Government might well take up at this time as a step towards relieving unemployment.

The United States engineers are not yet convinced that Col. Kutz was wrong when he reported a few years ago that the scheme was "economically inadvisable."

Bitter opposition to the Beaver-Mahoning route comes, moreover, from the advocates of rival routes farther west in Ohio and also from the proponents of the Allegheny River-French Creek route.

The outlook for the construction of the canal by the Federal Government is not encouraging.

But there is an alternative plan. It was outlined by former Mayor W. A. Magee some months ago. He proposes that the canal shall be built by the municipalities to which it will be most beneficial—Pittsburgh, Wheeling, New Castle, Youngstown and others.

Mr. Magee has made a careful study of the matter. His report is fortified with facts and figures which make the plan seem quite feasible. It is a pity that it is not receiving the consideration it deserves.

The Gang's Strongholds

Opponents of Machine Rule Should Do Some Missionary Work in the Controlled Sections.

Study of the election returns shows that the corrupt Republican gang was strong in industrial and commercial districts, in neighborhoods where people of foreign birth live, and in thickly built up sections.

The Independent candidates received their majorities in the purely residential districts, in neighborhoods inhabited by people who have been American citizens for several generations, and in the rural sections.

It is hard to understand why the people of the gang-controlled districts allow themselves to be controlled. The explanation that the gang's ward and district leaders keep in personal touch with the voters and do them little favors now and then is not altogether satisfactory. It seems more likely that the gang's followers in many cases sincerely believe that their interests are different from those of the people in the uncontrolled districts and that their welfare can best be served by gang rule.

There is need for missionary work to point out to these misguided people that they suffer with the rest of the citizens from the high taxation, the demoralization of the police, the misuse of public funds, and the election frauds which have marked gang rule.

"The Gang's All Here" -:- By Nelson Harding

Is not a pretty sight;
And if you can't endure their looks,

The front row, seated, all belong,
As do those in the rear;
And that tall member's in his place,
And so the gang's all here.

The Decorative Sex

Just when the hard-boiled American business man became beauty conscious it is hard to say. These things are SO insidious!

But, if you don't believe that he values his artistic effects, his sartorial allure and his sex-appeal, you have not been reading the newspapers or watching the signs. Particularly, the electric signs and the billboards, in which the male Adonis lights a cigaret, sports a fancy car or a shock of curly hair.

Time was, when the advertisements and prospectus had to promise him something substantial—a good, hearty meal, a cure for dyspepsia, a raise in salary, a chance to develop he-man muscles, or a shoe that wouldn't pinch.

But, look at them, now! They offer him only AESTHETIC rewards. A garter that will keep his silk-clad ankles neat and natty for the feminine eye; a glossy hair-dressing that will make him popular at smart teas.

He is threatened with loss of sex-appeal if he fails to use So-and-So's peerless bath soap, or Somebody's antiseptic talcum powder, or Somebody's shaving cream. He is exhorted to keep "that boyish smile" bright and dazzling with this or that magic tooth paste. And to wear the tailored shirts or collars that blend with his "personality."

* * *

He is urged to buy electric belts—not for his digestion—but for his sylph-like "lines," so that he can continue to be a riot with the women.

He is even tempted to learn (by mail) to speak French and play the piano, in order that he may dazzle the fair sex, at parties.

The magazine-cover girl has a dazzling rival in the poster-ad boy. Such cameo-features, such a classic profile! Such a rosy school-boy complexion and sweeping eyelashes! Such graceful streamlines! Such "IT."

All of which is a far-cry from the practical male, who had to be told when he needed a hair-cut and thought he was making a great concession to feminine fastidiousness, if he slicked back his hair and resisted an onion.

As a charmer, man is now vieing with all the other males of creation—and becoming the DECORATIVE SEX! Has the screen-actor, by chance, awakened this beauty-consciousness in the American man? If so, we are grateful, for we needed something picturesque and ornamental—to LOOK!

Harry P. Burton, a Cleveland "O" boy, who made good in the city. Overheard: "When they can't diagnose your case, they snatch your tonsils." The original house in the stage version of "Street Scene." A fellow who owes me 100 berries becomes suddenly interested in the sky. Wonder if Pepy de Albrew has his hair waved!

Jane Cowl's queenly carriage. But I prefer Patsy Kelly's Tenth avenue slouch. She's funnier than Hope Williams, too. Who also walks like a Bowery belle of yesteryear. George Jessel walks as though his head was haltered. And Alexander Woollcott doesn't walk at all. He skips.

A blind woman sings "Silver Threads" sweetly in Columbus Circle. Some day part of a city's enormous graft may be diverted to care for such human tragedies.

I like talk over the coffee cups these days. Thinking people are in dangerous revolt against things they used to tolerate—Tammany corruption, blackmailing lawyers, loose living among highly paid officials and banks that preyed on innocent investors. Gov. Roosevelt and Al Smith are not exactly like that!

They say the Waldorf emptied most of the hotels in its neighborhood. And is filled to capacity. That pulsating whine as a subway express rounds a curve. Like the aching cry of a thrush. I like Will Cuppy's line: If man did descend from monkeys, it shows a little more on some people.

Italians outnumber other racial groups in New York—official figures are 1,070,356, and include natives whose parents were born in Italy. Irish, supposed to be second, are not. But Russia is with 945,000. Ireland third with 612,000 and Germans fourth with 600,000.

I skip a paragraph like the one above. Figures bore me and those similarly affected who hippity-hopped over it, too, may like to know they didn't miss a thing.

Every newspaper shop used to have one fortunate pointed out to cubs as "writing a book." Today every newspaper in town has several full-blown authors. One, indeed, has nine recognized novelists on its staff.

The first author I ever saw in a close up was John Uri Lloyd, whose novel "Stringtown on the Pike" was best seller of the day. As a ululating underling I was sent to interview him and told him of my Big Dream to write a book, too. And asked if there were any formulas. "Keep warming a chair until it's finished," he said, and it's still grand advice. H. G. Wells once said every man with an urge to write should first read Plato's Apology.

MODERN STELLAR FINDINGS

By Archibald Henderson

Some of the great triumphs of modern astrology have to do with the distribution of the stars. Almost all the stars fall within what is known as the "Draper Classification," which was carried through at Harvard under the direction of E. C. Pickering. They fell into eight different types represented by the letters OBAFGK MN. By 1891 the astronomers were beginning to arrive at results of importance; and in that year E. C. Pickering wrote: It appears that the number of stars of the second and third type (i. e. Orion and Sirian stars) is nearly the same in the Milky Way as in other parts of the sky. Considering, therefore, only the stars whose spectra resemble that of the Sun, we should find them nearly equally distributed in the sky. It was also discovered, by Kapteyn and Campbell independently, that on the average radial velocities of the stars of types known as later types, were greater than those of the earlier types, and that in fact the average linear velocity of stars receding from the earth increase from one type to another.

At first it was quite easy to interpret the new discovery in the obvious way. The progression of average velocity with advancing spectral type was undoubted. This was taken to mean that as a star grew older it moved faster. A few years later, however, this too facile explanation was upset by Prof. Henry Norris Russel, of Princeton. In 1915 says Macpherson in Modern Cosmologies, Eddington suggested that the progression of speed with spectral type is only a particular manifestation of some more general relation. Doubtless, he observed, there is some more fundamental factor associated with the speed, from which both the progression with type and the progression with luminosity arise. We have practically no evidence as to what this factor is; but the natural suggestion is that it may be mass.

It was along similar lines of thought that Russell in 1919 suggested that the real cause of the dependence of mean velocity on spectral type and absolute magnitude is perhaps a correlation between large velocity and small mass. It has finally been settled that the brighter stars are streaming in two preferential directions in the galactic plane, and that the less massive stars are on the average moving with somewhat greater velocity than those of greater mass.

The Rape of Temperance

SECOND ARTICLE.

THE prohibition amendment to the Constitution is at war with the fundamental purposes of our government, with the declared purpose of the Constitution, and with every other section of it, because it assumes federal control over acts committed wholly within the borders of the states, and, like all other acts, originally cognizable alone by the tribunals of the states.

They have repudiated the declaration that all men "are endowed by their Creator" with the inalienable rights to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and have substituted therefor a new legislative and constitutional doctrine that the pursuit of happiness shall be in accordance with the will of the Anti-Saloon League.

How RIDICULOUS, how TRAGIC it all is.

BY the Eighteenth Amendment they reversed this policy as to intoxicating liquors. The anomaly presented is that we still trust the states exclusively to punish murder, arson, rape, robbery and all other crimes, however heinous, but hold that the states cannot be trusted to regulate the sale of a glass of beer.

If in the presence of the United States Marshal a man were to sell a thirsty applicant a single glass of beer and then, in cold blood, were to assassinate his customer, the murderer could be arrested and tried in the Federal Court. For what? For the sale of the glass of beer. Yet he could not be arrested and tried in the Federial Court for the deliberate murder.

For the precepts of moral law implanted by the Almighty in the hearts of men they substitute legislative statutes; for persuasion, force; for the admonition of conscience, the terrors of fear.

No longer do we hear the doctrine of temperance, self-restraint, and self-responsibility taught. All that we hear are the discordant notes of the fanatic: "Law, more law, and still more law! Punishment and still more punishment!"

Heap heavier still the shackles,
Bar closer still the gate;
Patient as sheep, let all men yield
Unto our cruel hate.

I BELIEVE, as all decent people believe, that this should be a temperate nation; that drunkenness should be reduced to the minimum, and that with the march of intelligence it will practically disappear.

One theory is to pass laws strictly regulating the manufacture of liquor, forbidding the sale to minors or incompetents, and to back these efforts by education, by appeals to reason by teaching people self restraint, and by moral and religious persuasion.

The other theory is to forbid by statute the sale or possession of liquors, fix heavy penalties, employ an army of spies and informers, and substitute for moral persuasion, education and intelligence the application of force.

The latter theory has been tried out. It is all very well to say people should obey the law. But, if the people do not obey the law, if crime and vice and drunkenness and law-breaking have resulted, it then becomes the duty of all good citizens not to persist stubbornly in a vicious and hopeless policy, but to seek for some other remedy.

We must take this world as it is, seeking always to make it a little better. There are certain things that cannot be accomplished by man-made laws. They must be controlled by appeals to the intellect and to the conscience of man.

If, by constitutional amendment, all people were commanded to attend a certain church, no benefit would be conferred upon that church. It would immediately promote opposition, skepticism and hatred of the established religion. Yet the adherents of that particular faith would be perfectly sure that all men ought to believe in their accepted church.

YOU cannot make people adhere to a particular code of ethics by man-made law. These sentiments which, for the most part, control the conduct of civilized humanity are the results of long years of teachings added to the inheritance of the past. They were perhaps originally bestowed upon man by the kindness of heaven.

What law can do is to prevent interference with the natural rights of man. Laws regulating personal conduct where that conduct does not impinge upon the rights of others have always been failures. The substitution of force for moral suasion has been demonstrated in the foregoing articles to be a dismal and cataclysmic failure.

I appeal to the lovers of humanity, to the advocates of real temperance, to the ministers of the gospel, to the fathers and mothers of the land, to find a remedy.

Others may be able to make better suggestions than I advance. But to my mind the first step should be a return to the states of their natural duties and functions.

If the traffic in interstate liquor interferes with proper enforcement of the laws of these states, that traffic can be prohibited or regulated by the federal government.

Such has for many years been my theory, a theory upon which I acted when I offered what is known as the "Reed Amendment," which made all intoxicating liquors, the moment they arrived within the borders of a state, subject exclusively to the laws of that commonwealth.

I SHOULD repeal the inhuman and brutal laws passed by men who, in the name of charity and Christianity, have imposed penalties so atrocious that the imposition constitutes a crime a thousand times worse than the act committed by the individual against whom the penalties are enforced.

I should discharge the army of spies, snoopers and perjurers who now infest the land and curse the courts of the country.

I should compel strict accountability of every organization engaging in political activities, whether acting under the name of the Anti-Saloon League or any other alleged moral or religious title.

I should thus put out of business a large band of professional lobbyists who have preyed upon the people and infested the halls of Congress.

I should try to create a public sentiment that would condemn to eternal ignominy and retire to private life every official hypocrite who imposes or enforces laws that he himself violates.

What a quaking of official dry bones there would be!

I should place the sale of intoxicants under strict legal regulation and thus put out of business the bootlegger, the hijacker, the government alcohol poison squad, the fool, the fanatic, the speakeasy and the dive.

I should drag this business into the open. And I should once more subscribe to the principle that "all men . . . are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."
